Beirut Shooting Takes Life Of U.S. Sergeant

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A U.S. sergeant was killed and two other soldiers narrowly escaped death or injury Friday night when they drove accidentally into a "no man's land" section of Beirut and met a blaze of gunfire.

Chief-Elect's Car Is Fired On In Beirut

BEIRUT (UPI) — A gunman fired at President-elect Fuad Chehab's car Saturday, but no one was hit. Chehab went on with secret negotiations for a government take-over next week.

Chehab's armed escort surrounded the building from which the shot was fired and arrested about 30 members of the leftwing P. P. S. opposition group.

The president-elect was not in the car at the time. He was conferring with moderate rebel chieftain Saeb Salam at a house near the Bristol Hotel in a no-man's land between rebel and government quarters.

Predictions
The talks led to predictions of an early negotiated end to the long Lebanese insurrection.

The Chehab-Salam talks lasted for about an hour. Salam said afterward he was "satisfied" with the results of the talk.

Salam described the meeting as "friendly" although each side had 50 heavily armed men standing guard.

The talks were part of an intense round of negotiations over the crucial question of Chehab's taking office.

Demand Resignation
Outgoing President Camille Chamoun's term technically runs until Sept. 21, but the insurgents were demanding his immediate resignation.

Adel Osseyran, speaker of parliament, hinted at an early solution when he emerged tonight from a meeting with Chamoun at the presidential palace.

"We are going to have a new government and I think we may have an extraordinary session of parliament," Osseyran said. "I think next week will be decisive."

It was believed a compromise proposal had been put forward whereby Chamoun would remain president in name, but that the government would be put in the hands of a new premier named by Chehab.

Thousands Flee As Ammunition Dump Explodes

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — A spectacular series of explosions, possibly set off by saboteurs, ripped through an army ammunition dump 10 miles from the heart of Rio de Janeiro for more than 10 hours Saturday, smashing homes and stores and forcing thousands to flee.

More than 12 hours after the first blast occurred shortly after midnight, an official army spokesman said that there were no known deaths.

Col. Albino Silva said there were many reports of injuries to firemen, soldiers and civilians, but none was serious. Nearly all the injured suffered cuts and bruises inflicted by flying glass and other debris, Silva said.

"We cannot discount the possibility that some civilians in surrounding houses — some of which were knocked down by the explosions — may be dead or injured," Silva said.

No Known Dead
"However, there are no victims we know of and it is very doubtful that there are any."

At the height of the series of explosions, 155 millimeter artillery shells went off as though they were strings of firecrackers. Flames shot into the air, forcing a fire company to flee and leave

Goldonna Youth Outstanding Boy

ALEXANDRIA, Ia. (AP) — A Winn Parish youth, Tommy Brewster, of Goldonna, was adjudged the outstanding boy at the State Forest Camp Thursday night.

He received the award of the Louisiana Forestry Association in the week-long camp held at the Alexandria State Forest.

Runner-up in the competition were John Kelley of Farmerville, Alfred Garlington of Grant, Bobby Culppepper of Jonesboro and Jim Fowler of Forest Hill.

Belgian Plane Forced Down By Fighters

VIENNA (UPI) — Czech fighter planes forced a Belgian Sabena airliner to land inside Communist Czechoslovakia Saturday and held it for four hours before allowing it to continue on to Vienna. All passengers and crew members arrived here safe.

The plane's pilot said he may have flown over Czech territory to avoid a fierce storm. The storm swept through Germany, Austria and Czechoslovakia with hurricane force winds, killing at least seven persons and injuring 40 in Germany alone.

Not Fired On
Passengers said the airliner, enroute from Brussels to Athens via Frankfurt and Vienna, was not fired on by the Red fighters and made a "normal landing" at Budweis, Czechoslovakia.

"We were more frightened by the weather than by the Czech Mig planes," said Charles Howard, of Boston, Mass., a passenger on the plane.

"Except for the delay, the Czechs were very considerate," he said. "They first brought us to the secret police headquarters but there was no screening of the passengers there. We were then taken to a hotel where we were given a good dinner."

"After a stop of four hours we were taken back to the airport and taken off for Vienna," he said.

A Sabena spokesman here quoted the pilot as saying he "possibly" flew over Czech territory to avoid "the worst storm clouds I ever experienced in my career."

"It had no other choice than to make a detour over Linz since there was a thunderstorm gathering there and the weather was terrible," he said.

An airlines communique said a two-engine Sabena Convair Metropolitan, with the marking "Oncel," was forced down by Red fighter planes at 4:20 p.m. (10:20 a.m. EST) on the Czech airfield of Budweis, near the Austrian frontier.

The airlines communique said the plane made a "normal" landing at Budweis. A spokesman added that all passengers and crew members were reported safe.

United States Recognizes New Iraqi Regime

BAGHDAD, Iraq (UPI) — The United States formally recognized Iraq's new revolutionary regime Saturday. Shortly afterward, Iraqi authorities freed two U.S. Marine sergeants who had been held in custody here for 70 hours.

The release of the two Americans came almost simultaneously with the arrival in Baghdad of Presidential envoy Robert Murphy who flew here for talks with the new Iraqi government leaders.

The two Marines had been held for questioning along with about 50 other foreigners picked up in the vicinity of a vast oil fire that raged in Baghdad last Wednesday.

The Marines, assigned to the U.S. Embassy guard detachment here, were Sgt. Philip Smith, of West Palm Beach, Fla., and Sgt. George Hamilton, of Century, Fla.

Murphy, deputy U.S. undersecretary of state, flew in from Beirut in a U.S. Air Force plane

Yes, we had a two week vacation and we gave readers a little rest when this column took time out.

Seems that some of our outstanding business and professional men passed on in that period. Among the number was one of the state's most brilliant attorneys, Fred G. It will be difficult to quickly replace a man of his ability in the Twin Cities.

SHE'S FROM TEXAS
Gun-Toting Granny Guarding Her Home

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A rifle-toting grandmother from Texas stood guard over her home Saturday, but a test on whether the new Golden State Freeway goes through her property probably will come Monday.

Mrs. Lomic Puckett, 37, who claims she can "shoot the head off a rattlesnake at 30 paces," turned down an $8,000 offer for not what she wanted and took a position in a rocking chair placed in front of her house, while bulldozers and construction workers lily feet away.

She cradled a 30-30 rifle with a telescopic sight as she explained "It's not the money. I don't want the money. I want the state to get me a house like this one so I can rent it for the same price."

A spokesman for the State Division of Highways said Mrs. Puckett didn't really have to stand guard over the weekend, since no one was going to attempt to take the property before Monday.

That's the date for a superior court condemnation order to take effect.

her home from the state, which wants to tear it down so it can continue construction of the freeway.

ATLAS UNDER FULL POWER—Thundering away from the ground under the full power of its three engines the Air Force Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile takes off on a successful flight of an estimated 2,500 miles. Super-Secret Hearing On Saucers Told WASHINGTON (UPI) — A group which includes a former central intelligence chief reported Saturday congressional committee hearings on "flying saucers" but have never made their findings public.

The claim was made by the National Investigations Committee on Aerial Phenomena (NICAP) which insists the Air Force is withholding evidence which would prove that flying saucers actually exist.

Retired Vice Admiral R. H. Hickenkoetter, who once headed the Central Intelligence Agency, is a committee member.

The NICAP quoted a letter from Rep. William H. Ayres (R-Ohio) as proof that hush-hush congressional hearings had been held. An aide confirmed that Ayres wrote the letter last January to Melvin V. Knopp of West Richfield, Ohio.

Probes Held
The congressman said: "Congressional investigations have been held and are still being held on the problem of unidentified flying objects (UFO's). Since most of the material presented to the committees is classified, the hearings are never printed. When conclusions are reached, they will be released if possible."

The NICAP said this refuted Air Force claims that no congressional hearings had been held.

The Air Force says that thorough investigation has shown there is nothing to bear out claims that reported flying saucers are man-made or piloted. Officials contend that mysterious objects in the sky are natural phenomena such as strange cloud formations, northern lights or optical illusions.

The NICAP differs. Hickenkoetter and other board members issued a statement in NICAP's possession, it is clear the Air Force is still withholding information on unidentified flying objects — including sighting reports. We believe this policy to be dangerous. It makes it possible for the Soviet government to claim ownership of UFO's or flying saucers. Such a claim, especially at this time, might create a serious situation in this country."

The group, which includes Don

British Soldier Shot On Cyprus

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UPI) — Gunmen shot and killed a British soldier Saturday as he walked down a street in suburban Nicosia with his two-year-old son.

The child dropped by his father's bullet-ridden body crying "daddy, daddy."

The shooting presumably was in retaliation for the death of two Greeks killed in a clash with British forces Wednesday.

Col. George Grivas, leader of the Greek Cypriot underground EOKA, proclaimed two weeks ago that for every Greek killed by British, a Briton would be "executed."

Removal Of U.S. Troops Is Hinted

LONDON (UPI) — The United States government has indicated to Great Britain that it hopes to keep American military forces in Lebanon until mid-September at least.

This was learned on reliable diplomatic authority Saturday as concern over the Middle East situation continued to preoccupy British officials.

The British see little hope of pulling their own forces out of Jordan for months if the throne of young King Hussein is to be saved.

Not much optimism prevails in London, that any United Nations summit meeting will produce a quick solution for the threat to Jordan, even if agreement can be reached on neutralization of Lebanon.

Charge 6 Drug Companies In Price-Fixing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government Saturday charged six major drug companies with fixing the prices of wonder drugs at arbitrary, artificial, noncompetitive and rigid levels.

The action, one of the most important antimonopoly complaints ever drafted by the Federal Trade Commission, climaxed a two-year study of the antibiotics industry.

Industry spokesmen promptly denied the commission's charges. The outcome of the case could affect the medical bills of millions of Americans who, according to one estimate cited by the commission, spent 750 million dollars on miracle drugs in 1957.

Absolute Monopoly
According to the commission, the six accused firms have an absolute monopoly in sales of tetracycline drugs which include Achromycin, Terramycin and Achromycin.

The agency said the tetracyclines are the largest selling antibiotics by dollar volume. Developed within the last 10 years, they are called broad spectrum drugs because they attack a wide range of disease-breeding microbes.

Those accused of conspiracy to monopolize the wonder drug industry are:

Chas. Pfizer & Co., American Cyanamid Co., Bristol-Myers Co. and Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp., all of New York City; Bristol Laboratories, Inc., Syracuse, N.Y.; and the Upjohn Co., Kalamazoo, Mich.

The commission action is aimed at ceasing and desisting orders requiring the companies to stop the alleged price fixing. Commission complaints never call for punitive action and are civil rather than criminal in nature.

The commission's report had been eagerly awaited by the drug industry and by members of Congress, some of whom have said the public is overcharged for antibiotics.

Mighty Missile Utilizes Full Power In Test

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) The mighty Atlas intercontinental missile soared off over the Atlantic Saturday on its first successful flight with full power and a high official said "this puts us exactly one year ahead" of the project's anticipated program.

The source said the test means that "in case of an emergency, we can just start cranking them Atlases out like refrigerators and load them up with fuel."

It was learned that an effort would be made to recover the rocket's nose cone after it plunged back through the earth's atmosphere. The cone was reportedly sighted re-entering and a source said the Air Force "didn't have far to look."

The flight was believed to be the longest yet made by the formidable rocket—some 2,300 miles—although it was still less than half the missile's ocean spanning potential.

The Atlas appeared to perform without a hitch and the Air Force said preliminary tracking reports indicated the flight was "normal."

Considered Successful
It was learned later that the test was considered "successful in every respect."

The Air Force reportedly was making an effort to recover a data capsule that was ejected from the rocket. The capsule had a device to record information on the flight.

It was the second time the 8-foot missile, only ICBM in the U.S. arsenal to reach the testing stage, had been tried with all three engines.

Flopped July 19
The first effort on July 19 produced a dismal flop when a "malfunction" in the control system caused the giant to wobble skyward a short distance and explode into two pieces.

With full power, the Atlas has a central "sustainer" engine to go with the boosters on each side which were used for the first eight Atlas tests, several of them successful but for short distance.

The Atlas rose from its launching stand Saturday without wavering and blazed a fiery trail down the Atlantic tracking range. It was visible for two minutes before disappearing into a wisp of a cloud.

May Launch Satellite
Officials said there would be no further statement on performance of the flight, which began at 5:16 a.m. (EST).

Now in the final stages of testing, the Atlas is scheduled for "initial operational capability" by the end of 1959. There have been unconfirmed reports the missile will be used to launch a reconnaissance satellite later this year.

Plane Sits Out Weather As 85 Ships Hunt It

MCUIRE AIR FORCE BASE, N.J. (AP) — A small Army plane sat out 22 hours of bad weather at this giant base while 85 planes searched for it over a five-state area.

The Air Force blamed it all on a numbers mixup.

The plane, piloted by Lt. Col. Charles Neufeld of Ft. Rucker, Ala., left Westchester County, N.Y., Airport Friday for Raleigh, N.C.

The pilot radioed Ft. Meade, Md., that he was running into bad weather at 2,000 feet over the base and would try to land at McGuire if he couldn't go around the storm area.

Probers To Recall Teamster President

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Rackets investigators announced today that Teamster President James R. Hoffa will be recalled as a witness next Tuesday for questioning about a dozen matters that "need a lot of explanation."

Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) said the Rackets Committee's long-awaited second encounter with the controversial teamster leader would show whether he had "kept faith" with his pledge to house-clean the giant union.

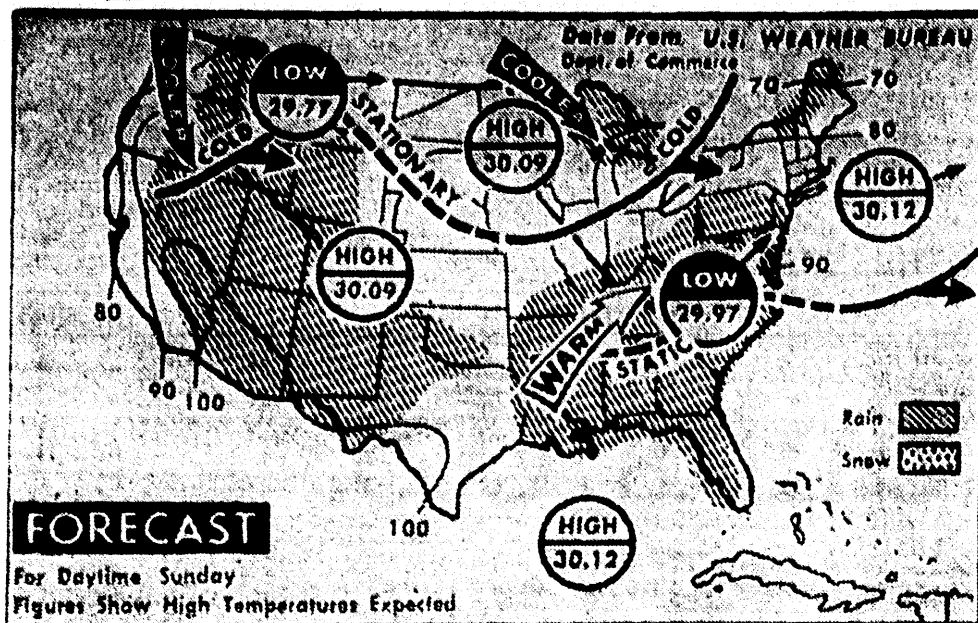

At the same time McClellan struck back at Hoffa's charge that committee members were "phonies" who were trying to "destroy the teamsters" for their own political gain.

Hoffa and some of his associates are not phonies," he said. "The testimony is revealing that they are for real. Such a tax on the committee will not deter it in pursuing its duty in exposing that which is wrong."

McClellan also made public a telegram from Gov. Price Daniel of Texas expressing regret that Hoffa's attack on Dallas, Daniel said the people of his state "appreciate" the work the committee is doing.

Hoffa, who rose to power as midwestern boss of the teamsters first testified before the committee last August before he succeeded

Endurance Test

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) — A boat, designed and built in Lake Providence, won a grueling 200 mile marathon recently off the coast of Florida.

The boat, a Bowman sports Runabout, was not only first place winner, but was the only boat to finish without stopping for repairs.

Powered by a Mercury Mark 78 motor, the Bowman "Mach 92" was among the twelve boats to finish, out of 42 which left the starting line.

H. A. McCune, president of Bowman Manufacturers, Inc., Lake Providence's newest industry, said the annual event is one of the toughest grinds for outboard boats in the entire country, and that the "Mach 92's" performance was a credit to the temporary plant in use since last September, and to the people who built the boat.

The Mach 92 uses a Good-year Aircraft molded fiberglass hull and is claimed by the company to have more built-in flotation than any other boat in its class, and has been speed-tested by expert drivers without ever capsizing.

Bowman is still operating in temporary quarters, built last September, when the company moved here from Little Rock, Ark. The first new building in the company's expansion program was finished a few weeks ago and factory operation will be moved there as soon as power and production facilities are installed.

New Air Service

Strong testimony by local civic leaders before the Civil Aeronautics Board is directly responsible for Monroe's growing importance as an air hub, a Trans-Texas Airways' official said today.

L. J. Eichner, vice president, Traffic and Sales for TTA, said: "Monroe's new air link to Houston, Little Rock and New Orleans is a prime example of what can be accomplished when cities and governmental agencies back up a well prepared case with strong evidence for new and additional air services."

Eichner released a new TTA route map reflecting Monroe's position of influence in the five-state area case. Monroe was named as an intermediate point on the Trans-Texas' Memphis - Houston award in the CAB's recent press release decision.

Eichner also commended the Monroe witnesses who appeared in Alexandria, Louisiana before CAB Examiner Joseph L. Fitzmaurice in June 1957.

"Of particular importance in the final results of the case, was the testimony of Attorney Louis Smith and Chamber of Commerce manager, James Williams," Eichner said. "In addition, Mr. Smith's personal appearance in Washington before the Board was a vital needed action."

Eichner predicted the majority of the new routes would be underway and in operation before the end of 1958.

Tax Payment

A tax payment of $392,934.72 was paid to the state of Louisiana by Southern Bell Telephone Company for the second quarter of 1958.

This is one of the largest tax payments received by the state in payment of public utility taxes.

The check was part of an estimated $8,750,000 tax bill to be paid by Southern Bell to the state, its municipalities and parishes for 1958, exclusive of income, social security and excise tax payments to the federal government.

Harry A. Casady, district manager of the telephone company, delivered the check to tax collector Robert L. Roberts in Baton Rouge.

MOON FLIGHT

Cautions About Rocket Success

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Space is blasted off at Cape Canaveral, Fla., there will be two to three tense days when the world will be waiting for word whether the shot was successful.

Johnson said any date selected for the first shot may prove to be "optimistic" but that lunar probe experiments will be carried out "certainly this year." The first blast-off is reported to have been set for Aug. 17.

Johnson said that as experience is gained, the chance of a successful shot should mount to about 50-50.

The Air Force has been authorized three, and the Army two tries at rocketing a satellite vehicle to the moon. Present indications are that the Air Force, using its hybrid Thor-Able rocket for the two main stages, will complete its three moon experiments before Army scientists get started on times in order to get a good picture of the far side. The picture is in the obtained with a TV-type "scanning" device. Hence several "passes" are desirable.

Juliette Gordon Low was founder of the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. She organized the group will circle the moon at least six in 1912 at Savannah, Ga.

Says Ike To Submit Proposals

WASHINGTON (AP) — A high government official said Saturday President Eisenhower will submit a series of concrete proposals for peace in the Middle East to any U.N. summit conference.

This official, who declined to be quoted by name, said frankly he was seeking to counter published stories that the administration apparently would enter a summit session of the United Nations Security Council bankrupt of ideas for solving the crisis.

"There is some confusion in a lot of peoples' minds," the informant told reporters. "There have been some reports that we would not propose anything at the meeting. We expect the United States will have a series of concrete and constructive proposals and that these will be made by the President."

These proposals, the official said, are now being worked on and will be ready if and when a conference is held, even if it begins as early as Aug. 12, the date suggested in U.S. and British notes to the Soviet Union. He said the U.S. proposals will not be disclosed in advance.

There have been complaints from several Democrats in Congress that Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles in the past have displayed foot-dragging reluctance to meet Soviet Premier Khrushchev face to face.

There was general praise, however, for Eisenhower's letter Friday proposing Aug. 12 for U.N. summit talks and challenging Khrushchev to agree the U.S. should do something about indirect aggression in the Mideast.

LSU To Host Campus Meet For Clerks

BATON ROUGE (Special) — A two-day conference on Municipal Administration and Finance to be sponsored by the Louisiana Municipal Clerks Association and the Louisiana State University College of Commerce will be held on the LSU campus for the first time in November.

The conference is designed especially for municipal clerks and municipal officials. Its purpose is to familiarize them with some problems of the clerk's office as well as new legislative developments, which will enable them to operate more efficiently. The conference dates are November 13-14.

Chamber Slates 11 Meetings Through August

Eleven meetings scheduled so far this month by the Monroe Chamber of Commerce were announced yesterday by Jim Williams, executive secretary.

First on the accelerated meeting schedule will be a river water committee session at 3 p. m. on Aug. 6. Members will be briefed on the new super highway bridge and its effects on the development of commerce and shipping along the Ouachita River valley.

August 7, the agriculture committee will meet to plan its "Bale of Cotton" auction and lay plans for the committee's first field trip to observe modern agriculture techniques in the St. Joseph area.

The convention committee, meeting on August 8, will lay plans for the formal adoption of a Monroe convention souvenir.

U.S. Withholding Arms Shipments To Iraqi Gov't

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Informal sources said Saturday the United States is withholding arms shipments to Iraq even though it has now recognized the rebel government. It wants clarification of Iraq's membership in the Baghdad Pact.

Iraq has been receiving U. S. Military hardware under a 11.5 aid agreement linked to the Mideast alliance. Five F-86 jet fighters were delivered to Iraq shortly before the rebel coup on July 14. But officials said no other shipments are en route now or planned.

They said they have adopted a "wait and see" attitude toward the government of Premier Abdul Karim Kassam. They contended that his foreign policy has been moderate to date but said the acid test will come now that he has won diplomatic recognition from the West.

Schoolfield, former criminal court judge in Hamilton County, was convicted on three of 24 charges of official misconduct after a state investigation into his affairs.

De Gaulle Visits Big Atom Center

PARIS (UPI) — Gen. Charles de Gaulle visited the big French atomic center at Marcoule Saturday and all but announced that France is building the atomic bomb.

It has been an open secret for some time that France is rushing to join the "atomic club" — now limited to the United States, Britain and Russia — but thus far no official has come out and said so.

De Gaulle, however, made a close inspection Saturday of the Marcoule atomic plant near Marseilles and said in a speech afterward:

"I am thinking of what can be necessary for France's military power in relation to other nations."

Robert Perrin, director of the French Atomic Energy Commission, remarked that all three atomic piles at Marcoule will work "in order to assure the manufacture of atomic arms without hampering the industrial (atomic energy) effort."

De Gaulle has frequently indicated that France would continue developing an atomic bomb until and unless there is world agreement on banning nuclear weapons production and a world inspection system capable of guaranteeing the ban.

Thus far the Marcoule establishment has two atomic piles — G-1 and G-2. Together they can turn out 40 kilograms (about 88 pounds) of plutonium—enough to explode four Hiroshima-model atomic bombs.

When the new G-3 pile goes into operation, probably next year, Marcoule will have a capacity of 100 kilos (220 pounds) of plutonium production per year.

France is understood to know how to explode an A-bomb, but so far the shortage of plutonium has been the big snag.

It was de Gaulle himself who as first post-war premier started the French atomic energy program by issuing an ordinance of Oct. 18, 1945 that set up the French AEC.

Registration Set Catholic School

An early school was announced today by Sr. Mary Rita, principal.

Boys and girls intending to attend St. Matthew's for the 1958-59 high school session are urged to register Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, at the school, between the hours of 8 and 11:30 a. m., Sr. Rita said.

The 1958-59 faculty members of the high school department are: Sr. Rita, principal; Sr. Mary Grace, assistant principal; Sister Magdalen, Sr. Benedict, Sister Cabrini, Coach Mahoney and Coach Sweet.

Sr. Rita reports this is the first early registration ever held at St. Matthew's and would like for it to be complete as possible.

Urges Public To Co-Operate

VICKSBURG, Miss. (UPI) — Army engineers urged the public Saturday to co-operate in efforts to halt the destruction of recreational facilities at Arkabulla, Sardis, Enid and Grenada Lakes.

Col. Walter Bosky, deputy district engineer here, said vandals are damaging picnic tables and throwing them into lakes, tearing down restrooms, destroying boat ramp barricades and breaking into buildings to smash light bulbs and glass blocks in the buildings.

"Last week, some party evidently broke between 25 and 50 soft drink bottles on the pavement of one access road in a distance of one mile," Bosky said.

Degrees Subject Of Talk

BATON ROUGE, (AP) — The dean of the Louisiana State University graduate school said Saturday there appeared to be a strong connection "between demand for specialized degrees and the practice of framing diplomas for display purposes."

Dr. Richard Russell, in an article released by LSU, said:

"A patient in a waiting room probably is greatly impressed by the various diplomas that a medical doctor is likely to exhibit, and seldom takes trouble to see that most of them refer to brief periods of internship or preparation for 'specialty' examinations.

"A client in the office of an engineer might regard as academic and unimpressive a diploma bearing only the imprint, 'master of science,' but may feel that the stature of the person displaying the degree of 'master of science' is a real specialist, worthy of demanding a much higher fee for his services."

Russell quoted the graduate dean of a leading land grant university as saying, "There is probably no curriculum so absurd that it is not offered by some land grant school and we offer most of them on my campus."

"LSU occupies a median position between these extremes," said the LSU dean.

All graduate work at LSU, he said, "except in bona fide professional fields, such as law, medicine and social welfare," are administered under the graduate school.

But he admitted a "diversity of master's degrees" were offered in engineering, including master of science in agricultural engineering, master of science in chemical engineering and master of science in sugar engineering.

West Awaits Red Reply On Summit Meet

MOSCOW (UPI) — Western diplomats waited in vain Saturday night for Russia's expected reply to the western proposal for a summit conference Aug. 12—just 10 days away.

The expectation was that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev would hand over his reply during the evening to the American and British proposals accepting a top-level conference anywhere agreeable which reached here Friday.

Up until a few minutes before midnight, no summons had been received from the foreign ministry.

Most ambassadors were inclined to believe there would be no response until Sunday if then.

There was some speculation that the timing of the conference might have to be delayed because of the short time left to prepare for it.

Before Stalin's death it was not unusual for ambassadors to be called in at all hours to receive important communications, even after midnight.

Since 1953, however, most diplomatic business has been conducted in the daytime with occasional evening developments.

Lebanese 'Lame Duck'

Lebanon has a new president following Thursday's election in the parliament of that crisis-torn nation. But a "lame duck" situation exists there which may cause U. S. or U. N. troops to remain in position until October.

In former days, a president in this country elected in November could not take office until the following March. As a result, the term "lame duck" was applied to the administration which limped around several months before it became a political "dead duck."

General Fuad Shehab was a 6-1 choice of the members of parliament in Thursday's election. Even rebel leader Saeb Salem was pleased to learn of the general's election.

But the president-elect said he would not resign from his position in the army until September 24. And defeated President Camille Chamoun will not step down until September 23.

This is all according to Lebanese protocol, normally. But Chamoun is the chief target of the rebels, and they can be expected to press for his immediate resignation. Thus, a "lame duck" situation complicates the 85-day-old rebellion.

It was President Chamoun who requested the U. S. troops following the uprising in his own country and the coupe of July 14. The new president has not announced publicly whether he desires to keep the western troops in Lebanon.

Rebel leader Salam sent word from his barricaded headquarters he sees no basic change and that he will continue his fight until all demands are met. Uppermost among the rebels' demands are a quick withdrawal of American forces and the immediate resignation of Chamoun as the president of Lebanon.

Several hours after the Lebanese vote, Secretary of State Dulles announced the United States would pull out its troops if asked to do so by a duly constituted Lebanese government. Apparently, there will not be such a think in effect until September 23-24. So it looks as if U. S. or U. N. troops will be there at least until then.

The only protests came from Lebanon's premier, Sami Solh. This is particularly unfortunate since both the former president, Chamoun, and the leader of the rebels, Salam, were both pleased with the election of Shehab.

Though most officials did not concur, Solh said the general should have resigned his position in the army some six months ago in order to be eligible for the presidency.

Solh boycotted the session of parliament which elected General Shehab following an attempt on his life by rebels earlier this week. He claimed the election was being held in an atmosphere full of pressure and terrorism.

Only nine deputies followed Solh's example, and the remaining 56 deputies named Shehab by a vote of 48 over 7 ballots cast for Raymond Edde. There was one blank ballot.

There appear to be too many "ifs" in connection with the post-election period in Lebanon to warrant immediate withdrawal of U. S. Marines and airborne units. Reasons for optimism are present—a candidate for president has been elected who seems favorable to both "loyalists" and rebels.

But so long as the rebel leader insists the situation has not changed and that he will fight right up to the time Chamoun resigns, our course can only be to keep the troops on duty. The "lame duck" term of President Chamoun of Lebanon promises nearly two months of tense watching and waiting.

Too Many Committees

The phrase "appoint a committee" has become the key to getting things done in America. Organizations of all types from service clubs to labor unions to both houses of Congress assign specific tasks to committees then move on to the next item on the business agenda.

Only last week, a local service club let one member know on a moment's notice he was chairman of a committee to prepare some sort of outdoor meal for the next meeting. He enlisted the help of his wife, and they did a good job. As a result, he may be considered again for the same task.

This seems a small piece of "committee work" when compared with the investigating committees, freedom of information committees, security committees—and the many other groups with varied functions now operating out of Washington.

This is not to say that this method is an ineffectual means of getting results. But, like the man and his wife who prepared the supper, it is usually done in addition to other duties.

The senators and representatives serving on committees and sub-committees are doing so in addition to their responsibility to their constituents: that of writing, opposing or approving of proposed legislation.

There is the expression of a certain bill's being "buried in committee," which usually means that bill will not reach the floor for a vote during that session of Congress. If committees continue to be set up, there may come the possibility of a congressman's being buried in committee.

Perhaps in most cases there is a good reason for committees. But all operations meet a point of diminishing returns—which is another way of saying Jack's beanstalk really had to stop growing before it reached the sky.

It is suspected in many quarters this point has been reached in the many departments in charge of our national defense. High officials in the Navy, Army, Air Force and missile program all have noted difficulties traced to an overabundance of committees.

Several months ago, Navy Secretary Gates pointed to "too many groups with veto power, without responsibility." No doubt, part of the secretary's conclusion was based on the experience of Admiral Hyman Rickover, the man who headed the work on the Nautilus, the world's first atomic-powered submarine. Had Rickover not been an excellent "broken field" runner, dodging committees and carrying out his own liaison between Navy and industry, the Russians might have gotten the edge on us in this field.

Some highly revealing information was given Dr. Wernher von Braun, our chief rocket expert, in testimony to Congress following the launching of the first U. S. satellite. He said he and Gen. Medaris, head of the Army's missile program, had to leave their work in Alabama frequently and go to Washington to attend committee hearings.

All this time, the Russians were moving ahead with no arguments tolerated. Asked if these hearings were constructive, Dr. von Braun said, "I think we have too many." Only recently made a citizen of the United States, von Braun phrased a polite understatement. Of his native Germany, he would probably refer to the many wartime offices which gave him equal difficulties as "a monkey-dance of a thousand bureaus."

Uncertainty has probably played its part in the enlisting of so many scientific specialists in our defense and other vital government programs. Good consultation is one thing; confusion of ideas quite another. Either our departments of government must establish a working order for the many necessary committees—or take the others out of the picture—or we may find ourselves trying to beat off an attack with just the noise from committee discord.

As we don't know the identity of the supposed Russian official who is reported hospitalized with a serious injury or ailment, we don't know what to hope for in his case.

With reference to recent rumors, the latest news dispatches indicate that Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh are still married and glad of it.

Instead of dishing out money by the many millions in trouble spots all over the world in an effort to relieve tensions, Uncle Sam should distribute large quantities of sugar-coated tranquilizing pills.

Congress Draws To Close With Bills Watered Down

WASHINGTON, D. C. — It creates a National Aeronautics and Space Council (NASC), which sets all space policies, allocates all space projects and settles all jurisdictional disputes among the Federal departments. As matters stand today, the Defense Department "controls" space through the Advanced Research Projects Agency (ARPA), but as soon as the President signs the new bill, NASC takes over about $70 million of projects from ARPA. It is the old story—when in trouble, build a bigger bureau.

Labor bill. It passed the Senate 88-10. You just don't get majorities like that on legislation which means anything. You could introduce the Golden Rule in the form of a bill and get top-heavy approval, but what would be accomplished? After all, this was the Senate in which all the big Labor leaders were brought in for testimony. The investigations showed massive corruption and cynical abuse of power. Bills by the boxful were introduced to correct these conditions. A little band of Senators fought hard to pass a law that would be addressed to the pointed problems and would be worthy of the American system of government. But these few were overwhelmed by the straddlers and compromisers. Only one Senator, Malone of Nevada, had the fortitude to register his vote against the poor thing that staggered to passage across the Senate floor.

Defense Department Reorganization bill. It passed the Senate 80-0. But this was because midsummer apathy descended upon Capitol Hill and the White House. The Senate die-hards decided it was too hot to perish in the last ditch, after all. The Administration leaders found that the ditches were just as hot and the spirits just as lukewarm on their side of town.

Reciprocal Trade. This one passed the Senate 76-16. All winter and long into the summer months one could hear the battle shouts of the protectionists. This time they would never give up. They were going to end free trade (for foreigners) this time—or bust. But in the end, there was no real fight. The last ditch had, once more, become the middle road.

Foreign Aid. This one passed the Senate 51-17. As late as the Easter recess last April, members of Congress were saying that the Eisenhower recession at home and the washing away of the mud fence alliances abroad made a double reason why foreign aid was in for the toughest time of its long career. But the President turned on his charm. The Secretary of State with his chorines put on the familiar song and dance show. The opposition did not die. It just went blissfully to sleep while being entertained.

Alaskan Statehood. It passed the Senate 64-20. All the ardent support came from the Pacific Coast and Northwest States. This is understandable and commendable. These States had a large self-interest in money and people in Alaska, but fully 80 of the 96 Senators would have preferred to let well enough alone. They had no desire to add a 49th State. At the last moment there was a very sensible move on the floor to grant commonwealth status for a trial period. But a majority of Senators by this time were tired of thinking and of resisting. They did the easiest thing. They gave consent.

It is a record of apathy. It is an example of easy—does—do. It is a two-party case of leave-it-to-Lyndon (D.) or leave-it-to-Like (R.). There is, I know, a current tendency in the critics' circle to applaud the performers, to judge Congress by the number of bills passed, to assume that a bill which gets a lot of votes must have a lot of merit.

But what of the quality of the performance? The substance of the bills? The thoroughness of the debating? Or—maybe a critic should not mention these matters any more.

THREE: A third bill which also will become law any day will give small business firms some welcome tax relief. Again, specifically: Most important of the new tax bill's provisions is one allowing a small firm to write off for tax purposes 20 per cent of the cost of machinery, equipment, other "tangible personal property" in the year of purchase. The property may be either new or used when bought. Farmers will be permitted to take advantage of the liberalized depreciation allowance. The fast writeoff will apply, though, only to the first $10,000 of investment purchases each year or $20,000 in the case of joint returns. Other limitations are that the property must have a useful life of

ANGOLA CONDITIONS
Alexandria, La.

Dear Editor,

Will the public please answer these "whys" for us parents, wives, brothers and sisters of the inmates at Angola. We know they have most of them, done wrong and must pay for their crimes to man and to the law. But why must they be treated so badly?

For instance, why are 27 men locked up in the old prison that has been condemned by the state? They have been there since June 4 with two men to the cell six by eight feet for 27 days. They slept on concrete floors. Afterwards, they were changed to one man to each cell.

When I visited my son on July 3, they let him shave, which was the second time in 40 days. It happened that seven inmates had visitors that day and were allowed to shave.

Why are the men kept in a place where there are no screens on open windows? They have to wear heavy work clothing night and day for protection against insects.

Why do high-up officials have the right to throw tear gas on them until these 27 men were forced out of their cells? After this happened there were two lines of men waiting for them with blackjacks and another line ready with their fists to beat them as they came out. Most all of the 27 inmates were seriously hurt in some way.

Why was their hair cut up in spots by some of the higher-ups with clippers? A strip was cut around their heads, and they had to go around like that until an inmate was sent to try and straighten their hair up. Tear gas was thrown on them again, and they were penned up two men to a cell in the six by eight foot cells. The guards on the outside were told to "shoot to kill" if any of them went to the window for air for a week.

Why are the men put there as guards also inmates when almost everyone knows no inmate is supposed to guard other prisoners?

In a land with plenty of food, must they starve? Why should guards be ordered to shoot to kill if anyone goes near the old prison where our sons and husbands are being kept for the insects to feed on? Many of your readers must also wonder why.

MRS. ALPHONSE SWIMLEY.

Male Death Rate Continues High

Men should be reminded from time to time that they no longer are the stronger sex. Big muscles and brute strength do not prolong life, and to survive they would better learn to adjust to the stress and strain of modern living. The increasing number of widows attests to the fact that women live longer.

The year 1945 will go down in American history as the turning point in the battle of the sexes. Females began to outnumber males for the first time and the ratio of men to women has been declining ever since. In 1955, for example, there were 1,382,000 more women than men, and in that year 200,000 more men than women died.

The higher male death rate was commented on as far back as 200 years ago. In 1900, it was 10 per cent greater, whereas in 1953 it rose to 53 per cent. This difference is most noticeable in the older age group, where one-half the ladies over 65 are widows. By 1975, according to statisticians, there will be 40 per cent more women than men.

Why have women become the stronger sex? They are not exposed to the risks of war, dangerous occupations, and keen competition. They take better care of themselves when sick and seldom procrastinate when the time comes to see their physician. The worst hazard—maternal mortality—has almost been conquered.

In my opinion, adaptability to stress situations is the most important factor. Women are able to get many of their emotional problems off their chest by yacking over the back fence. When tension becomes too great they can always go on a crying jag. The fragile male must hold back his tears and, without this safety valve, his blood pressure rises or he develops ulcer. No wonder the incidence of these conditions, as well as heart attacks and strokes has gone up 30 per cent in males in 20 years. The rates for women ease.

Alternate Foods
Mrs. J. F. writes: My 3 year old grandchild won't eat meat and green vegetables. Are there any substitutes for these foods?

Reply: Yes. Proteins may be obtained from cereals, breads, milk, dairy products, fish, and meat stock soups. Fruits and yellow and red vegetables will supply his vitamin C and mineral needs. All children go through these phases and by the time this answer appears, he may be begging for hamburger and salad.

A Medico-Legal Problem
Mrs. J. writes: Is it true that a couple have to hire a lawyer before artificial insemination is done?

Reply: No, but it might be wise for the physician to become acquainted with the legal aspects of this procedure. The problem is not as complex when the husband is the donor.

Operation Jitters
Mrs. E. W. writes: Is a person nervous for some time after an abdominal operation?

Reply: Some individuals, especially the high-strung, react in this way. Such persons respond poorly to stress of any kind and are up for weeks after an accident or death in the family.

Spokesmen Belittle '10-Foot Tall' Tale

Ten Feet Tall — Top officials of the defense department, including all three of the so-called unified services, are blamed by a top administration spokesman for developing belief among Americans, as well as anti-Communist nations, that Russia is "virtually militarily invincible."

"They (the Russians) aren't just that tough, and they aren't ten feet tall," he declares.

This informed member of residence Eisenhower's staff, with some three decades of experience in defense department operations, contends that the military authorities talk highly of the Russian military supremacy in the hope that they can get larger appropriations from congress.

"It's easier to sell congress and the American people that they must have more money if they can wave the bogey of Soviet invincibility," he insists.

Washington Monument — No one questions figures which show that more people go to the top of the famous Washington Monument than attend sessions of the United States senate and house of representatives. As a result, no one is surprised that the government is about to spend $123,804 to eliminate so-called traffic jams at the top of the 555 foot marble spire. The plan is to raise the elevator shaft 10 feet so that sightseers will alight at the observa-

7 JUDGES TO DECIDE

To Argue Race Case On Monday

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A case which could affect the speed of public school desegregation throughout the South will be argued Monday before the U. S. Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals.

All seven judges of the court—instead of the usual three—are meeting in special session during their summer recess to hear the important case.

At issue is an appeal from an order by federal District Judge Harry J. Lemley, Virginia-born and a resident of St. Louis, suspending racial integration at Central High School in Little Rock for 2½ years.

The appellate court, which in previous rulings has upheld the Little Rock integration plan, is acting this time with unaccustomed haste. A ruling is expected before the start of the fall school term next month.

Judge Lemley's suspension order was requested by the Little Rock School Board. The board cited unrest and disciplinary problems which marked the first phase of the gradual integration plan, enforced with the use of federal troops.

It was appealed by the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, which calls Judge Lemley's order "an invitation to violence."

Arkansas is the southernmost of the seven states in the Eighth Circuit and the only one without a member on the bench. The other states are Missouri, Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska and the Dakotas.

The court is headed by 90-year-old Chief Judge Archibald K. Hardner of North Dakota, a Republican. Judge Gardner and John B. Sanborn, 74, a Minnesota Republican, were appointed by former President Hoover.

Harvey M. Johnson, 63, and Joseph W. Woodruff, 84, Nebraska Democrats, were named by the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Charles J. Vogel, 60, North Dakota Democrat, Martin D. Van Oosterhout, 58, Iowa Republican, and Martin C. Matthes, 52, Missouri Republican, are appointees of President Eisenhower.

These are the men who are called upon to decide the proper application, in the complex Little Rock case, of the Supreme Court's 1955 order for an end to segregation in public schools with "all deliberate speed."

Judge Lemley held that Negroes have a constitutional right to attend Central High. But, citing deep-rooted opposition to integration in the area, he found the school board had "convincingly shown that the time for the enjoyment of that right has not come."

The NAACP's attorneys, in their brief, argue that Judge Lemley's order, if permitted to stand, "as a precedent will be disastrous to our whole concept of constitutional government."

Last April a three-judge division of the Appeals Court upheld an injunction prohibiting Gov. Orval E. Faubus of Arkansas from interfering with integration at the school.

The injunction, granted last fall by District Judge Ronald E. Davies of Fargo, N. D., resulted in removal of Arkansas National Guardsmen Faubus had used to prevent enrollment of nine Negroes.

This, in turn, was followed by violence in a mob of whites that had gathered outside the school and President Eisenhower's decision to have federal troops flown into Little Rock.

The Appellate Court is hearing the case without waiting, as it usually does, for printed transcripts and briefs.

The Supreme Court, in rejecting the NAACP's request that it by-pass the Appeals Court, said it was confident the appellate court is aware that the time element is vitally important.

The decision will determine whether seven Negroes will continue in Central High next month. One of the original nine was graduated and another was expelled.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—Circuit Court Judge Macaulay L. Smith Saturday continued a restraining order limiting to three the number of pickets at each gate at the General Electric appliance plant, where members of the International Union of Electrical Workers have been on strike since last Sunday.

The judge overruled a company request that pickets be reduced to two at each gate plus one "roving" picket.

The union at the same time had sought to have the restraining order dissolved.

Judge Smith said that probably there would be no further hearings on the issue.

The plant, center of GE's home appliance industry, employs about 7,000 production workers, most of them IUE members, plus about 3,000 supervisory and office personnel.

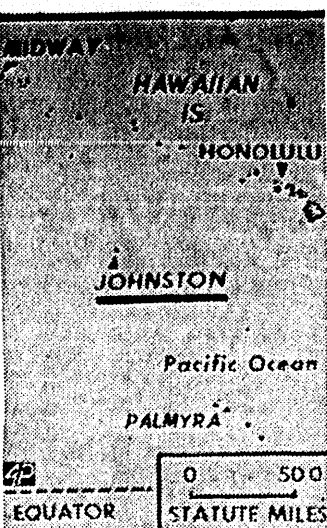

Company and union members were meeting late Saturday to discuss problems raised by a two-week vacation period scheduled for the entire plant beginning Aug. 11. The company has indicated it will not give vacation pay for the period while the strike is in progress.

The walkout was called, officially at least, over 24 individual grievances which had gone through all normal grievance procedures without a settlement.

An underlying issue has been disciplinary action taken against 38 union members accused by GE of slowdown tactics.

The court is hearing the case without waiting, as it usually does, for printed transcripts and briefs.

The decision will determine whether seven Negroes will continue in Central High next month. One of the original nine was graduated and another was expelled.

Ellender Says Letters Passed Slaughter Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Allen J. Ellender (D-La.) contended Saturday the main purpose of the humane slaughter bill passed this week by the Senate was to stop a "massive letter writing campaign" sponsored by the bill's proponents.

The bill, he said, "is not only impractical, but it is unrealistic." Ellender opposed the bill on the floor and sought to get approval of legislation which would provide for an Agriculture Department study of the matter.

"The crux of my opposition to the House-approved bill and to the bill passed by the Senate is basic, namely that the methods of slaughter called for in those measures may or may not be humane," Ellender said in a talk for broadcast in Louisiana.

"Actually no one knows whether they are or not."

He said he favors humane slaughter but "I want to see that objective accomplished in an effective and practical manner."

"To be perfectly frank," he said, "the bill passed by the Senate is not only impractical, but it is unrealistic. It is nothing more than a sop tossed to humane slaughter proponents in an effort to bring a halt to the massive letter writing campaign which they have fostered."

The first aerial passenger tramway in North America was opened at Cannon Mountain in New Hampshire on June 28, 1938.

Income Tax Exemption Hike Sought

United Press International Sen. Albert Gore Saturday said he would seek to raise the income tax exemption for dependents from $600 to $800 to "relieve glaring inequities" and to help combat the high cost of living facing workers.

Gore, running for re-election, spoke at Trenton Saturday night, after a swing through Chattanooga, Cleveland, Athens, Lynchburg, Fayetteville and Winchester.

His opponent, former three-term governor Prentice Cooper, swung through East Tennessee, and at several stops reasserted his stand for segregation and for less "global giveaways."

He campaigned through Russellville, Whitesburg, Bulls Gap, Rogersville, Greeneville, Blountville and Johnson City.

Gore said at Trenton that "as a member of the Senate Finance Committee I have undertaken the responsibility of representing the public interest. One of the glaring inequities of present tax laws is the unrealistic, personal tax exemption of only $600 for each taxpayer and dependent."

He said "With the cost of living at its highest point in history an allowance of only $600 for the cost of rearing a child is utterly unrealistic. An exemption of $800 for each taxpayer and dependent is surely more realistic."

Gore made an election prediction: "I have waged a vigorous campaign and I expect to get more than 400,000 of the expected 700,000 votes to be cast Thursday."

Cooper, also optimistic, continued to criticize Gore's record of "foreign giveaways" and said "Tennessee needs a senator for Tennessee and not from Tennessee."

He said Gore "has been out of the country 16 times since he's been in Congress — as a representative and as a senator—and I don't call that keeping the interests of the homefolks at heart."

Both Gore and Cooper planned to take Sunday off and prepare for a busy four days of campaigning before Thursday.

Fire in a storeroom at the J. C. Pettis residence, 901 S. 8th St., caused minor damage to the walls of the room at 4:30 p. m. yesterday.

Engine Companies 102 of the Monroe Fire Department responded to the alarm, and had the blaze under control within minutes.

"It was just getting started — gasoline fumes had ignited when they reached the pilot light of the hot water tank in the storeroom," Firemen said.

DESIGNER

Gres Important Fashion Figure

PARIS (UPI) — Gres goes her own varied way — skirts knee-length to mid-calf; dresses high-waisted or shaped tightly to the body with a normal waist line; voluminous hooded coats or straight and narrow long-haired fabrics with lifted front belts.

Evening dresses just below the knee, or falling in the famous Gres Grecian folds from shoulder to hem in flowing jersey.

This is a designer's collection. It is also a collection for the individualist among private clients. Because it does not follow any one line itself, it is extremely difficult to translate into the American way of producing clothes.

But Madame Gres, a bright-eyed, cozy, essentially realistic person is a designer with a poetic flavor and in the tradition of grand couture. As such she is important to Paris and to fashion.

Sat In Armchair

Jacques Griffe is a protégé of Madame Vionnet, and until the last few collections she sat always at the end of the front row of the little gold chairs in his first salon. But she sat in an armchair Friday! Griffe is a man with an original cut and a following among quietly elegant French women. He is imported by the American houses who also have the American counterpart of those clients.

This autumn we think they'll like, particularly, his version of the high-waisted dress. It is the narrowest one of this cut and appears in black velvet, grey flannel, brown checked wool and dark green jersey, all with narrow high leather belts. His series of absolutely straight suits with loose, hip-length jackets is very Molyneux (whose former salon Griffe now occupies).

Jean Desses makes a good deal of something he calls the "X" line this season; sometimes it's overworked and seems to be a forced following of a predetermined alphabet reference. But when it comes off, it's pretty and wearable, as in a pink coat which buttons twice at the waist line; in a neat, brown suit, NOT high-waisted but buttoned X-ish in front.

Taupe Wool Suit

A big brown coat has huge pockets on each side of the criss-crossing X line in front; and a quite beautiful taupe wool suit with a brown lamb collar forgets all about the X and simply makes itself into something pretty flatteringly, with a doubled chignon blouse that makes a dress with the skirt when the jacket is off.

The famous dresses draped and redeigned chignon evening dresses are here — the prettiest of them made of silk-like material with pale gold embroidery running through.

And the bride wore pink! Pink satin, the palest of the pale, with correct high neck, long sleeves, and a veil like an oversized cone of two layers of tulle reaching from the top of the head not quite to the shoulders.

FALSE ALARM

PAWTUCKET, R. I. (AP)—A half-dozen heavily armed policemen burst into a branch of the Citizens Savings Bank in answer to the bank alarm. There was no robbery. A curious 3-year-old girl pushed the bank alarm button while her parents were discussing a mortgage with the bank manager.

Northeast To Graduate First Pharmacists In May

Northeast State's school of pharmacy will come of age next May when its first graduating class is awarded bachelor of science degrees in pharmacy.

About twenty students from all areas of Louisiana and other states are looking toward launching a career in one of the many areas attracting potential pharmacists, according to Ralph Wilson, dean of the school.

The first graduation of Northeast pharmacy seniors will mark a mile stone in the history of the pharmacy school, which was launched here in September 1956 as the only state-supported school of pharmacy in Louisiana.

Origin of the school came about through the need to care for the acute shortage of pharmacists in this state and to decrease the shortage of numbers in this profession felt throughout the nation. Many drug stores are using one pharmacist when two or more are needed. Records reveal that Louisiana has been turning out just under the number of replacement pharmacists needed and making no inroads into the shortage.

Vision of far-sighted persons who were instrumental in establishing the school here has resulted in the realization of the school's worth. Response to new career studies is reflected in the anticipated fall enrollment of 175 which is based on previous figures.

Pharmacy is a profession which appeals to both men and women, Dean Wilson said. Of the twelve students enrolling at Northeast for the first time this summer eight are women. National statistics on pharmacy students show that about 10 to 12 per cent of the total represents women. This average is approximately the same at Northeast.

The new school offers a curriculum based on four years and two summers of study. By 1960 all pharmacy schools must work on a five-year program, a requisite of the American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy.

Dean Wilson is enthusiastic about the future. A full staff and fine equipment make an excellent combination designed to meet the needs of a five-year plan, he explained. Completion of the staff and modern equipment now mean ability to give adequate coverage to all instructional areas, he said.

The school has been functioning on a V-2 accreditation given by the American Council on Pharmaceutical Education. An inspecting team will return to the campus during the coming school year to check conditions for final accreditation.

With the acquisition of a full faculty, Dean Wilson says, "I feel that the staff is as strong as that of a large percentage of pharmacy schools in this country."

Instruction is given in the areas of general pharmacy, pharmacology and physiology, pharmacognosy and botany, and pharmaceutical chemistry.

Working with Dean Wilson are Dr. Cecil Paul Headlee, Dr. Frank Martin, Dr. Dale H. Cronk, Dr. John T. Goorley, and Dr. Joseph H. Kern.

With increasing enrollment, an enthusiastic faculty, and modern equipped laboratories, Northeast State feels it has a good prescription for success.

TRY NEW EQUIPMENT — Future pharmacists say it's more fun to work since new equipment has been installed in the laboratories at Northeast. Learning the art of mixing drugs for prescriptions are H. P. Brooks, Jonesville; Floyd Prejean, Abbeville; Carolyn Miranti, New Orleans, and L. V. Rabalais, Baton Rouge. VITAL ORGANS — Dr. Cecil Paul Headlee, of the pharmacy faculty, demonstrates one of numerous models just arrived for study in the effect of drugs on organs of the body. Walker, and Jerry Hemstreet, New Orleans. (Staff photo by Jim St. Julien)

N.O. OFFICER Continues Probe Of Nudist Ring

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — An ace investigator who resigned from the New Orleans police department proceeded with his investigation of an alleged international sex ring today, decoding and cataloging the thousands of names and nude photographs of members of the "ring."

Ex-sergeant Hubert Badaeux, who offered his services free to the Orleans parish chief investigator, John Grosch, said the activity of the alleged sex ring "was a far step beyond nudism," and that many of the types of degeneracy indulged in by club members "are known only to psychiatrists."

Badaeux said there was evidence the ring held a convention in a New Orleans hotel last fall. At other times, he said, club members met in members' homes or in hotels or someone's summer home, where they swapped wives.

Two grand juries were expected to investigate the ring. Grosch was expected to turn over his evidence for presentation before an Orleans parish grand jury.

Assistant U. S. attorney Lloyd Melancon said a federal grand jury will investigate the ring alleged to have sent obscene literature and photographs through the mail.

Two men were charged before U. S. Commissioner R. H. Carter Friday with conspiring to use the mail to send obscene literature and photographs. Louis E. Stewart, New Orleans, and James G. Brock, 55, of Valparaiso, Fla., were charged. Bond was set at $10,000 for each man.

If convicted on the federal charge, each could receive a fine of $5,000 and up to five years in prison.

Badaeux identified the two as the "top men" in the vice ring. Stewart, an alleged member of the Three Trees Nudist Club in St. Tammany parish which was reportedly connected with the ring, was invited to live in an extra bedroom at the home of Badaeux' mother so the sergeant could gather more evidence.

Badaeux personally booked Stewart for obscenity at the police station. Previously, Badaeux told Stewart that, as a "friend," he would hide a trunk filled with the roster of club members. It was the evidence he needed, he said.

Brock and his wife, Barbara C. Brock, 55, were freed on $5,000 bonds Friday on Florida charges of "possession, manufacture and distribution of pornographic pictures."

The former police sergeant, Badaeux, who personally led Florida law enforcement officers to arrest Brock, said that the sex ring drew membership from such far-flung points as New Zealand, Saudi Arabia, Mexico, British Guiana and Havana.

"Just how many more countries are involved we won't know until the thousands of pieces of mail and lists of names are compiled," Badaeux said. "We will also have the break code used by the club members."

"There won't be much trouble decoding the names of the members because there are also nude photographs of all the members... and most of the members exchanged photographs," Badaeux said.

Grosch, the Orleans parish district attorney's chief investigator, said he had seized all the evidence collected by Badaeux, and assigned the former policeman to work as a citizen without pay until the completion of the investigation.

La. To Aid N.O. In Court

BATON ROUGE (UPI) — The state of Louisiana will enter New Orleans' fight to maintain racially segregated schools by filing suit in a district court Monday challenging a Federal court integration order.

Attorney General Jack Gremlion said the suit Monday would mark the state's first affirmative intervention in the New Orleans school integration case.

The new legal wrinkle is a petition asking for a declaratory judgment on the legality of a 1956 Louisiana law which gave the state legislature sole authority to determine the racial status of public schools in cities with a population in excess of 300,000.

Judge J. Skelly Wright termed the act an "artifice" rather than a law and set it aside. The U. S. Supreme Court upheld Wright's opinion.

A spokesman for the attorney general's office said the New Orleans school board, "in all probability," will file a petition in federal court asking that integration of New Orleans' schools be delayed until the outcome of Gremlion's petition.

The New Orleans school board is under federal orders to integrate with "all deliberate speed." No time specific limit has been set.

The spokesman said Gremlion's petition could take years to work through state courts and then federal courts.

"This is no counter-move," Gremlion said. "It is an entirely separate action—a move on the part of the state to force an interpretation of an act of the Louisiana legislature."

Gremlion said his petition will contend the act is a Louisiana statute, "affecting Louisiana people," and the civil district court must act as "final interpreter" of the laws of the state.

A member of Gremlion's staff said "with September drawing near, any legal action in courts may help delay integration a bit."

A. P. Tureaud, attorney for the plaintiffs in the suit against the school board, said he had no comment until he had time to study the petition.

Last week, Emile Wagner, president of the Orleans parish school board, told a Citizens' Council meeting that the school board had reached the "end of its rope" in the battle to maintain the color line.

Each legal action the board has filed to prevent integration has been knocked down.

The school board in the past used the 1956 law as grounds to upset the Supreme Court's ruling to integrate. The board contended the legislature or the state of Louisiana, which cannot be sued without its consent, should have been named defendant instead of the school board.

Judge Wright said this was "non-sense" and termed the act unconstitutional on "its face."

BACKSTAIRS Ike May Visit Alaska Soon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backstairs at the White House: Chances appear good that President Eisenhower will go to Alaska for an official ceremony after it becomes the 49th state. White House aides say that he probably will if it is held at a time when the world situation is quiet and his official duties permit.

Alaskans here say that any official celebration probably will not take place until sometime after admission of Alaska as a state, now expected late in December or early in January. A date frequently mentioned is next July 4, when the 49th star will be added officially to the American flag.

The President caused disappointment and resentment among some leaders in the fight for Alaskan statehood by not inviting them to the White House to watch him sign the legislation. White House aides explained that the President hasn't had such a bill-signing ceremony for some time. He cut them out because they were time-consuming and presented a problem of where to draw the line if any were held.

But the President did mark the occasion by calling in newsmen and photographers to cover the signing. It was the only time this year he had done even that.

He also sent to Juneau for display in the Alaskan state house one of the four pens he used in signing the bill.

Straws in the wind as to the future of top Presidential Aide Sherman Adams: —White House sources deny reports he will resign in a reasonable length of time after Congress adjourns.

—He and Mrs. Adams were next ranking guests to Vice President and Mrs. Richard M. Nixon at a dinner given by Italian Premier Amintore Fanfani here.

—Adams' reported reply to a reference, at a social occasion to resignation talk was a cheerful: "Do I look like a man about to resign."

Seven new producers were reported to the Monroe office of the State Department of Conservation for the week ending July 31. Four holes were plugged and abandoned and there were 12 new locations. Active rigs were listed as 29.

DISTANT MONTHS HIT

Cotton Futures Continue Drop

Active contracts on the New York Cotton Exchange took net losses ranging from 10 cents to 50 cents a bale. Distant months were hardest hit.

Grain Futures Trade Calm For The Week

CHICAGO (AP)—The grain futures trade was virtually calm this week and prices almost stalled with little or no incentive to nudge them either way.
The only influence with any impact was weather. It took prices up fairly broadly on Thursday, then let them down again on Friday.
At the close of the week, only two contracts—both soybeans—were as much as a cent a bushel from their starting points.
Wheat was unchanged to 1/2 cent a bushel higher, September $1.87 1/2-3/4; corn 1-1/2 higher, September $1.22 1/2-3/4; oats 3/4 higher, September 63 1/2-1/2; rye unchanged to 1/2 lower, September $1.26 1/2; soybeans 1-1/2 higher, September $2.27 1/2-1/2; hard 20 cents a hundred pounds higher to 5 cents lower September $12.45.

Customers have been scarce all round. Millers have done very little business since they were heavy buyers in the price runup during the Middle East crisis and customers abroad appeared to be expecting lower wheat prices later completion of the winter crop harvest.

An indication of damage to wheat as a result of too much moisture came during the week in an announcement by the Department of Agriculture that it was extending loan provisions of the price support program to high-moisture and sprout-damaged wheat.

This is the grade which has been coming to market in greatest volume and was reported to comprise a large percentage of receipts last Monday when Chicago received 932 cars, the heaviest arrivals for a single day this year.

BULL MARKET

Sixth Week Of Market Advances

NEW YORK (AP)—This stock market moved to within shouting distance of a historic bull market this week by running its string of weekly advances to six. The AP average of 60 stocks was at the highest level in a year.
Price boosts for steel, aluminum and copper helped jog the list out of a profit-taking mood. Both investment and speculative interest ran a temperature as the week's volume soared to 18,760,460 shares, most since the week ended last Oct. 26.
This helped boost July turnover to 69,496,464 shares, the heaviest for any month in 3 1/2 years and the greatest for any July since 1932.

An estimated 23 billion dollars was added to the quoted value of stocks listed on the New York Exchange in July, based on the rise in the AP average in that month.

During the past week, the AP 60-stock average rose $1.10 to $183.80. During July it rose $7.70. Another rise equivalent to that would put the average at the all-time bull market high of $191.50 reached on April 6, 1956.

The market dipped pretty sharply on Tuesday as profits were taken on steels, oils and rails but

NEXT CONGRESS

See New Attempt On Natural Gas Measure

WASHINGTON (AP)—Another natural gas bill apparently is about to come to its death, but talk already is being heard that a new attempt will be made to put such a measure through the next Congress.

Legislation to exempt natural gas producers from utility-type regulation by the federal government twice has cleared Congress only to run into presidential vetoes. The present bill is still on the House calendar but has little chance, if any, of being brought to a vote in the remaining days of the session.

"A gas bill should be reintroduced next year," Rep. Page Belcher (R-Okla.) said today. "We should never give up trying to enact into law a principle as right as that. As time goes on, a lot of people will find they have been misled by political propaganda."

2 New Oil Producing Areas Found

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Two new oil producing areas have been discovered in south Mississippi—in Franklin and Jones counties—this week.

Pan American Petroleum Corp. found a new Wilcox sand in southwest Franklin County and Larco Drilling Co. found a new lower Cretaceous zone in Jones County.

Pan American's Jack H. Ewing No. A-4 USA, Sec. 14-5N-1E, one mile southeast of Locust Hill field, flowed 124 barrels of 39 gravity oil daily from Baker zone at 4,606-23 feet.

Larco completed its Whitlington et al. No. 1, sec. 4-9N-1W, in North Jones County two miles southeast of Sharon gas field.

A week's work in the Mooringsport sand at 11,110 feet and the well flowed 77 barrels of 28 gravity oil daily.

No names have been selected for either of the two new producing areas.

In Pearl River County's Pistol Ridge field, D. A. Biglane and S. B. Laub tested the Mobley No. 1, sec. 3-1S-14W. The well was drilled 9,662 feet and perforations were made at 9,024-26 feet.

Simpson County's Martinville field, Central Oil Co. encountered considerable thickness of oil sand in the No. 1 unit 22-9, sec. 22-2N-5E, southwest diagonal offset to the discovery well.

Electric log showed 109 feet of oil sand in the Redessa and Sligo zones. Cores from the Hosston sand returned 154 feet of sand with oil shows.

Belcher's district produces much oil and gas.
"There is going to have to be another gas bill next year," said Rep. Tom Steed (D-Okla.), who also represents an oil and gas producing district.

Similar expressions came from other members of Congress from oil and gas areas.

"I believe that some who have opposed it may finally wake up and there may be more support for a gas bill next year," Steed said.

"The anti-natural gas bill to people have had their way and all they've got is higher prices to the consumer and to industry."

Steed said there appears to be considerable confusion at the Federal Power Commission about controls over independent gas producers whose gas goes into interstate pipelines. There is no way to clarify the existing situation except by congressional direction, he said.

Opponents of such legislation, many of them from eastern, northern and midwestern gas-consuming areas, have contended the effect would be higher prices to consumers.

ON GUARD — Mrs. Lomie Puckett, whose house is smack in the way of the new Golden State Freeway, under construction in California keeps guard over the property with a .30-caliber rifle. While bulldozers worked only 50 feet away, Mrs. Puckett sat on her porch and commented she wasn't going to be pushed around. The house, vacant since the state acquired land in the area last year, is one of 17 rental properties Mrs. Puckett, a widow, owns. She wants the state to increase its offer by several thousand dollars. (AP Wirephoto). (See Story Page One) late Saturday afternoon following the announcement of U. S. recognition of the new Iraqi government.

U. S. Ambassador Waldemar Galtman delivered a State Department message to Iraqi Foreign Minister Abdel Gabbar establishing the diplomatic relations only 19 days after the coup that overthrew the late King Faisal's regime.

Murphy, veteran U. S. diplomat "trouble-shooter," began a ground of talks with top Iraqi officials including Premier Abdul Kerim Kassam shortly after his arrival. No information on the talks was expected until Sunday, when Murphy was scheduled to leave for Cairo.

The United States, in recognizing the revolutionary regime, noted the Premier Abdul Karim Kassam's government had assured United Nations Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld it stand by the U. N. charter and other international obligations.

The note delivered here also extended the United States' "good wishes" to the Baghdad government. Ambassador Galtman said the Iraqi government was "very pleased at the American recognition. He said the Iraqi foreign minister has many years of close and friendly relations between the two countries.

(In Washington, informed sources said the United States granted recognition somewhat reluctantly because of fears Iraq would lean more in the direction of Soviet Union-United Arab Republic policy. But the sources said the United States still hopes to be able to work on a friendly basis with the present Iraqi government.

Diplomats in Beirut viewed the swift U. S. recognition as part of Western preparations for a Middle East summit conference. They also considered it a final repudiation of the Soviet government's charge last week that the United States and its allies were preparing "aggression" against the Baghdad government.)

Probers To Recall Teamster President

Dave Beck as international president of the union. McClellan recalled that Hoffa, although pleading loss of memory to many questions, made a promise to the committee "to clean this thing up." He said the new hearing would show whether he was "sincere."

Counterattack Is Launched By Bernard Goldfine man said this violated federal law and a court order issued three years ago when East Boston did not file similar reports.

Goldfine said in a statement released by one of his press agents here that he could not prepare the latest report because his files were in the hands of the House influence-investigating subcommittee which held hearings on his relationship with Sherman Adams, chief assistant to President Eisenhower.

Goldfine said East Boston's accountant, Benjamin Brown, turned over all his working records, balance sheets, and profit and loss statements in the subcommittee May 6, and subcommittee counsel Robert W. Lishman promised he would get them back "in a couple of weeks."

"This promise was not kept," Goldfine said. He said his aides twice asked when the papers would be returned, noting that the SEC report was due July 29, and as recently as July 23 were told they would be given back "in a few days."

Friday, Goldfine said, he received a letter from the SEC's general counsel, Thomas G. Meeker, stating the report was now overdue. Said Staff Knew

Goldfine said it was "inescapable" that the subcommittee staff "knew that it was preventing the East Boston company from filing this report by the required date."

He also charged that the SEC's swift action to notify him the report was overdue was "politically inspired since I am neither an officer nor director of the company, and in the normal course of business would never have received such notification."

"Am I never to be relieved of the role of political scapegoat?" he asked.

Boy Is Injured In Collision

A 9-year-old West Monroe youngster is "doing as well as can be expected" at Wright-Bendel Clinic, where he was taken after his bike and a truck collided.

Michael Windham, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Windham, 407 N. 6th St., West Monroe, suffered a broken leg in the mishap, in front of 305 N. 7th St.

sel Robert F. Kennedy told newsmen the committee has developed more information about matters touched on at the last hearing and uncovered some new material as well.

McClellan said the evidence "illustrates and reveals a policy of action" which Hoffa should explain both to the dues-paying public at large.

Kennedy said the new series of hearings on the teamsters would continue for at least three weeks and would draw in witnesses from several states.

Bastrop Negro Drowns In Bayou Bartholomew

BASTROP (Special) — An 18-year-old Bastrop Negro drowned early yesterday afternoon in Bayou Bartholomew on the Bonita Road.

He was identified as Ira Cage. The Morehouse Parish Civil Defense rescue unit recovered the body from 15 feet of water at 1:45 p.m., about 45 minutes after the drowning. Coroner Dr. Smith I. Sims gave a verdict of accidental drowning.

An unidentified Negro woman who was fishing on the bayou said the youth went out into the water to take a bath and stepped off into deep water.

His mother is Bessie Tinkshell of the Bonita Road.

Fire Chief Woody Woodall directed the rescue operation.

Mrs. Gholson Dies At 83; Rites Incomplete

Child Bruised In Accident At Jonesville

JONESVILLE (Special) — A 5-year-old Jonesville girl apparently escaped serious injury yesterday when she was involved in an accident in front of her home at 6:15 p.m.

Town Marshal T. H. Tolar identified the girl as George Ann Owens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Owens.

Tolar said eyewitnesses reported that the child darted from behind a parked car into the path of a vehicle driven by a Ferriday man. Officials identified him as Jack S. Aswell.

Removal Of U.S. Troops Is Hinted

term expires September 23, since it is expected that Chehab will request the withdrawal of American forces as soon as he assumes the presidency.

The American government wants President Chamoun to serve out his term because he is unlikely to demand any hasty withdrawal of the U. S. forces.

The situation in both Lebanon and Jordan is considered in official circles in London to be still so uncertain that anything could happen.

It is not that Soviet military intervention is feared. Allied intelligence has reported no signs of any Russian military build-up that would indicate preparations for possible intervention. The recent Russian sabre-rattling on the Turkish frontier has been interpreted partly as a propaganda move and partly as genuine Soviet concern over the landing of what was, in effect, an American expeditionary force in Turkey.

What is feared is a Communist or pro-Nasser incited incident in Lebanon or Jordan that would involve the American and British forces in serious fighting.

This Cat Tale Has New Twist

The usual tale about people trying to get rid of their cats now has a new twist. One Monroe resident wants two of her kittens back.

Mrs. Annie Lee Stahl, better known as Lady Stahl at North-east State College, where she instructs, says that two of her pet cat "Smudge's" three little kittens have vanished from her home, 306 S. College Ave.

All three disappeared three weeks ago, at the same time that "Pumpkin" Lady Stahl's yellow cat, showed up with a bullet wound in the leg.

"One little black one came back but the other black one and the gray one haven't been seen. Smudge wouldn't eat for a while... she just prowled around, meowing," Lady Stahl said.

Is there a kitten-napper in Monroe?

Cafe Burglary Reported Here

W. T. Stroughton, Negro owner of Willie T's Cafe, 3418 Renwick St., told Monroe police yesterday that burglars had broken into the storeroom of his cafe.

He said an assortment of whisky was taken in the Friday night burglary.

Coroner Dr. John P. Burton gave a verdict of homicide, and stated that Dale succumbed from internal hemorrhage, caused by the gunshot wound.

Banks is charged with firing a .38 caliber pistol at Dale, police said.

Witnesses said that Banks entered the cafe, walked up to Dale, and challenged him that Dale "didn't think Banks would fire the pistol."

Banks then fired twice in quick succession, first into the floor and then at Dale, witnesses added. The cafe was filled with patrons at the time.

They said that Banks then ran out, firing the pistol into the air three times as he dashed up the street.

State Police
State Police from Troop F sighted Banks on Highway 80 west, at daybreak, and halted him. They said they found a concealed weapon on him and arrested him on a concealed weapons charge.

Returning to headquarters, State Police turned Banks over to the Monroe Police Department. He was charged with murder and transferred to the Ouachita Parish jail according to officials.

Police had not completed investigation or questioning of witnesses late last night, but said that the investigation would be complete today.

Mother, Baby Resting Well After Collision

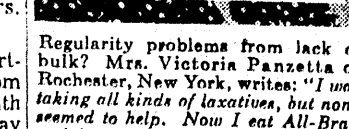

A West Monroe mother and her 1-year-old baby girl are in good condition following injuries which they received in a 2-vehicle collision at North 10th and Wilson Streets in West Monroe.

Mrs. Pauline Hayden, 33, suffered a broken front tooth, and extensive bruises of the legs and face, while her daughter, Amelia Ann Hayden, received several large bruises.

Both were x-rayed by a private physician, but no bones were broken in the accident, which occurred Friday.

West Monroe Police who investigated said that Milton C. Hayden, 34, of 1109 Wilson St., was driving east on Wilson, when a car driven by Troy Patrick, 29, of 1317 Evergreen St., West Monroe, failed to halt for a stop sign and entered the intersection of North 10th and Wilson.

The cars collided, damaging the right side of the Patrick vehicle and the front of Hayden's auto. Patrick was charged with reckless driving and causing a wreck.

ald E. Kehoe who has written extensively on flying saucers, quoted Rep. Ralph H. Scott (D-N.C.) in support of the demand for more information.

Scott said: "The general public should be allowed information thus far known about flying objects except, of course, in the case where they might become unduly alarmed or panicked by such a revelation."

"If this information could be presented to the American people in such a way as to appeal to reason and not to emotion, I think it would be a good thing."

City Bus, Auto Collide; All Escape Injury

A City of Monroe bus and an auto collided at the intersection of Grammont and Hall streets at 11:15 yesterday morning, but both drivers and the bus passengers escaped injury.

Monroe police who investigated, charged Mrs. Martha P. Stevens, Route 2, Box 217, with reckless driving, after she failed to halt at a stop sign at the intersection.

No damage to her car was reported by police. They listed about $25 damage to the bus, driven by James C. Richardson, 45, of 1000 S. Third St.

a truck behind to be consumed by the fire.

The explosions at suburban Deodoro set off speculation that saboteurs might have ignited the ammunition to reduce the potency of the Brazilian army's First Infantry Division.

Maj. Gen. Jair Dantas, commander of the division, said at least 12 of the 50 underground magazines at the dump had been reduced to rubble, a loss that will amount to millions of dollars.

Dantas said military authorities suspected sabotage and an investigation was launched immediately.

The military guard who discovered the first fire was among the first questioned. His alertness was credited with saving many lives, for the ammunition dump and surrounding buildings were vacated hastily soon after the explosions began.

Silva said the ammunition dump had been stocked with a wide variety of shells, detonators and dynamite. The largest shells that blew up were 155 millimeter in size.

About 30,000 persons living within a three-mile radius of the dump were asked to leave. Their flight was "generally orderly, but some panic was noted," Silva said.

Lula Bates of 1008½ Oak St. lodged the complaint. Soon after, Noble Robinson, Negro, 22, of 109 8th St., was taken into custody and charged with the burglary, officials said.

TO PERFECT DEFENSES

Reason For Nuclear Test Is Revealed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson said Saturday that Friday's nuclear missile test in the Pacific was aimed at perfecting defenses against both high-flying enemy bombers and intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Some scientists believe neutrons, the nuclear particles which trigger atomic fission explosions, might provide one kind of defense against incoming missiles.

High Energy Neutrons
A mezon blast like the envisaged by Jackson would generate swarms of high energy neutrons capable of traveling great distances in airless space. Such neutrons theoretically could trigger an ICBM warhead prematurely while the missile was harmlessly far from target.

Heat rays from the explosion also would have more range and be much more energetic than the same radiation within the atmosphere. Some scientists believe this nuclear heat might be great enough to melt an enemy missile.

Others have said the "shrapnel effect" of an exploding anti-missile missile would have considerable lethal range. There has been talk of laying "sand traps" in space in which incoming missiles might tear themselves to pieces. In addition to its warhead the anti-missile missile would lug aloft a payload of sand or metal bits which would be scattered broadside by the explosion.

Jackson confirmed that the intensity and "kill range" of nuclear radiations is expected to be far greater in space than within the atmosphere.

Scientists have done much theoretical work on the effects of nuclear explosions above the atmosphere, but Jackson said tests were necessary to confirm their findings and discover possibly unsuspected facts.

Theoretically an atomic explosion at the edge of space could produce no appreciable shock and no air blast, for the simple reason there is no air to conduct this kind of violence.

But the many radiations generated by nuclear reactions should for the same reason be far more

Two inmates died Friday night and 34 others who drank a duplicator fluid containing deadly wood alcohol were hospitalized to day.

Doctors at two hospitals where the reformatory inmates were taken from Buena Vista said wood alcohol, a central nervous system poison with no known specific antidote, has a delayed effect. They said the inmates who drank the noxious fluid would not be out of danger for 72 hours.

Carlton Corley, 20, of Houston, Tex., died at the Rio Grande Hospital here at 11 p.m. Conrad Johnson, 20, Colorado Springs, died soon after.

Warden Wayne K. Patterson said at Buena Vista, 26 miles north of Salida, that he was not sure all the hospitalized young men had drunk the duplicator fluid.

Power Visits In Mississippi
TUNICA, Miss. (UPI) — Actor Tyrone Power and his wife, the former Deborah Minard of Tunica, arrived here Friday for a brief visit with Mrs. Power's parents before going to Spain for filming of a new picture.

The couple will go to Memphis Sunday, to catch a plane for New York, where they will leave for Spain.

Fans might have a hard time recognizing Power. The actor is sporting a beard, grown for the forthcoming movie, "Solomon and Sheba."

Cangelosi Heads La. State Board

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The Louisiana State University Board of Supervisors Saturday promoted vice-chairman Theo Cangelosi to a two-year term as chairman.

The 46-year-old Baton Rouge attorney succeeds George Baillio of Lake Charles, who resigned from the board a few weeks ago due to ill health.

John Doles, 63, of Plain Dealing, was elected vice chairman and Mrs. Margaret Dixon, managing editor of the Baton Rouge Morning Advocate, re-elected secretary.

Cangelosi, accepting the post, said he felt the next two years could be "two of the most important in LSU history."

He pointed out during the period the University will open a new branch in New Orleans, open a new 3.5 million dollar library, select a new president to replace Troy Middleton who retires next year and celebrate its 100th anniversary.

In other action, the board: 1. Adopted a $20,368 budget for the new school year, a $638,500 increase over last year, but almost 1.5 million dollars below funds requested from the Legislature. 2. Approved 550 degrees to be awarded Friday at summer commencement.

3. Named the new men's dormitory schedule to open for the fall term "George Mason Graham Hall" in memory of a former Louisiana planter, state adjutant general who helped found the institution and served 30 years on the LSU Board of Supervisors.

4. Accepted $312,375 in gifts and grants.

5. Voted a study of LSU's fire and extensive coverage insurance program after hearing a report that the insurance company refuses to pay more than $8,800 for fire loss when the band building was destroyed last spring. LSU figures the replacement cost at $38,000.

6. Accepted the $3,912 bonus offered by Magnolia Petroleum Co. for a mineral lease on 141 acres of the Red River experiment station in Bossier Parish.

7. Ratified appointments of 24 members of the faculty for LSU in New Orleans, scheduled to open in September.

"Everyone has been agreeably surprised at the caliber of the men we've been able to get for the New Orleans branch," Middleton commented.

Cangelosi suggested special ceremonies when the new branch opens its doors Sept. 12, and the board agreed.

Cangelosi has served on the LSU board since 1950.

A 1930 LSU graduate, he was student council president and won the award as best debater in his senior year. He was graduated from the LSU law school in 1934.

A state representative from East Baton Rouge Parish 1940-44, Cangelosi currently serves as general counsel for the Greater Baton Rouge Port Commission and special counsel for the Louisiana Public Service Commission on the Southern Bell Telephone Co. rate case.

Doles, president of the First State Bank of Plain Dealing, also was named to the board in 1950. He is a former president of the LSU Alumni Federation and served 1952-56 in the state Senate.

Entering LSU in 1913, Doles did not graduate until 1921, due to military service during World War One.

A member of the Bossier Parish School Board for a number of years, he served as president for eight years and also was president of the Louisiana School Boards Assn.

Mrs. Dixon was named to the LSU board in 1951. After graduating from LSU in

Manslaughter Trial Will Open Monday

WATER VALLEY, Miss. (AP) — The manslaughter trial of Yabusha County Sheriff J. G. (Buster) Treloar, charged with beating a Negro prisoner fatally, opens Monday with selection of a jury from a special 80-man venire.

Treloar pleaded innocent Wednesday to causing the death of Woodrow W. Daniels, 37-year-old Negro deliveryman. Daniels died in a Memphis, Tenn., hospital July 1. He had been released from jail June 22.

The 36-year-old sheriff said the Negro "walked out of jail that Sunday."

Daniels' wife removed him to a Memphis hospital where physicians said he died of a blood clot. They were unable to determine immediately whether the clot was caused by a stroke or by injuries.

Daniels had been jailed June 21

1928, she worked for the Baton Rouge State-Times and Morning Advocate, the New Orleans Times-Picayune and the New Orleans Item.

on charges of drunkenness, reckless driving and possession of whisky.

A white couple, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Vaughn of Water Valley, in jail on charges of forgery which were dropped, testified at Treloar's arraignment that they saw him beat the Negro three times, slapping him against the bars and hitting him on the head.

Maury Fly, Daniels' white employer, testified he tried to post bond for the Negro the night he was arrested but that Treloar refused to accept it. Bond was posted the next day and Daniels was released.

Daniels' relatives accused the sheriff of causing the Negro's death and Treloar invited the investigation that led to his being charged with manslaughter.

Gov. J. P. Coleman has remained out of the case, saying it is a matter for the county to handle.

She Knew How To Handle Him

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Policewoman Almira McElroy, 33 and five feet, four inches tall, said she saw Preston McConnell, 59, grab a 9-year-old girl Friday. When she told the five-foot-eleven McConnell he was under arrest, he hit her with the heel of my hand—you know, the heavy part of the hand—on the forehead and stunned him so I could tie him up," she explained. She tied him with her belt.

McConnell denied grabbing the child. He was booked on suspicion of child molestation, general peace disturbance, and resisting arrest.

20 Bills Are Set For Solons

WASHINGTON (AP)—About 20 major bills—some certain to be passed and others highly controversial—stand between the 85th Congress and final adjournment. Some congressional leaders said they hope the 1958 session can close shop a week from Saturday. But many lawmakers seemed to think Aug. 15 or 16 is a more reasonable target.

Bills on three politically explosive subjects—federal aid to education, social security, and foreign aid—appear to hold the key to the get-away date.

The House on Thursday passed 375-2 a complex measure to boost social security insurance benefits seven per cent as well as the taxes to pay for them.

The Senate Finance Committee, which handles such legislation, is faced with a heavy work load in the adjournment rush. Some members said they would bring up the House social security bill Monday when the group meets on other legislation.

President Eisenhower has asked the Senate to restore the entire 597 million dollars but by the House from the $3,078,000,000 foreign aid bill. The Senate Appropriations Committee may act on this Tuesday.

The education bill, including college scholarships and measures to improve teaching in elementary and high schools, has not passed either branch.

The House version is awaiting Rules Committee clearance, which may come Tuesday. The Senate Labor Committee hopes to complete work on a similar bill early in the week. Both carry more than a billion dollars in federal grant and loan funds.

Aside from the education measure, the House has yet to act on these major pieces of legislation: Eisenhower's request for a further increase in the debt limit to 288 billion dollars. It has been approved by the Ways and Means Committee.

A Senate-passed farm bill loosening acreage controls and lowering price supports on cotton, rice, corn, and feed grains. The House Agriculture Committee approved a revised version Friday.

A Senate-passed bill carrying 375 million dollars in federal grant and loan funds to aid depressed areas.

A Senate bill setting up a new federal aviation agency.

A Senate-passed bill carrying

$2,475,000,000 for a variety of housing programs.

A Senate bill providing for public disclosure of data on pension and welfare funds. A different version is awaiting House debate.

The Senate has on its program these additional measures:

Two bulky House-passed tax bills, one making numerous changes in excise levies and the other revising general revenue laws. Both have been approved by the Finance Committee.

A House-passed $3,131,000,000 supplemental money bill, with the bulk of the funds for the Atomic Energy Commission.

A House-passed small business tax relief bill pending in the Finance Committee.

A bill restoring to states the right to enforce antisubversive laws. The House has passed broader legislation in this field.

WEAKFISH ISN'T
ALBANY, N.Y. —(UPI)—The weakfish isn't as anemic as its name indicates.

The New York State Conservation Department says the weakfish "hits like a ton of bricks when he's hooked and squirms and twists with lightning speed."

The weakfish derived its name from the Dutch. It means a "soft fish" to distinguish it from the usual flaky kind.

Dept. Heads' Wages Up In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Pay raises ranging from $350 to $4,000 a year have started going to the heads of nearly every major department in Mississippi government.

The increases, totaling more than $150,000 a year, were authorized by the 1958 Legislature beginning July 1 as compensation for rising costs of living as well as to attract and hold qualified personnel.

The largest raise—$4,000 a year—went to the commissioner of public welfare, boosting his salary from $6,000 to $10,000.

The smallest raise—$350 a year—went to the director of the Department of Archives and History, boosting that salary from $7,150 to $7,500 a year, the smallest amount paid a department head.

That $350 raise is unique not only because it is the smallest increase but also because it went to the only female—Miss Charlotte Capers—who heads a major state department.

The highest salary under the new pay schedule goes to the chief justice of the State Supreme Court. His salary was raised from $13,500 to $14,500 a year.

The presiding justice was raised from $12,500 to $13,625 and the other seven justices from $12,500 to $13,500.

Because of constitutional bans against raising the salary of Supreme Court justices during their terms of office, the Legislature required the justices to perform extra duties and authorized the additional money for those duties.

Chancery and Circuit Court judges also received an increase—from $9,000 to $11,000 a year—but the raise does not become effective until the next term of office begins Jan. 1, 1959. These judges also are forbidden by the Constitution to receive increases or decreases in pay during their terms.

In addition to pay raises for department heads, the Legislature ordered salary increases for various employees, such as game wardens, certain secretaries, and the like.

But the raise that hits most state officers and employees is the boost in travel expenses from 6 to 7 cents a mile, bringing the remuneration for travel more in line with actual cost.

Three officers were raised to $12,500 a year. They, and their former salaries, were: state bank comptroller, $10,000; state health officer, $9,350; and chairman of the state tax commission, $9,350.

The attorney general was raised from $10,000 to $11,000 a year and his assistants from $8,000 to $9,500.

The three highway commissioners were raised from $6,600 to $10,000.

State officers earning $8,250 a year under the old pay scale—secretary of state, state auditor, state treasurer, commissioner of agriculture, insurance commissioner, superintendent of education and state land commissioner—were raised to $10,000.

Officers boosted to $9,000 or more included: Adjutant general, from $7,500 to $9,600; motor vehicle comptroller, from $7,700 to $9,600; commissioner of public safety, from $7,000 to $9,500; director of the state department of audit, from $7,600 to $9,000; and state forester, from $6,000 to $9,000.

The state veterinarian was raised from $7,500 to $9,500 and the chief of the highway patrol from $6,000 to $8,500.

The assistant motor vehicle comptroller was boosted from $6,600 to $8,000 and bank examiners from $6,000 to $7,500.

The director of civil defense, for whom no money was appropriated during the 1956-58 biennium, was authorized a salary of $7,200 a year.

During the past two years, Hendrix Dawson received his salary from the federal government for his work as state civil defense director.

The state librarian was raised from $5,500 to $6,250 and the Supreme Court clerk from $5,000 to $6,000.

County supervisors also were given a new salary schedule. The new scale is based on the assessed valuation of the counties and ranges from $3,000 to $6,600 a year.

The old schedule ranged from $2,500 to $5,600 a year with no apparent reason for the amounts.

A move to boost the salary of the governor from $15,000 to $20,000—beginning with the next governor's term in 1960—died in the House of Representatives.

Says Church Bows To Reds

WARSAW (UPI) — The Communist news agency Pap said tonight the Roman Catholic Church in Poland had bowed to Communist government pressure and agreed to submit all religious publications to state censorship.

The official news agency said Stefan Cardinal Wyszyński's episcopate also had agreed to remove all printing presses and duplicating machines from monasteries and other places of traditional religious sanctuary from civil authority.

The 70-word communique is cited by Pap did not give a source for the information. However, it followed a series of top-secret meetings this week between high representatives of church and state.

FIRST IN SAFETY

ALAMEDA, Calif. — (UPI) — Workers at the Lister pencil company plant here are hanging up an industrial safety record that may be hard to top. The factory has gone 10 years without a single accident that forced a worker to miss a day on the job, according to the California Department of Industrial Relations.

Murder Trial Opens Monday In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Trial opens Monday with selection of a jury for a 23-year-old finance company executive charged with murder in the slaying of his attractive secretary and attempted suicide.

Robert A. Quinnelly, one-eyed and partially blind as a result of a bullet wound in the head, is accused of shooting 20-year-old Mrs. Sammie New Renfro in her apartment Feb. 8.

Officers said they believed Mrs. Renfro, whose estranged husband was in the Army at the time of the slaying, was killed because she did not return Quinnelly's love.

Mrs. Renfro's body was found on the floor of the small apartment. Quinnelly, shot in the head, was lying on the bed.

Among witnesses subpoenaed are Chief of Detectives M. B. Pierce, police identification officer Ralph Hargrove, Dr. William Featherston, who performed the autopsy, and Mrs. Jane Simmons Soriano, a neighbor who found the body.

Defense Atty. Hugh Cunningham has subpoenaed 28 witnesses.

Officials of Circuit Judge Leon Hendrick's court estimate the trial will last about a week.

Bitter Letters Are Received By Race Judges

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Crank mail is pouring in on the 8th Circuit Court of Appeals which will hear an appeal in the Little Rock school integration case Monday.

Every day brings more letters, mainly from the South. Robert C. Tucker, clerk of the appellate court, says they are bitter and frequently vicious.

Some are addressed to the court; others to the seven judges. The judges are reluctant to discuss the crank mail. Some won't even admit they read it.

Regardless, the bundle of letters mounts. It will be quite a stack when the judges convene Monday in a small courtroom in the Federal Building to hear arguments on a U.S. District Court's order postponing integration at the Little Rock Central High School for two and one-half years.

The delay was granted by U.S. Dist. Judge Harry L. Lemley of Hope, Ark., at the request of the school board. Lemley said he granted it to provide a "peaceful interlude." Federal troops were used last year to enforce the integration.

World Crude Oil Drops

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Free-world crude oil production during May dropped to the lowest point for any month this year or in 1957, the Oil and Gas Journal reported.

Free-world output totaled 14,699,500 barrels daily during the month compared with 14,815,000 a month earlier and 15,849,200 barrels daily during May, 1957.

Production in the U. S. dropped to 6,233,000 barrels compared with 6,287,000 barrels the previous month. Venezuela's output dropped to 2,478,200 barrels in May while April output totaled 2,507,700 barrels daily.

Canada, Indonesia, Kuwait, and Iran showed small losses. Middle East output declined despite gains in Iraq and Saudi Arabia.

TVA Lock Is Near Completion

KNOXVILLE (UPI)—The Tennessee Valley Authority's new Lock in Wilson Dam at Muscle Shoals, Ala., is now about 75 per cent completed, the TVA announced Saturday.

The work was begun July 2, 1956 and is scheduled to go into operation in June, 1959.

The lock will have a single lift of 100 feet, the highest in the world. An average river tow, which now must negotiate three locks requiring more than five hours, will be able to go through the lock between Pickwick Lake and Wilson Lake in less than one hour.

Venturi Doubles Chicago Lead With 2nd Round 67; January 2 Strokes Away

CHICAGO (AP) — Ken Venturi and his newly-found putting touch mastered the exacting Gleneagles golf course with a second round of 67 Saturday to take a two-stroke lead at the halfway mark of the $50,000 Chicago Open.

The slender 27-year-old pro from San Francisco coupled his 34-33-67 with his leading first round of 65 for 132—eight under par.

Don January of Eastland, Tex., former North Texas State College star who has been blowing hot and cold in the pro ranks, smashed into second place with a 66 for 134.

January, 27, who hasn't won a major event since the 1956 Dallas Centennial Open, capped his second round by holding out an 80-yard wedge shot from the rough for an eagle 2 on the 18th.

The original field of 157 chasing the $9,000 top prize was cut to low 100 and lies after the second round.

The crowd-pleasing Venturi quipped after his 67:

"Well, at least I'll survive the cut."

Venturi, fifth among the PGA money winners with $21,870, has been in a slump, mainly because of putting, and has finished in the top only twice in his last 13 tournaments.

Prior to the skid he had won the Thunderbird Invitational, Phoenix and Baton Rouge opens.

He hit 16 greens in par, missed only two fairways and had no three-putt greens in his second round.

Ken drove the 285-yard eighth hole for a birdie, stuck a No. 2 iron a foot from the pin for a birdie on the 210-yard 12th, reached the long 13th in two for another birdie, and dropped a 15-foot putt for his third straight birdie on the 14th.

His only bad hole was the 15th, where he skulled a nine-iron from the rough over the green and ended up with a bogey 5.

Among the early finishers, two shared second place at 137. They were 22-year-old Bunky Johnson of Abilene, Tex., former national small college champion while at Lamar Tech, in Beaumont and Johannesburg's Gary Player. Player had a second round of 68 and Johnson had 67.

Bob Harris of Chicago went from an opening 66 to a 72 to drop off the pace.

Dick Mayer, the 1957 National Open champion, called a penalty stroke on himself and carded a 72 for 142.

On the 14th green, Mayer's ball moved slightly as he was going to address it. Mayer hadn't touched it.

"None of us saw the ball move," said Venturi, who was in the threesome with Mayer. "But on the next tee, Mayer told us of taking a stroke penalty. It's things like this that make this a great game."

In the greatest comeback of the PGA tournament season, Billy Casper claimed a 33-31—64 to go with his horrendous opening 80. Casper, second leading money winner, included a 10 on one hole for his 80 Friday.

Bidding strongly was veteran Ted Kroll who authored 33-33—66 for a 135 total. Kroll doctored two par three holes, hit 16 greens in regulation and had six one-putt greens.

Also bracketed at 135 were Jack Burke with a second round 67 and Doug Sanders with a 68.

Casper's 64, one over the course record, was the lowest card of the tournament thus far. Ernie Vossler of Midland, Tex., fired a 65, and three others posted 66—Kroll, January and J.C. Goosie.

National Open champion Tommy Bolt and PGA winner Dow Finsterwald were among those clustered at 142. Masters' titlist Arnold Palmer was buried at 145.

UPSET DAY

Favorites Lose Colonial Touch

MEMPHIS (AP)—Every favorite lost his putting touch Saturday in Colonial Invitational match play that was laced with bedouining upsets.

National Amateur champion Hillman Robbins of Memphis was dumped by Gene Dahlbender of Atlanta in the day's biggest reversal. Robbins was defending champion.

But that wasn't all. Also eliminated were Mason Rudolph, Clarksville, Tenn.; Ed Brantly, Chattanooga; Curtis Person Sr., Memphis; Don Bispilghoff, Orlando, Fla.; Charlie Harrison, Atlanta; and Frank Wharton, Dallas.

The treacherous greens of the 6,425-acre 34-34—70 Colonial Country Club course permitted no irruptions.

The semifinal survivors were Jim Tom Blair III of St. Louis, son of Missouri's governor; Jackie Nicklaus of Columbus, Ohio, the tournament medalist; Jerry Blair of Dallas, the ace of the Southern Methodist squad; and Tommy Aaron, bespectacled Gainesville, Ga., husky from the University of Florida.

TRONCOSO QUELLS UPRISING

Jefferson Edges Monroe For Little League Title

Left-hander Art Troncoso stalked in from first base to smother a last-inning rally and preserve Ward 7 of Jefferson's 4-7 victory over Monroe's Northside All-Stars in the state Little League championship.

The Monroe uprising in the bottom of the sixth, highlighted by Pete Terzoulas' two-run homer over the center field fence, died with the tying run on first base. The locals had finally chased starter and winner Richard Miller with Terzoulas' blast and Troncoso took over with the bases-clean and one out.

The little pitcher walked the first batter to face him, Johnny Reitzell, putting the potential deadlocking tally on base. Then Troncoso made Jimmy Balsamo force Reitzell at second for the second out with Balsamo taking first on the fielder's choice. Troncoso then faced Johnny Sargel, who had produced Monroe's first run in the third with a roundtripper. He fanned him, wasting only one pitch, for the final out.

Four homers were hit in the game, played at Bendel Stadium, and the losers got three of them but they couldn't make them go far enough. Monroe also got the most hits, 6 to 3, but botched the game away with 7 errors to only one for the victors.

Jefferson kayaked starter Terzoulas in the first inning with four runs, three of them on Joe Matrangas' fence-clearing shot to left center. Frank Miltid took over after the homer and lasted until the fifth when Tommy Sparks came on.

Matrangas, leading off with a single, scored the fifth Jefferson run in the fourth, coming in on an error. The visitors got three more in the fifth with Richard Myers, 2B, Miller, winner-Miller; Terzoulas, 1B; and May, 3B, hitting home runs. Terzoulas, 1B, hit a 450-foot homer in the fifth.

Miller breezed through the first three innings with hitless pitching but Sargel brought that to a screaming halt with his homer to lead off the fourth. James "Skeeter" Ritter scored the second run of the inning via a walk, a wild pitch, a passed ball and an error.

Monroe had its best frame in the fifth when they pushed over three tallies. Tommy Sparks' two-run homer was the big blow of the inning, coming after Reitzell had scored the first run on a fielder's choice.

In the sixth, Davis Bennett fied out to third to lead off. Don Johnson then singled and came home on Terzoulas' homer as the local fans roared. Then came fireman Troncoso to quell the flames and end the game.

Matrangas was the only batter in the game to get more than one hit. He got 2-3.

Paul Martin Looks 'Em Over

When Frankie Albert issued his training rules for the San Francisco Forty-Niners it reestablished our faith in a belief that athletes, as such, should practice certain restrictions that place them on a plane other than that of other men—or boys.

Albert's order of clean living for his professional gridders with no smoking, no drinking, no late hours, no gambling, and no slumming can well be heeded by the athlete of any age, anywhere, in any sport.

An athlete who depends on sports for his living, or, if an amateur, for the glory of his school and teammates, should abide by these rules regardless of whether or not he plays for the Forty-Niners or the high school down the street. Persistent fractures of such training rules abort athletic careers and hurt team morale.

Albert told his charges NEVER to be seen smoking in public as "you are recognized anywhere. Youngsters and grownups alike idolize you." We couldn't help thinking about the occasional athlete on our own scene who is seen breaking what are known training rules. Possibly he thinks there's none among those present who know him and it's okay as long as the coach is not around. But he's mistaken. There are those that know. He only lowers any esteem previously held for him.

We have often wondered, even for the money, how an athlete can permit his name to be associated with promotions dealing with "the vices" considered detrimental to training.

Our high school and college coaches too often are judged by whether or not they are building winning teams. One of their finest assets in development of youth is their demands for clean living and good training habits.

The best thing about the Jim Coats coaching transfer is that he and his family aren't being transplanted. They're still very much a part of Monroe—just graduating from high school to college, so to speak.

When Northeast State finally got around to announcing Coats had been lured away from Neville High to join the staff of Jack Rowan, new Tribal head coach in his first season at Northeast, it wasn't news anymore. Just about everybody concerned knew many days earlier that Coats was leaving Neville to join Northeast. The same was true in the case of Coach Rowan and there were few concerned who couldn't tell you Rowan had the job sewed up as successor to the late Devone Payne well before the official announcement.

It is no fault of the local college officials that these "news announcements" are pretty well tattered by the time they're ready for release. It's the red tape involved in everybody concerned on the home scene approving an applicant, everybody knowing its cut and dried, but needing the "official stamp of approval" from the state board of education, which doesn't meet every day, before they can tell folks what they already know.

Speedway Auto Racing Slated This Afternoon

The Twin City Speedway, West Monroe's half mile automobile racing oval, will conduct its usual Sunday afternoon stock car racing program today with many cars due to run in two classifications.

Trophies for two special events will be awarded today by Doc's Esso Service and People's Loan Service.

The racing program will get underway at 1 o'clock with Royce Whitlock taking the target as area racers try the rare feat of beating the area champion driver.

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Effective relief pitching by Dick Hyde thwarted Kansas City for the second straight time as the Washington Senators beat the Athletics 6-3 Saturday night.

Roy Sievers hit his 28th home run in the sixth inning.

The submarine ball right-hander notched his ninth victory by pitching out of tough situations in both the seventh and eighth innings. Double plays helped him both times.

DOUBLE FOR DAVIS

Yank Men, Polish Girls Win Meet

WARSAW (AP) — American track and field men made it two straight in their "big nation" challenge tour Saturday, outscoring Poland's national team 115-97.

The 18-point victory over the surprisingly strong Poles exceeded by a bare point the U.S. men's 126-109 victory over Russia at Moscow last Sunday and Monday.

American women lost to the favored Polish girls, 54-52, after leading until the final event. Then a first and third in the javelin gave the Polish misses their close victory. Russian women defeated the U.S. girls 63-44 in Moscow.

Unlike the U.S.-Russia meet, points from the separate men's and women's competitions were not combined here for an overall win.

On this basis, heavily criticized by the U.S. coaches, Russia won last week end's meet, 172-170. Combining the points here would have meant a 167-151 U.S. overall victory.

Glenn Davis, versatile Ohio State star, sparked the men's push to victory before another sell-out, standing room crowd of 105,000 at Tenth Anniversary Stadium.

Davis, who won two gold medals and shared in two others at Moscow, completed another double by streaking to victory in the 400-meter hurdles in 49.8 seconds. Friday he won the 400-meter run and thus matched his Moscow double.

Altogether, five American national records and four Polish marks were bettered in the impressive windup of this two-day event. It turned Warsaw into a carnival town.

Ferriday Hosts Boys' Tourney

FERRIDAY, La. (Special) — The cream of the crop from the 21 leagues and 131 teams in the state will gather in Ferriday this week for the 1958 Louisiana Little Boys Baseball State Tournament. All-Star teams from the four tournament districts throughout the state will join host team Ferriday in competing for the state championship and a berth in the Little Boys Baseball Dixie World Series which will be held in Columbus, Mississippi, August 18-23 inclusive.

Teams competing in the state finals, along with Ferriday, will be District 1, West Monroe Southside; district 2, Winnboro; district 3, not decided as this tournament is still in progress at Alexandria; district 4, Houma.

The week-long Little Boys Baseball program will officially start at 11 a.m. Monday morning with a state meeting of Louisiana directors and league presidents. Registration of players will begin with a luncheon for all players, managers and special guests.

At 4:30 p.m., Miss Vivian Barrard, the 1958 Louisiana State Little Boys Baseball tournament queen, will lead a parade through downtown Ferriday followed by the four district champions, Ferriday's All-Star team, the Ferriday League's Half-Star team, the Ferriday National and American Minor League All-Star teams, and floats representing the 10 teams participating in the Ferriday Little Boys baseball program.

Activities will continue at the Ferriday Little Boys Baseball Park, site of the tournament, at 6 p.m. with the pre-game ceremony which will officially open the tournament. Ferriday's mayor, Woody Davis, and local league president and Louisiana state director, George Perry, will give the welcome. Reverend H. A. Stages, pastor of the First Church of God in Ferriday, will give the invocation. All of the five competing teams will be presented on the field prior to the playing of the National Anthem.

The first five days of playing action will get underway Monday night with Ferriday clashing with the Alexandria tournament winner at 6:30 p.m. West Monroe Southside and Winnboro collide in the 8 p.m.

Houma, the south Louisiana champion, drew a bye in the first round of play and will meet the winner of Monday night's second game on Tuesday at 8 p.m. Tuesday night's curtain-raiser will see Monday's losers battle to survive elimination from the tourney. The winner of the tournament opening will draw a bye and will not see action again until Wednesday night at 9 p.m.

At least eight and possibly nine games will be played before the Louisiana champions can be crowned. On Thursday, preceding the semi-final playoff at 8 p.m. the Ferriday and Winnboro Half-Star teams will engage in a district encounter at 6:30 p.m. Ferriday's two Minor League teams, the day's All-Star team, the Ferriday meet in the final game of their three game series to determine the 1958 Minor League city champion. The city championship tournament championship game at 8 p.m.

Germany Rejoins Bulldog Cagers

RUSTON, Aug. (Special) — There's some good news for Louisiana Tech basketball enthusiasts and bad news for Tech cage opponents!

Raymond Germany, standout center and all-Gulf States conference performer for Tech two years ago who had to sit out last year with an eye injury, has a clear path from a physician to resume participation in sports.

The six-foot, five-inch Germany, a prep star at Holly Ridge, will be switched to a forward post, according to Coach Cecil Crowley.

Opponents this year who try to team up on Jack Moreland, Tech scoring whiz, may find that Germany's scoring antics will put an end to such tactics.

If Germany can come anywhere near his form of two years ago, he will bolster the Tech chances in the GSC basketball race—which is reported to be a dog-eat-dog affair.

While Moreland wiped out most Tech scoring marks last fall, Germany didn't do too badly during his last season, the 1956-57 campaign.

Last year, Moreland racked up 602 points, averaging 24.1 points per game and hitting on 42.4 per cent of his shots from the field. He also grabbed 348 rebounds, an average of 13.9 per tilt.

In his last campaign, Germany scored 414 points, averaging 16.6 points per game and hitting on 36.6 per cent of his attempts from the field. Germany snatched 204 rebounds for an average of 8.1 per contest.

Coach Crowley, although jubilant over Germany's okay to resume playing, said it will take time to see how the year layoff affects his former star performer.

Totalling Moreland's record for 1957-58 and Germany's for 1956-57, they scored a total of 1,016 points an average of 40.7 points per game. Together, they averaged 22 rebounds per game.

Should they match those totals in 1958-59, it would provide plenty of headaches for Tech opposition. Doyan Foster, El Dorado, letterman guard on the Tech grid team, has also been given clearance by the doctor to resume playing football. Foster missed part of last season.

Both he and Germany underwent surgery for detached eye retinas.

MIGHTY MITES

RATON RUGE, La. — Two of Louisiana State's biggest football surprises during spring drills were the performances of two of the smallest players on the team.

—160-pound halfback Don Purvis of Crystal Springs, Miss., and 175-pound fullback Merle Schexnaydre of Houma, Purvis amazed LSU coaches with his breakaway ability, and Schexnaydre proved to be a competent linebacker and blocker, as well as a dangerous runner.

Jack Dempsey Ill, Condition Isn't Serious

NEW YORK (AP)—Jack Dempsey is suffering from a hernia and is confined to his room in a Manhattan hotel, his physician said Saturday.

The 63-year-old former world heavyweight boxing champion was stricken several weeks ago.

Dr. E. Milton Sachs said further observation would be required to determine whether an operation would be needed. He said, however, that the hernia was not dangerous.

Dempsey for a time suffered bleeding and was kept in bed. However, the bleeding stopped and he is now able to be up and about the room.

The former champion told the doctor he believed he suffered the injury while refereeing a wrestling match in Boston last June 28.

The doctor said, however, it was possible the condition originated from the wear and tear of Dempsey's fighting days and that this was aggravated by his refereeing exertions.

Sachs described the condition as a hiatus hernia, or diaphragmatic hernia, in which the stomach pushes upward through the diaphragm and into the chest cavity.

The condition, he said, was not dangerous but caused great discomfort and difficulty in swallowing.

34 ROUNDS FOR $1.25

Bastrop Boxing Program Friday

Bastrop, La. (Special) — Thirty-four rounds of boxing for $1.25! That's the slogan that Morehouse Parish Fair Association officials have thought up for the big boxing card set for next Friday at the Bastrop rodeo arena.

The show, being promoted by Emmett West, Bastrop auto dealer, in association with Ray Krug, Bastrop newsman, is one of several projects being undertaken to raise funds for the North Louisiana Cotton Festival and Morehouse Parish Fair, which faced a threat of being cancelled when Gov. Earl K. Long vetoed the fairs and festivals fund bill. Undaunted, the Morehouse group set about raising the necessary funds, and the first project is to be the big fight show.

General admission will be only $1.25, with children's tickets scaled at 60 cents. First four rows of ringside seats sell at $3, while all others are going at $2.50. Area fans will be interested in seeing whether or not Cook is still set about raising the necessary funds, and the first project is to be the big fight show.

Clarence Cook, Bastrop middleweight whose career hit a few snags in the past year, will give Cook a good test.

Fort Hill Was Bloody In Civil War Battles

NOT ALWAYS CALM—The Ouachita looking down from Ft. Hill in Harrisonburg was not always this placid. Once it was alive with Yankee gunboats wending their way north. (Staff photo by Sam Hanna.)

Condemned To Death For Murder He Didn't Commit

By ROGER GREENE

JEFFERSON, Ga. — On the sultry night of June 19, 1865, the crackle of gunfire suddenly exploded in this quiet little town in the Georgia peach orchard country, 59 miles northeast of Atlanta.

The fusillade snuffed out the life of one man, drastically changed the lives of three others, and touched off one of the strangest episodes in American criminal history.

The bullets killed Charlie Drake, 60-year-old Jefferson merchant, before the eyes of his wife.

Sent an apparently innocent man to prison for two years, twice condemned him to death in the electric chair.

Almost wrecked the career of the defense lawyer, James Horace Wood, 46, a twice-wounded World War II combat veteran, who defied smoldering local hostility and went broke to prove the innocence of his penniless client, a stranger to the community.

Tortured the dreams of the real killer until at last he cried out a full confession — and wept on the shoulder of the man two juries had convicted of the cold-blooded Drake murder.

Neither of the two men who played the principal roles in this high drama had spotless characters.

James Fulton Foster, 40, though falsely accused of murder, has a long, sordid record as a ne'er-do-well, including convictions for forgery and armed robbery.

The confession came from Charles P. Rocky Rothschild, 33, a former Cairo, Ill., policeman, who said he turned to crime after he was fired for arresting a politician's son. He is now serving a five-year term in the South Carolina penitentiary for burglary committed after the Drake murder.

Rothschild said he had been tipped that Drake carried $5,000 on his person. As events turned out, Drake did have $5,250 hidden in a money belt around his waist. Rothschild, unable to find it, got $10 in the holdup at the Drake home.

With his conscience eased by confession, Rothschild told newsmen:

"I'd rather be in jail with the feeling I have now in my heart and soul than be outside without it."

Criminal records disclose few such cases in modern times.

On several occasions the real culprit has made a death-bed confession. But rarely has a murderer, in the prime of life, voluntarily risked his own neck to free an innocent man.

The Drake case, fought all the way up to the United States Supreme Court, is not yet ended.

Foster, father of seven children technically is still under death sentence and must go through a new trial to clear his name. The trial is scheduled to start about Aug. 11.

How does it feel to be told you must die for killing a man you never saw in a town you'd never heard of?

Wiry, bantam-sized Jim Foster, a roving jack-of-all-trades, sat on the veranda of the old red-brick Jefferson Jail and spoke quietly, without bitterness.

"When the judge sentenced me to death I went numb all over. If somebody had jabbed me with a knife I'd never have felt it."

arms around each other — I was so happy. But I can't help feeling in resentment. That's a long time to keep a man away from his family.

"I know what he's got to go through, but I don't owe him a thing. I told him before he left, 'Rocky, I don't owe you nothin' — nothin'."

Foster fairly shouted the last words. Then, relaxing, he talked freely, without apparent qualms, about some of the unsavory incidents in his past life.

Born in Greenville, S.C., Sept. 1, 1917, one of a family of four boys and four girls, Jim Foster grew up on his father's farm and "I guess we had as good a time as country kids ever did."

At 16 he said, he tried to cash a pencil — written $15 check and was arrested before he could leave the bank. Convicted of forgery, he served six months in jail.

A few years later he got married, started raising a family and tried farming.

It was raw hard work, but I finally had a good field of cotton and I told my wife if anything happened to that crop, I'd quit. It came a flood and washed that field away. I never farmed again."

He got a $45-a-week job as a house painter, quit to become a punch-drill operator in a textile factory, went north to work as an $20-a-week spot welder on B26 bombers in the Glenn L. Martin plant in Baltimore, Md. Then came World War II and he found himself in uniform with the 4th Division Combat Engineers.

"We landed early on D-Day in the Normandy invasion," he said.

"I was the third guy off the raft."

"We went ahead of the troops clearing minefields and enemy roadblocks. I was a flamethrower. I never got hit all the way from Omaha Beach to nine miles from Berlin, which is as far as we got. I guess I had a charmed life."

The stocky, hard-knit prisoner, he stands 5 feet, 5 inches, weighs 144 pounds and boasts of being able to do 35 pushups with one hand — went on to tell how he got mixed up in the Drake murder.

The chain of events began late in 1934. "I was down in Florida, and one day I was out driving with a friend. He said he knew a guy with a lot of money and he was going to get it."

"I didn't think he had the nerve to do it. He went up and rang the bell and the man came to the door, and boom-boom-boom, he let him have it with a gun."

As a result, Foster served 18 months in the Raiford, Fla., prison on a charge of armed robbery. He still had his prison release slip in his pocket when he was picked up on a minor charge in Gainesville, Ga., four days after the Drake holdup murder in Jefferson, 22 miles away.

Georgia state police, noting the similarity between Foster's offense in Florida and the Drake slaying, promptly tabbed him as a suspect. The suspicion deepened when Foster admitted he had been on a beer-drinking joyride with another man and two women near Jefferson on the night of the crime.

At the trial, Foster's three companions testified he was never out of sight from 7 p.m. to midnight on the night of June 19.

Another witness, Betty Williams, swore Foster stopped at her home in Talmo, Ga., about nine miles west of Jefferson, between 9:20 and 9:22 o'clock that night. Mrs. Drake testified the murder occurred about 9:30.

Miss Williams said Foster stopped and asked her for directions to Pendergrass, a town on the Talmo-Jefferson road. She said she knew the exact time, because she was watching "The $64,000 Question" on TV and when she heard a knock on the door she looked at the clock to see how much longer the program would run. She didn't want to miss the end.

"But the jury said I did it," Foster said.

Foster called his wife, Irene, 38, to come out on the jail veranda. A faded, rather pretty woman with blue eyes, reddish-brown hair and a shy smile, she and her seven children had been living at the jail since Rothschild's confession on July 4.

"I've got one of the stickiest wives a man ever had," Foster said. "I read the Bible from cover to cover in jail and I've got an urge to preach. But if I have to feed my family by digging ditches, that's what I'm going to do."

In a separate interview, defense lawyer Jim Wood reluctantly told of his own two-year ordeal of silence, of turned back and cold looks while he searched for and wide for proof of Foster's innocence.

He said he had been earning about $7,500 a year when the court appointed him to defend Foster. Little by little, as Wood fought for one delay after another, the people of the community no longer brought their law troubles to him.

His income dried up. He couldn't pay the electric bill. The lights were turned off. He couldn't pay his secretary's salary, but she stayed on the job.

Wood's offense, if it could be called that, was that he tirelessly insisted Foster was innocent of the brutal murder of a respected townsman.

Hadn't Mrs. Drake positively identified Foster as the man who shot her husband in cold blood? Then why did Jim Wood say the outlaw was innocent? Why delay the execution?

"I quit going to the drugstore," Wood said. "People drift in around 9 o'clock in the evening to have a soda and talk. When I'd come in, some of them stopped talking. They looked away. I took the hint."

"For a long time I just turned a knob inside me and said I've got a job to do and did it. I knew Foster was telling the truth."

Wood emphasized he didn't fight entirely alone. Swayed by his analysis of the facts at the first trial, a four-man committee helped raise $2,700 to pay expenses.

For one thing, agents of the Georgia bureau of investigation said a .38-caliber pistol found in a Cairo, Ill., night club had been identified as the Drake murder weapon. Rothschild, in his confession, said he threw the death gun into a nearby creek.

Rothschild took police to a spot where he said he tossed a pair of Army-type overalls he had worn in the Drake holdup. The faded, half-rotten clothing was found, but not the pistol.

Then there is the question of Mrs. Drake's testimony in identifying Foster as the killer. Not once in either trial, did she suggest that the slayer's face was masked. Yet Rothschild's confession said he wore a silk stocking drawn tight over his head, to distort his features, when he shot Drake.

There is also the curious fact that Rothschild — who presumably never met Foster until shortly after his confession a few weeks ago — ran afoul of the law in mid-1937 in Greer, S.C., on charges of attempted safe robbery.

Greer is Foster's home town. "There are a lot of things that need to be cleared up," Wood said.

"The whole story hasn't been told, by a long shot. But I'm glad it's ending. I'm tired."

The defense lawyer stood up and held out his hand.

"Don't make me sound like a hero or martyr," he said. "Hell, I haven't suffered too much, and it's made a better man out of me. I hope. It has taught me the meaning of faith."

any flank movement from the rear.

Outnumbered

Randall, in a letter to Maj. E. Sargent on Sept. 5, reported that the Confederates were outnumbered five to one. He added that he and his troops were heading for a Federal camp near Trinity, now were reported to be 16,000 strong, and would go from there to Alexandria.

Logan, his 40 men, and a few wagons, horses, mules and four pieces of artillery, had rendezvoused with Randall at the Confederate camp in Alexandria on Sept. 10.

Harrisonburg was a town long before Catahoula was formed as a parish in 1808. The first white man to settle on the present town site was Jacob Simmons. The land was later acquired by a John Hamberlin, who eventually sold it to a John Harrison. It was Harrison who had Edward Dorsey survey and make a plat of the town site in 1818.

More Boats

The Harrisonburg forts again enter the war picture in 1864. On March 2 of that year Capt. T. A. Faries, stationed in a field near the forts, wrote Maj. O. Voorhies of the Louisiana Infantry about another fleet of federal gunboats.

"We took position at daylight today on an Indian mound in an old field," Faries wrote. "The federal gunboat Osage appeared at 10 a.m., followed by five stern-wheelers. We fired and I could tell we did considerable damage. We had no injuries but one of our horses was killed."

The day before, on March 1, the same boats had shelled the Trinity area. Gen. C. J. Polignac wrote Maj. L. Bush that "six gunboats had appeared off Beard's Point on Black River." He said after the attack on Trinity the boats left.

Riddle Houses

Polignac's troops joined Faries' men and they opened on the Yankee boats. The boats kept moving slowly up the river, firing as they went. Polignac records that the Yankees riddled "several houses containing women and children." One boat was damaged and dropped back, with the others proceeding on up the Ouachita. About an hour later, the gunboats returned and threw incendiary bombs at several homes.

"We helped put out the fires," Polignac wrote. All the boats, including the crippled one, went back downriver and spent the night near Trinity. "We had 3 killed, 13 wounded," Polignac recorded.

On March 4, Polignac wrote Bush that he was moving two regiments back to Trinity. He said the distance and bad roads between Harrisonburg and Trinity made it difficult to cover both points. He said his troops were running short of food, and he asked for some incendiary bombs to throw at the Federal fleet.

Apparently he never got a chance to use the bombs for on March 5, Federal Commander F. M. Ramsey aboard the Choctaw gunboat wrote Rear Adm. D. D. Porter that after his fleet had burned the Harrisonburg houses they headed toward Meridian, Miss.

"Very Formidable"

Of the forts he wrote, "They are high on hills and command a view of the river for over three miles." He termed "very formidable." He told his admiral that the boats burned some houses, and would have burned the whole town, except there were so many women and children in the area. The gunboat crews suffered 2 dead and 12 wounded, he added.

"After this battle we would have gone on up the Ouachita to Monroe," he said, "but the water was falling so fast we deemed it best not to attempt it."

On March 6, Porter wrote the Hon. Gideon Welles, Secretary of the Navy in Washington D.C., that the expedition up the Black and Ouachita was "perfectly successful."

Fact He's Little Known Quite Odd

WASHINGTON — In a town where some people equate the pursuit of happiness with the pursuit of influence — and thus influential people — the fact that Roy W. Johnson is little known is quite odd.

It becomes even more remarkable when you consider that the urbane and handsome Johnson, one time hot dog pusher, is 1 wealthy and 2 the closest thing to a space czar the United States yet possesses though he disclaims the title and insists it is not accurate.

Johnson, 52, is director for the new and powerful, though small, decision-making group in the Pentagon known as the Advance Research Projects Agency ARPA.

Decisions by ARPA now will affect the United States and its defenses for years to come. Johnson and his group can make or break board research programs in the armed services involving millions of dollars.

Hardware ARPA is not in the hardware business. Its primary job is evaluation of proposals for military purposes.

For example, should somebody turn up with a project to put a man in space — which they have — or collect purple people from Jupiter, ARPA would have to pass on the proposal's desirability and feasibility.

Once this evaluation is made ARPA can order a go-ahead. If two or more services have the same idea, ARPA has the job of figuring out which one is best qualified to do the job.

Johnson can enter into contracts with private business or universities or cut across normal military channels and hand the job directly to a service development agency.

An ARPA decision, however, does not translate immediately into hardware. The time lag in the fields in which ARPA is working could run from 2 to 20 years from the time the research is authorized and the prototype appears.

Johnson himself is not a scientist. Rather he is one of that new breed of Americans called top executives who from point to point, he said, "and we destroyed the entire works." He said the federalists took all the cotton they could find, and destroyed a bridge to cut the Rebels off from Alexandria.

"Well Pleased" He added that a number of houses were destroyed, but as the "community is all Rebel it is not to be regretted." "We are well pleased with the results of the expedition."

Mute evidence of this "expedition" can still be seen today — the trenches in which the Confederates huddled during the battles. This land of the Old Spanish Trail has other testimony to the gallant fight also — a Veteran's Memorial Park.

It is established on the site of Ft. Beauregard and was set up in 1954 by the Catahoula Parish Police Jury. It honors the war dead, including those of World War I, World War II, and the Korean War.

Tables under shady pine trees make an ideal picnic spot. A large amphitheater has also been built on the site, and Masons of the area hold a convalesce here early each summer.

A marker posted on the road way says of Ft. Beauregard: "This is one of four forts built by the Confederates in May, 1863, to prevent the ascent of Federal gunboats on the Ouachita at Harrisonburg. Abandoned in 1863 and reoccupied in 1864."

have largely replaced the 19th century tycoon.

At first glance Johnson is a perfect image of the bland and confident type known as "the organization man," the professional manager and organizer of other peoples' affairs.

Tailored While he wears beautifully tailored suits with an Ivy League cut, he is not Ivy League. Among organization men Johnson is something of a rarity, a self-made man.

Further while his former colleagues on Madison and Lexington avenues in New York are wrestling ulcers and chasing profits, the ulcer-free Johnson has made his pile and, after his government job is done, plans to devote his time and energy to helping other people.

One thing alone brought ARPA into being and Johnson to Washington — the launching of the Soviet Sputnik I.

In the wake of that Russian achievement this nation began an urgent re-examination of its own position in the field of military space technology and science. This reappraisal produced three major complaints:

Effort The U. S. effort was bogged down in interservice squabbles over who was going to have the leading role in missiles and space exploration.

There was no coordination between the research programs of the three military services nor with other branches of government such as the Atomic Energy Commission.

It was practically impossible to get a constructive decision out of anyone in the Pentagon short of the overburdened secretary of defense.

ARPA was conceived in January and born Feb. 7 by presidential edict. Johnson, former executive vice president of General Electric Co., became its first director April 1. His GE salary was $158,314 a year. He makes $17,500 now.

Why was Johnson named? Secretary of Defense Neil McElroy had been a soap maker. Johnson had been in the Appliance Division of GE.

Said Johnson, "I've known McElroy for years. Our strengths have been in the same field — merchandising with some flair for organizing. He knew my financial position and plans. I think he speeded up my decision to retire by a full year, perhaps two years. When you have made up your mind you have had enough, there is no point in staying in a profit-oriented business."

Gray-Haired This gray-haired, blue-eyed and deeply tanned man, who holds much of the U.S. future in his hands, was born Roy William Johnson Sept. 5, 1905, at Michigan City, Ind., but later moved to Laporte, Ind., by way of Benton Harbor, Mich.

"I grew up," Johnson told a reporter "in a modest neighborhood where typical factory workers lived. Father Edwin A. Johnson, 75, of Laporte clerked in a grocery store and later went to work for American Express as a driver. When he retired he was agent at Laporte."

In both grammar school and high school Johnson works after classes. "I carried newspapers and meals." In high school his only extracurricular activities were debate and dramatics. He was senior class president. His father recalls that Roy was a good speaker. He still is.

World-Famed Fire Fighter Looks Tame

By JIM BOWMAN

HOUSTON — Oil well fire fighter Myron M. Kinley, who can't buy a life insurance policy, looks more like a desk-chained bookkeeper than the daredevil that he is.

He scoffs at the spectacular aspects of his work because to him the spectacular has become routine.

He recently dashed off to Iran to fight a two-month battle with a blazing oil inferno in the desert. The mercury hit 160 degrees on the blazing sands. Water had to be piped in from miles away.

Five times the Texan set high explosive charges and failed to blow out the fire. But on the sixth try, the towering, hungry flames gave up the fight.

Kinley is 53. At the age when many men ease up, he hops about the world (flirting with death much as he has for some 35 years. He keeps ready at all times a small bag packed with fresh khakis, a razor, his toothbrush and his passport.

Kinley is a veteran of more than 400 oil well fire battles. The old pro's name is synonymous with the airman's "Mayday" to oilmen throughout the world.

His store of knowledge on how to extinguish and cap burning wells is probably the world's greatest.

Headquarters for Kinley is an unpretentious one-story building on the grassy plains of Houston's western outskirts. It also houses Kinley's oil-field equipment business.

His Chinese-red lacquered desk sits in a modern small office adorned with photographs of fiercely burning wells, some of which have left their marks on the balding, stocky fire fighter.

Blasting — the ace card of oil well firemen — has left him slightly deaf. He walks with a limp as the result of a broken ankle suffered on a south Texas job years ago. Scar tissue from burns covers parts of his body, mementos of a Venezuelan blaze.

Plumpish around the middle, he stands nearly six feet tall. His sparse hair, once sandy, is streaked with gray.

A soft-spoken man, Kinley is reluctant to talk about his triumphs. But his recent third trip to Iran wasn't an ordinary asbestos suit affair.

April One day in April a gas distillate well caught fire near Ahwaz on the Persian Gulf. The telephone jangled in Houston and within a few hours Kinley was on his way.

He found a wild cat derrick drilled some 9,000 feet. More than 120,000 barrels of the fuel were being eaten up by flames every 24 hours.

The size of the hole — 9 5/8 inches — startled the trouble shooter. Tremendous pressure speeded up flames with a blowtorch effect hundreds of feet high.

For a week Kinley mapped his plan of battle and improvised special tools. He rigged up protective shields for the bulldozers and ordered a point 13 miles distant.

Michigan, he fully intended to become an architect.

Of those days at Ann Arbor, Mich., Johnson recalls, "I came out of college with more money than I went in. I managed a hot dog route along fraternity row. I went to work at 9 and worked three hours until midnight."

In his junior year I got a department store job painting signs — the hours were better. I was good enough to get 75 cents an hour. In my last years I became advertising manager and did layout work for the daily paper and the county paper. In the last year I was merchandising manager."

All this on a parttime job.

Steel Process Is Honored In Stamp Issue

One hundred years ago an historic event took place in Sweden. For the first time in that country, steel was made by the Bessemer process. The experiments were carried out at Edsken, a small blast furnace plant in the county of Gastrikland.

To honor this centenary Sweden has issued two new postage stamps. Both have the same design. Depicted is a Bessemer converter — a tilting furnace in which compressed air is blown through melted pig iron, thus converting it to steel.

To commemorate the 12th anniversary of its establishment as a republic July 4, 1958, the Philippines has issued two new four-colored stamps. The stamps bear a bust portrait of President Carlos P. Garcia enclosed in a frame bordered with an artistic oriental design. Above the frame is the presidential seal. The values are 5 cents and 20 cents.

To conform with recent changes in postal rates, the United Nations Postal Administration announced that a new 4-cent embossed envelope, to be sold at 5 cents, will be issued in both legal and standard sizes on Sept. 22. On the same date a 3-cent postal card will be issued. Instructions for first day covers will be given in this column soon.

Four new stamps have been issued by the territories of Papua and New Guinea. The designs show a coffee stalk with ripe berries, a herd of Polled Shorthorn cattle near Mount Hagen, a view of the Commonwealth New Guinea "Timbers" plynth at Bulolo, and cacao pods on a branch.

To pay tribute to Prime Minister Nkrumah's visit to the United States and Canada, the newly formed nation of Ghana is overprinting four of its stamps with "Prime Minister's Visit, U. S. A. and Canada."

Imitation General' Stars Ford, Buttons
Suspenseful but repetitious with typical G. I. humor, MGM's "Imitation General" tells the story of a sergeant who doesn't know he's a hero but takes a vital gamble when he impersonates a general during a crucial episode of the Battle of the Bulge in World War II. The picture opens at the Jim Theatre Friday.
The sergeant is played by Glenn Ford, who comes to the new role from his hits in "The Sheepman," "Cowboy" and "Don't Go Near the Water." In co-starring roles are Red Buttons in his first film since his Academy Award-winning role in "Sayonara," and Tiana Elg, who became a star overnight after "Les Girls." Another prominent role is played by teenage favorite, Dean Jones.
Master Sergeant Murphy Savage makes his decision to impersonate Brigadier General Charles Lane (Kent Smith) because he is convinced that the sudden death of the general, if it becomes known, will make the difference between victory and defeat when typical G. I. soldiers, separated from their divisions and aimlessly roaming the French countryside, are caught in a German pocket.
Filmed in CinemaScope on location in the Lake Sherwood district of the San Fernando Valley, a locale closely resembling the French countryside, the picture entailed the studio's biggest "local" location project in ten years, with the technical and acting personnel comprising more than 200 people.

Devote Working Day To Thinking

By JOHN BECKLER

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — In a handsome building a block from the blue Pacific, hundreds of people devote most of each working day to just one thing: thinking.

They are part of an unusual, little-known organization whose sole product is ideas.

On the quality of these ideas hangs a measure of the free world's future.

For the men and women and the huge electronic brains in the handsome building think exclusively about aerial warfare of the future and how the United States can excel in it.

The organization is the Rand Corp. At a cost of 10 million a year it advises the Air Force on how best to spend its money today so it can best fight the wars of tomorrow.

What is Rand?

The name is an abbreviation of "research and development." But even its officials have trouble describing it. It's not a private business. Not a government agency. Not a foundation. It's a board chairman, H. Rowan Garner, who also heads the Ford Foundation, has defined it as:

"A technique in which the scientific knowledge and talents are brought to bear upon military problems to aid the Air Force in the formation of plans and policies."

The late Air Force Gen. H. H. Arnold put it more concisely when, in the late stages of World War II, he took some of his brightest men aside and told them: "Now stop thinking about this war and start thinking about the next."

Rand was formed to create an environment conducive to bright ideas.

At any given time it may have more than 100 projects on the griddle, ranging from a one-man study of the configuration of a tail fin to a full - team effort on a complete weapons system.

Details on its projects are secret.

Ask a Rand man to tell about its brainchildren and he'll clam up. Security, he'll say. And this is quite true. Virtually 100 per cent of Rand's work is classified.

But, aside from security considerations, the Rand people are loath to tout their horns. They have so shunned publicity that over the years there has been but a single comprehensive story on the firm's operations, and that in a magazine of limited circulation.

The shyness stems in part from fear of treading on sensitive Air Force ground. The Air Force has some brainy people, too, working in the same fields as Rand. The rivalry over who gets credit for a given idea is keen.

When the Associated Press asked for an example of a Rand idea that clicked, it took months to win Air Force clearance.

But the example finally supplied was a dramatic one: that of the MB-1 anti-aircraft rocket with nuclear warhead, developed as the result of a crash program and the Rand program was approved.

The nuclear rocket grew from the need, recognized more than a decade ago, for more effective weapons for interceptor planes. In 1951 the Air Force and Rand both concluded that an investigation of the potentialities of nuclear aerial weapons was in order.

Rand undertook an analysis involving such wide-ranging subjects as blast effects on the interceptor, radiation danger to the crew, maneuverability of enemy aircraft, rocket design, nuclear warhead characteristics, cost in relation to alternatives.

It found the A-rocket to be the best bet. A similar study by the Air Force special weapons center agreed. The crash program was launched and last summer at the Nevada test site the MB-1 was successfully fired.

Last fall, in the excitement following the launching of Russia's first Sputnik, another Rand project came into light. This was a comprehensive report on Soviet space flight achievements and plans with data on its avowed intention to orbit a satellite. This report was in Air Force hands in the summer of 1957, months before the first Russian launching.

Yet the world was astounded.

and some of America's military men seemed surprised when Russia came through.

Some Rand studies are much broader, encompassing the fighting of a whole future war. Rand scientists ask then answer, such questions as:

What would be the most effective weapon against the defenses an enemy might have in production by the time the weapon is in production?

To provide the answers Rand has organized its staff of 600 into five divisions—economic, engineering, mathematical, physical and social sciences. It employs 350 leading scientists as outside consultants.

The staff has no laboratories, no test ranges. Blackboards and chalk, books and computers, are the only props. Some work alone, some in groups. The atmosphere is relaxed, informal.

Because scientists work best in complete freedom, Rand was set up across the continent from the Pentagon. It started in a corner of the Douglas Aircraft Co. plant here. This quickly proved inadequate. In 1944, with the help of a grant from the Ford Foundation, Rand was established in its own building as a prime contractor to the Air Force. It has since taken on a small amount of work for the Atomic Energy Commission.

Using new techniques in unfamiliar fields, Rand is turning out a product that in the simplest analysis amounts to advice. Like any advice, it can be accepted or ignored.

But if sheer brainpower is what it takes to put the Air Force out front, the people at Rand are supplying an awesome amount of it.

Democratic Vista A Six-Act Playlet

THE DEMOCRATIC VISTA. By Richard Chase, Doubleday, $3.95.

Will George Middleby leave his job as college teacher and become an insurance agent?

That's the subject of this six-act playlet set in and near a summer cottage on Massachusetts' North Shore. And one thing I have against Chase is that, though I can guess the answer, he never tells.

There's another way, however, of stating the dramatic problem posed in these 180 brilliant pages. What's our status as writers, artists, intellectuals? Is America gaining ground, losing it, or marking time in political, philosophical and creative matters? Or hadn't we better all quit underpaid teaching positions and win a little respect, and a lot of money, as successful salesmen?

To these questions, framed in the most elegant language, Chase provides several sets of answers: From Ralph Headstrong and his wife Dorothy, whose ideas were formed in the 1930s; George Middleby and his wife of the 1940s; and youngest of all, a newcomer from Europe, Rinaldo. Chase tackles questions so far ranging it would take no less than this sizeable cast to deal with them. What, he wants to know, has been the nature of the American creation? Are we working toward the future on the basis of a correct estimate of the past or are we off the track? Is this linked to politics? In sum, is America reaping the rich benefits of her splendid history right now, or is she hung up miserably on a dull dead center?

George is spokesman for the new generation popularly represented as security-minded. Fins on their cars, a picture window with a house around it in suburbia, a few safe conventional books to read and TV to watch and stolid politicians to gloss over the hazards. This satisfies these young men, who bet tamely to show and not to win, who stick to the middle of the road.

To summarize too drastically, Ralph condemns all this as middle brow. We owe our cultural achievement to the conflict between idea and instinct, he says. The American genius has been not to reconcile this basic difference but to work ambitiously out of it. Our society's debt is almost wholly to the writer, poet, artist and thinker whom Ralph calls roughly, radical or avant garde—there is a devastating definition: "We value with our conservative instincts that which history has already rendered irrelevant to the formation of our ideas."

For George, we are now at long last having our day, this is the flowering of America. For Ralph, we have come to the end of a period. In the opening decades of this century we carried a torch, but now, vague about the past, we

Music Varies With The Taste Of Conductor

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK (UPI)—People are always saying any given piece of music should sound the same no matter who's playing it because the music is printed on paper in black and white, isn't it? But that can't be so, said Erich Leinsdorf, the eminent conductor.

"Before I start rehearsing an opera or a symphony, I spend many lonely hours with the orchestra parts, marking them carefully as to phrasing and length of notes," he said. "Almost any phrase in a classical composition is open to several ways of execution. If I want to have it played in that manner which I deem right, I must be sure that the part of the orchestra players are marked clearly and unequivocally."

Of course, every musician who every really studied music believes he knows all the answers. Leinsdorf continued, "After one knows all the answers, there is left only the good taste of the individual which decides in favor of one or the other manner of performance."

Leinsdorf said the trouble with this musical age is that its public is "bored," and "its taste is jaded. When the primary interest is not in music, but in execution and in repeating old thrills, then the conductor's personality holds the spotlight." So entire symphonies are built around a mass quest conductors as can be assembled.

What has brought this about is easy to find, Leinsdorf said. It is "the sorry state of contemporary composition and the public's lack of enthusiasm for modern music. This has forced increased programming of the war horses and so the works themselves are no longer the main focus of interest."

mult around instead of charging ahead.

There are biting comments on our fear of ideas, our reluctance to stand up and be counted. There are astute judgments on Toyne, Faulkner, Van Wyck Brooks, Whitman and others. But the theme is that our future lies only in daring, in the most untrammelled nonconformity.

I assume Chase put this in dialogue form in the hope it might attract more general readers, and nobody can wish him more luck at it than I. He could also have attracted more attention by raising his voice and letting us see blood in his eyes; he comes near it only once in a diatribe about petty complacencies, cheap expediency, government by pressure groups, and Levittown. Instead he employs the most effective tactics: He stays deadly cool. We got burned once within memory on radicalism, and we are still too inclined to think it necessarily has something to do with communism. Of and by itself, Chase claims it is wonderful and basic.

Hunt back for a decade and you won't find a more penetrating or challenging look at American life and letters. It is a ringing summons to a renaissance.

Since it has no controls of its own, it must be attached to a control center.

A four-lead shielded cable for stereo comes with the new Grado tone arm. Grado hasn't put a stereo cartridge on the market yet, but is expected to have one ready in September.

The arm, which recently became available, is made of highly polished walnut. The manufacturer claims for it a resonant frequency—the frequency at which it will vibrate with an outside sound source—of 10 cycles per second.

He claims tracking error of plus or minus eight-tenths of a degree. A one-ohm adjustment regulates tracking force. It can be used with other cartridges, in addition to the one designed especially for it.

R. T. Bozak, the leading exponent of the infinite baffle, reports that he is doubling the size of his Connecticut factory. In addition to making more speakers, he is going to make the enclosures himself.

Previously, he farmed his cabinet work out. He thinks he can control quality better by making his own cabinets.

Bozak, with his new facilities, is going to turn out a line of equipment cabinets that match his speaker enclosures. He is making a stereo speaker system in one enclosure in about the price range of his B-310.

Mary Martin's Heart Belongs To Peter Pan

By JOY MILLER

NEW YORK (UPI)—Her heart belongs to Peter Pan, and Mary Martin is using all her sprightly charm to keep him from going back to Never-Never Land without her.

Her unabashed affection seems to have turned the trick. This fall and winter, well-chaperoned by husband, guitarist, ballet dancer and 20 piece orchestra, Mary—and Peter—will soar out over audiences in 50 cities, from Boston west to San Antonio and north as far as Montreal.

Peter's flying is only part of the show, which is really a concert of songs, dancing and instrumental music.

Mary says she will sing "songs that I like from composers I love."

Sharing the stage with her will be Luis Bonfá, a guitarist she found in Rio De Janeiro, and Dirk Sanders, a dancer with the Roland Peit ballet group.

"It will be a lovely tour of one-night stands, from Sept. 21 until March," says blonde, pixiesque Mary. "We'll drive, and mostly we'll stay in motels. I've wanted to do something like this for 10 years—to cover as much territory and reach as many people as possible. This is the reason."

"When I was attending Ward Belmont in Nashville, Tenn., I saw Rod Laroque and Vilma Banky, the first persons I'd ever seen on a stage. I was 13 and it opened another world to me. I want to repay what that experience meant, and to give it to others."

That's why on the tour she is giving a matinee for children, with entirely different material from the night show. A highspot will be a high-flying section from "Peter Pan" in monologue form, in which the audience is treated as one child, Wendy.

Back stage when the tour was in the planning stage, Peter was grounded. It was argued that his overhead cartwheels was dispensable because it called for expensive, intricate arrangements back-stage that would be pretty hard to put up in 50 theaters.

Mary, however, couldn't see disappointing youngsters with an earth-bound Peter Pan. So right now a crew of technicians are out on the tour circuit, lining up mechanical magic to make the green clad sprite airborne.

"I adore flying high," says Mary.

"I feel it must be like an angel, feels, complete release."

She admits that Richard Halliday, her husband of 18 years, and also her business manager, doesn't share her liking for levitation.

"But I have absolutely no fear of heights—fortunately." The Hallidays recently moved to the city from Connecticut where they lived for years—commuting daily for theater performances—so daughter Heller could grow up in the country.

Now 16, Heller won't go on the concert tour because she'll be in school. But she's chanced her mind about being an actress anyway, says her mother. At 6 she played Mary's little sister in the road production of "Annie Get Your Gun," and she was

Liza in "Peter Pan."

"But it's nursing now," explains Mary. "All this summer she has worked from 9 to 5 in the children's ward at New York Hospital as a volunteer nurse."

When Mary returns from her tour she'll start work on a new Rodgers and Hammerstein production. It's "The Singing Heart," about the Trapp Family singers, to open on Broadway next fall.

She's Critical About Her Own Music Mistakes

NEW YORK (AP)—Ella Fitzgerald is a mystery lady when it comes to her own music.

The famous jazz vocalist has no idea how many blues, ballads and scat songs she has recorded; she has few of her own discs; and she listens to them only to do better next time.

"I'm sometimes sorry in a way I didn't keep track of them," Ella reflects.

"But I thought I might be thought conceded if I did."

The remark is typical of the Fitzgerald attitude toward the lifting career that began 21 years ago, and has kept moving in a long-term of acclamation, shyness, a brooding modesty as she tries to name the secret of her long reign.

"I like the feel and beat of a song," she decides.

Simplicity helps. "Simplicity wins out most of the time, just like in women's clothes. And in music right now, I think this rocking thing is passing, like all trends."

More and more, she agrees, she is concentrating chiefly on ballads rather than pop in both records and personal appearances because such romantic tunes "give people a chance to hear the voice more."

Things were different when the girl from Newport News, Va., first hesitantly stepped out on stage to win an amateur show and thereafter swung to popularity with the Chick Webb band.

Ella concentrated on rhythm numbers, particularly after "A-Tisket, A-Tasket" hit the top of the polls.

"Now, even in the night clubs," reports Ella, "the people, including the young ones, ask for the standard songs, the ballads."

There has been one other change in the Fitzgerald style, when it comes to recordings. From doing single tunes she has turned to long-plays, several of them twin-disc affairs.

Public Not Complaining. "Some of my own big albums seem just too long," she says, "but the public certainly doesn't seem to feel that way."

Some of these days, Miss Fitzgerald professes, she would like to make a recording of some other vocalist's favorite melodies—as a sort of salute to them—and also an album aimed at the youngest generation.

"That would be a real challenge," she says. "If you can succeed with them, you can succeed with anyone."

Rugs on the personal appearance circuit touching at Brussels, Cannes, Washington and Chicago, Miss Fitzgerald sometimes wishes she had a bit more time out to enjoy her West Coast home.

But being a singing lady, she confesses, is in her blood. "Whenever I'm home for a few weeks, I'm ready to get going again."

raised production of its FM-AM tuner, brought out in recent months after two years of experimenting, to about 30 units a day.

Production was slow at first because it took so long to get the tuners adjusted. The McIntosh tuner is one of the three or four super-tuners on the market.

The AM section provides three degrees of sensitivity in addition to three choices of bandwidth.

Engineers long identified with the high fidelity industry continue to doubt that record stereo will be an unmixed blessing.

Some think that if it becomes widespread it will cheapen the quality of high fidelity as a whole, perhaps killing the future of monoaural sound that had approached a high quality level.

New Legend Told About Unique Man

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP)—The last decade a new legend has been added to those woven for hundreds of years around the mysterious figure of Rabbi Samuel Loew.

Rabbi Loew lived in Prague from 1520 until his death in 1609.

Today, some members of the city's decimated and impoverished Jewish community will tell you the posthumous influence of the wise, old Rabbi saved their medieval Altsynagogue and its thousand - year - old cemetery from destruction by the Nazis during World War II.

In gratitude for delivery out of the Nazi hell, you will occasionally see a Prague Jew playing small games on the tomb of Rabbi Loew.

Loew was founder of a famous rabbinical school. He had a great reputation in the 16th Century as a mathematician and astronomer and enjoyed the friendship of the science-minded Austrian Emperor Rudolf II, who resided at that time on Prague's Hradcany castle.

"Wonder" Rabbi Loew, the legends tell, was the creator of the "Golem," the servant of earth, whom he called to life by putting a slip of paper with the name of God written upon it underneath his tongue.

There are folks in Prague ready to convince any foreigner that the Golem still wanders through the narrow gates and streets of the Old City. It is in the Old City that the synagogue and its cemetery are located. The graveyard is believed to be the oldest Jewish cemetery in Europe.

Its date of origin is unknown. The oldest tombstones bear dates from the first half of the 15th Century, but folklore puts its origin almost a thousand years earlier.

It has a picturesque unkemptness about it. A very ancient Jewish precept forbids the abolition of graves. With space in the cemetery limited, there apparently was nothing else to do but heap up fresh earth on the old graves and then use this for new ones. In some parts of the cemetery there are as many as 12 layers of tombs, which accounts for the thick crowding of tombstones.

It is here that Rabbi Loew's marker stands, the small stones piled atop it. This custom of the stones recalls the wanderings of the Jewish tribes across the desert, where they were only able to cover their dead with stones.

What in fact may have caused the Nazis to spare this cemetery and its synagogue will likely never be known.

"The truth probably is," said a former inmate of the ill-fated Dachau concentration camp, "that they were far too busy killing the living Jews to bother with those already dead for hundreds of years."

But there are others who tell you it was but another wonder of Rabbi Loew.

BUSINESSMAN FORREST TEEL

Divorcee Admits Killing Lover

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI)—Divorcee Minnie (Connie) Nicholas emerged from a two-day coma Saturday and confessed shooting and killing her wealthy, married lover, businessman Forrest Teel.

Mrs. Nicholas, 43, told two detectives she fought with Teel in his white Cadillac outside the apartment of his new love, secretary Laura Mower, 29, last Thursday.

"He roughed me up and hit me in the eye," she said. "He pulled the gun out of my purse. I just intended to scare him."

"You don't shoot the one you love..."

"Did you shoot him?" the detectives asked.

"I think I shot him two or three times," the slim, attractive career woman answered.

Mrs. Nicholas confessed the love-triangle murder of the handsome, 54-year-old drug firm executive at practically the same moment his remains were being cremated. A shocked cross-section of Indianapolis society attended Teel's funeral services earlier in the day.

The twice-married divorcee had lain close to death since early Thursday, in a coma brought on by a massive dose of sleeping pills washed down with pineapple juice shortly after the shooting.

During that period her rival, a beautiful brunette secretary at the firm of Eli Lilly and Co. where Teel was executive vice president, told police how he spent the last seven hours of his life with her in her apartment. Police lodged preliminary murder charges against Mrs. Nicholas and vowed she would stand trial if she lived.

Mumbled Name

Within a few hours after Teel's last rites, Mrs. Nicholas, his close friend for 15 years, stirred and mumbled his name.

She regained consciousness by stages. One of her first questions was "How is Forrest?" But she seemed to realize, without being told, that he was dead.

To police, she confirmed previous theories on how she stalked Teel to Miss Mower's apartment, laid in wait for him in his car, and shot him.

Nixon Says GOP Chances Bright

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon is telling Republican members of Congress their 1958 election prospects are brightening — mainly because "nobody is mad at Congress."

Like some other GOP leaders, he is advising them 1958 will be a "good year for incumbents."

Much as that reasoning helps Democrats who are in a slight congressional majority, it also applies to sitting Republicans who have been worried about signs of a Democratic trend which might cut a swath through their present ranks.

Strangely enough, the vice president's belief is an indirect tribute to the present Democratic leadership in Congress, principally Senate majority chief Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas. Johnson's "co-operative" majority has given President Eisenhower so much of what he wanted that it will be hard for Republicans to campaign on the theme that the President "needs" a GOP congress.

Top Republicans, including the vice president, believe the Rep-ened. But the overwhelming sentiment of GOP members of Congress is that he "must go" lest Republican candidates be forced to disassociate themselves from the White House in the campaign. It remains a decision for Adams.

Republicans also think the Middle East crisis has acted to improve their position in the congressional elections. They argue that it has diverted attention from the Adams case and from Congress itself.

But more important from their standpoint, it has placed their number one "star"—President Eisenhower—back at stage center.

"Anytime the president is on the stage, we're helped," was the way one Republican put it.

Iraq, Jordan Constitution Is Suspended

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI)—King Hussein Saturday "suspended" the constitution uniting Jordan in a federation with Iraq.

The 20-year-old monarch said the revolution in Baghdad had rendered Iraq "incapable of performing its share of responsibilities" in the union.

Therefore, Hussein said in a royal decree, the constitution joining the two countries cannot "be applied or executed from the practical point of view."

Jordan regards it, he said, as having been "suspended."

The "Arab Union" of Jordan and Iraq, which came into effect barely two months before the Baghdad revolt, already had been renounced by the new Iraqi republic.

Hussein's decree fell far short of recognition of the Baghdad revolutionary regime, whose successful coup 19 days ago cost the life of Hussein's cousin, King Faisal, London observed noted.

However, they said Hussein apparently was relinquishing his claim for a right to "march on Baghdad" to restore the monarchy—something he evidently had wanted to do with Western help directly after the Iraqi revolt.

As long as the Iraqi-Jordan joint constitution was in effect, Faisal's death left Hussein technically the monarch of the Hashemite throne ruling both Jordan and Iraq.

Hussein ordered his government to re-amend the Jordanian constitution to meet the altered circumstances. He said Iraqi funds and properties in Jordan would be "held in trust."

Man Rescues Lad, Pays For Use Of Bath House Later

MALDON, England (AP)—Leslie Gurnay saw a boy drowning in the Maldon Municipal Swimming Pool.

Whipping off his sports coat, he plunged into the deep water and rescued the sinking lad.

"I want to get out of these wet clothes," Gurnay told a bath house attendant.

"Certainly, sir," replied the attendant, "but you'll have to purchase a ticket first. That'll be a shilling (14 cents)."

Muttering a protest, Gurnay bought a ticket, took off his wet clothes, donned a pair of dry swimming trunks and drove home.

Seven indignant members of the Town Council said today they would ask at their next meeting why a hero was charged for his courage.

PAUL G. AUCOIN

Legionnaires Install Here Monday Night

The newly elected department of Louisiana Legion commander, Paul G. Aucoin of Thibodaux, will install the officers of the L. R. Faulk Post No. 13, at the regular semi-monthly meeting Monday, at 8 p. m., at the Post Home on Forsythe Avenue.

Aucoin, who was elected at the legion convention held in New Orleans, July 26, served three and one-half years in the U. S. Coast Guard during World War II, received an honorable discharge and then served nine years as parish service officer of LaFourche parish.

Aucoin is presently serving as manager of one of the larger insurance agencies in Thibodaux. He has been secretary-treasurer of the parish Democratic committee and the first state president of the Louisiana Veterans Service Officers Association.

Milton W. Ford, past post commander of the Faulk Legion post urged the following officers to be present at installation: D. C. Bernhardt, commander; Morris Haas Jr., first vice commander; Robert N. Blenger, second vice commander; C. R. Braun, adjutant; Charles M. Mitchell, historian; Harold Gill, finance officer; Rabbi Jacob Lantz, chaplain; the executive elected include: Saul Adler, Sam Rubin Sr., and Oscar Johnson; Pete Dowd, sergeant at arms; color bearers, Claude McMullen and Anthony Buttitta; Henry B. McClendon, post service officer.

This will be the first visit to northern Louisiana by Department Commander Aucoin and all legionnaires of the surrounding post are urged to attend and get acquainted with their new head, Ford said.

Aucoin's legion experience as post adjutant, post commander, district commander, department executive committeeman and department vice commander will encourage local legionnaires who attend this meeting he added.

Ford, the outgoing commander, reported that this year has been successful in terms of service.

Among the many activities sponsored by the post is the Junior Legion baseball team which finished second in the district conference.

Ford said another success was the American Legion rescue truck, operated by the Monroe fire department, has been equipped with a new generator and new blinking light and siren.

11-Year-Old 50-Pound Boy Dies In Mass.

BOSTON (AP)—Nils-Olov Wisell, 50 pounds of courage, died Friday night at Peter Ben Brigham Hospital. He had been awaiting a kidney transplant operation.

The 11-year-old freckled-faced youngster from Motala, Sweden, was born with one kidney, which he lost last April when he toppled from a merry-go-round near his home.

A hospital bulletin said Nils' death was due to the inability of his system to accept bone marrow transfusions from his mother. She was to have donated one of her kidneys.

The boy died with his parents at his bedside and his bed surrounded by gifts which had poured in from all over the nation since his admission on July 1.

Nils' operation would have been unprecedented, since kidney transplants have been successful only between identical twins.

Nils' parents, Oscar, a butcher, and his wife, Margaret, kept vigil at the hospital through most of their son's confinement. Nils was their only child.

Funeral services will be held Monday at the Salvation Army Corps auditorium in Boston. Burial for the tousled, tawny-haired lad who wanted to be a cowboy will be in Sweden.

Bell Seeks 105th Reunion In La.

C. C. Bell, Jr., of West Monroe, mer Capt. Bell issued an appeal who commanded the 105th anti-aircraft artillery battalion A during World War II, has returned annual meetings. "A large number of men who served with us from Louisiana, especially in the south Louisiana around New Orleans," Bell said.

On his return to Louisiana, for-country would welcome an opportunity to hold one of our future conventions in Louisiana if we encouraged the idea a little," Bell said.

Bell's outfit was one of the most battle seasoned fighting groups to participate in European operations during the war. Battle honors included participation in Algeria, French Morocco, Tunisia, Sicily, Naples - Goggia, Rome, Arno, North Apennines and Po Valley.

T. D. Wilkins, Jr., of Blackburg, S. C., was acting secretary of the reunion, succeeding the late Campbell Roberts of Shelby, N.C. Wilkins was named secretary in charge of arrangements for the reunion at the outfit's 1957 meeting at Newport, Tenn.

The 105th, a historic battalion, dates back to the West Florida Rebellion of 1810, the War of 1812, the Mexican War, the Civil War, the Spanish - American War and the wars of more recent history.

World War II found the National Guard unit inducted into federal service for training 11 months before Pearl Harbor. In August of 1942, it went overseas and in England and Scotland continued anti-aircraft as well as intensive amphibious training that was put to use in assault landings and in the campaigns of North Africa, Sicily and Italy.

In six major campaigns, including three amphibious assaults, the 105th fought off over 1,000 German Junkers and Messerschmidts shooting down over 75, probably destroying more than 46 others and damaging several hundred more.

By late 1944, the men of the battalion had been awarded 37 silver stars, two Legions of Merit, four soldier's medals and 12 bronze stars and 129 men wore the purple heart for wounds received in action.

World War II service for the battalion came to a close on Sept.

18, 1945 when it was inactivated in the Mediterranean Theatre of Operations.

Bell, referred to by his war-time buddies as "Ding Dong" Bell, was accompanied to the 1958 reunion by his wife, Kathleen, and son, Butch.

The West Monroe veteran said many of the members of his old outfit "are anxious to hold one of our future reunions in Louisiana, but due to the lack of participation of former members from Louisiana the task of hosting the men would be too great. I hope to interest more of our Louisiana members so we can bring them to Louisiana," Bell declared.

He urged any former member of the outfit interested in becoming active at the annual reunions to contact him.

Next year's reunion will be held in Marietta, Ohio.

MISS DOROTHY CAROLE EADY

Miss Eady, Mr. Kilpatrick Plan September Wedding

Of interest today is the announcement of the engagement and forthcoming marriage of Miss Dorothy Carole Eady to Tex Richard Kilpatrick. Miss Eady is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Ross Eady and her fiancé is the son of Mrs. Edgar Noel Kilpatrick and the late Mr. Kilpatrick, of Farmerville.

The ceremony will be solemnized at seven-thirty o'clock in the evening in the First Baptist Church of West Monroe with the Reverend Jaroy Weber officiating. The bride-elect attended Northeast State College, majoring in music, and is a member of Phi Mu and Delta Omicron social sororities.

Mr. Kilpatrick attended Louisiana Tech and is a graduate of Louisiana State University. His fraternities are Phi Sigma Eta and Kappa Sigma.

Littlefield, Tharpe Vows Are Said

The wedding of Miss Mary Patricia Littlefield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Littlefield of Kilbourne, and Dwain Tharpe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Cordell Tharpe of Epps, was an event of July 6, at six o'clock in the evening.

The Rev. E. L. Tatum performed the double ring ceremony in the Methodist Church of Kilbourne, where green palm and large baskets of white gladioli formed the setting. Nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. Orville Taylor of Eudora, Arkansas.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white lace over organdy embroidered with seed pearls, featuring cap sleeves and matching lace mitts. The veil of illusion fell from a Juliette crown. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and Stephanotis.

Maid of honor was the bride's sister, Miss Terry Jane Littlefield. Her gown was of pink silk chrysiline and for a headdress, she wore a pink bandeau of seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Miss Nell Rawls, Miss Barbara Hodkins and Miss Jackie Tharpe served as bridesmaids, and wore identical gowns of blue crystalline silk.

The flower girl was Jeannie Chop who was gowned in pink net over pink taffeta. The bride's mother chose to wear a pink embroidered linen model accented by a white carnation corsage. The groom's mother wore a pale blue model with a corsage of white carnations at her shoulder.

John Reeves served the groom as best man and the groomsmen and ushers were Don Murray, Buddy Rusk, Dr. Guthrie Jerrold, Robert Phillip and C. B. Roberts. Candlelighters were Sonney Connell and Brian Friday. The ring bearer was Randy Honeycutt.

Reception White gladioli and greenery were used to decorate the reception rooms following the ceremony.

The bride's table was covered with lace and held the tiered wedding cake at one end. On the other end was the crystal punch bowl.

The bride chose for travel, a beige linen dress and wore at her shoulder a corsage taken from her bouquet.

The couple will be at home in Lake Providence.

STUFFED PRUNES
To add novelty and something delicious to the lunchbox, try cinnamon-sugared prunes. The prunes must be plumped and the pit removed. Then stuff the prune with a nut of some kind—preferably with a walnut or almond—or a maraschino cherry.

Make a mixture of cinnamon and sugar and roll each prune in the combination until well covered.

CRUMB TOP FOR KALE
NEW YORK—Add new flavor to an old favorite in vegetables this way. Next time kale is on the menu, top the cooked and seasoned vegetable with buttered bread crumbs and crumbled, crisp bacon. Pass a dish of grated Parmesan cheese to be used, each to his own taste.

The number of American families owning cars has increased from 54 to 75 per cent in the past 10 years.

MRS. DONALD LEE WALKER was Miss Linda Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Young of Bastrop, before her marriage on July 19 in the First Baptist Church of Bastrop. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Walker of Winnsboro.

This week let's talk about clothes and what well-dressed Twin City ladies were wearing to a variety of different kinds of parties.

Several hundred attended the Panhellenic tea last Thursday at Bayou Desiard country club. The affair is sponsored annually by alumnae of sororities affiliated with National Panhellenic and is given in honor of girls entering colleges where there are chapters on campus. The club lounge was decorated with large all-green arrangements in the corners, and masses of white stock, tuberoses, gladioli, and majestic daisies on the table.

President HELEN WALLACE received in a beige linen embroidered in the material for MILDRED LANCE's chemise. The flounce at the neckline was accented with a row of embroidered purple roses. A white cloche complimented LINDA DEAN's white overblouse chemise. A print in shades of green was the choice of WANDA HINKLE. MARY LYN SCOGIN was in all red. A blue sash accented the neckline of JUDY NORRIS' white dress. FRANK BALDWIN wore a white linen shirt chemise.

Paisley prints were very popular. LINDA STEELE's paisley was in shades of brown with brown accessories. Blue was the color for CHARLOTTE HAMILTON's paisley print, while ZAMONA FLINN's was in beige and blue shades, accented with blue velvet ribbon. A matching sweater was the finishing touch for CAROL MOUK's yellow paisley. CAROLYN CUMMINGS was in blue and green. CHARLOTTE NULL wore a white chemise with a belt low at the hips. MARTHA SUE PRATT's chemise was printed in shades of yellow and orange. Pale olive green linen with a cashmere sweater applied to match was the choice of PATSY KUSIN. MARTHA JANE BURNS was in a balloon-skirted pink cotton. A sailor collar accented BETTY GRAY's light blue chemise. MARY LOU M'LENDON's white chemise featured blue embroidery on the flounce.

NANCY BREARD wore one of those little hats made entirely of starched veiling. Green roses were printed on MARY ALICE CHRISTIANSEN's white cotton. Saturday night Highland Park country club was the scene of a buffet supper and dance which attracted a goodly number of club members as well as those playing in the golf tournament. Roast beef was the main dish for the diners, with dancing continuing into the night. Noted at this party were ESTELLE KIRSTE in a pale green lace and linen sheath. LIZ TAYLOR in black cotton fashioned with a large bustle bow. PEGGY TOLSON in a black and white printed sheath. CHARLOTTE WOOLEY in a floral print. Also in a print was PEGGY HARTNESS, whose frock featured an intricate draped back. In a white chemise flounced at the neckline was MRS. HUGO ANGELINI. White pointed shoes and head-and finger sandwiches were served with coffee to about 25 guests.

It is supposed to be 104 in the shade tomorrow — this is the THARPE prediction. GERE and PAT are packed and ready to make the move to Shreveport tomorrow, and fully prepared for the worst. VIRGINIA HARGROVE had about fifteen friends over for a last little visit with Pat Wednesday morning. The living porch was lovely, with fresh fruit on the low serving table, and a pyramid of zinnias on a side table. Refreshments were tiny biscuits filled with ham, cheese, and strawberry meringues.

Bridge luncheon on Monday was also a farewell party for Pat. Hostesses were MARIE COOKSTON and VIRGINIA WARNER. Tomato aspic with shrimp was served with asparagus cheese rolls for luncheon. Lemon cups were dessert. Three tables played bridge, with SYDNEY SMITH winning high, and MARY GILL, second. Pat received a lovely pair of earrings as guest prize.

Bridge is the ever-popular summer pastime. ANN HOLMES had a home party last Thursday afternoon. CHARLOTTE DENT won high, and MAVIS POWELL, low. Pineapple parfait cake was served to the two tables. TOMMY SUE SARTOR was hostess for bridge at Bayou Desiard country club Friday afternoon. Four tables played, with PAT BAGWELL, winning high, and ANN ANDERSON TERZIA, second. Parfaits and fudge squares were served.

MRS. JOHN MYER, retiring social director of the Monroe Recreation center, was honored at a coffee in the home of the JACK HESKETHS Sunday. Guests were the personnel of the department and their husbands and wives. Several beautiful arrangements by PEGGY GARNETT were used in the living room. Roses and chrysanthemums centered the dining table, where MACKIE ROYD poured. Mrs. MYER was presented with a gold and pearl pin as a farewell gift from the recreation personnel.

The L. H. CARTERS entertained a group of friends at supper Saturday night. Myrtle carried out pink and green color scheme, with colladium leaves in those shades used in hall, living room, and on the porch. The green-covered buffet table was set against the pink brick wall on the porch. Centering the table was a miniature tree covered with crabapples of the exact shade of the pink wall. Carter's famous filets of fresh water bass were the feature of the menu. With them, Myrtle served baked potatoes, mixed green salad, black-eyed peas, and hush puppies.

MRS. ED SKIPWORTH of Franklin Park, New Jersey, who has been the guest of her sister, BETTY SCHONLAU, was honored at a coffee hosted by Betty and LUCY WEBSTER on Saturday. Summer arrangements were used throughout the house. In the living room, grapes, lemons, and other green and yellow fruit were arranged in Italian pottery dishes, while zinnias were used in the den. The dining room was developed in green and white. Daisies, white phlox, and ivy in an interesting container shaped like a lettuce leaf centered the table.

Among the fifty guests who called were noted BEA BURGOYNE in pink voile, with multi-colored flowers around the brim of her roller hat. HAZEL M'GINN in a white linen suit. GISH HARVEY in pink headed linen. and RUTH KELOS in all beige. The honoree was wearing a cream-colored eyelet embroidered cotton. Tiny fried pies and hot biscuits were served with coffee and cokes. Last Sunday a family group went to the Schonlau camp on Lake Providence for the day. Fishing, boating, and water sports filled the day and led up to a picnic planned around steaks cooked out of doors. A number of other informal parties were given in honor of Mrs. Skipworth prior to her departure on Wednesday.

Arriving today for a visit will LOUISE LEIGH are her daughter, RHODA KELLOGG NORMANN, and her four children, SUSAN, MIKE, LOUISE, and BOBBY, of New Orleans. The LEROY ANSPACHS have returned to their home in Shreveport after a visit with Eloise's parents, the GEORGE TEMPLES, in Edgewater Gardens. CAROLYN ANSPACH is remaining for a longer stay with her grandparents.

Week-end guests in the home of the BOB BUSHNELLS are MR. and MRS. BAY TULL of New Orleans, and their children, BAILEY, NELSON, MAURINE, and LARRY. DAVID and WAYNE BUSHNELL will go home with the Tulls for a ten-day visit in the Crescent City. The GARLAND HAMMONS and their daughters, NANCY and SUELEEN, are leaving this week for about ten days' visit with relatives in Houston, Kingsville, and El Campo, Texas. Bound for Kentucky Lake Lodge are the CAVITT COOKSTONS: their sons, COOKIE and DOUG, and DONNIE MARX. After about a week at the lake, they will go on to Dekalb, Illinois, to visit friends.

At the beginning of August, let us pause to consider a ditty called "The Work-Like-a-Dog Days" by Norman Jaffray: I can't agree with Porgy's rhyme: The sentiment is cheery: Who ever thought of summertime As when the living's easy?

And now for "In Town and Out" —

BOBBIE and BILL GOLD. SMITH and their son JAY spent four days of last week in New Orleans. While there they attended a number of parties, large and small, including a luncheon at the home of MIGNONNE and BILL EPSTEIN, former Monroians. Also in New Orleans for a few days early this week were MARTHA and LEE ALBRIGHT.

CIDDY M'NEIL was the guest of her sister, MRS. JAMES DAWSON (the former Cottie Hanna) in Shreveport this week. During her visit the sisters were co-hostesses at a brunch for a Shreveport bride-elect. EDWARD WILDER, son of the

MISS ANNA JO SARAH SAVAGE is the bride-elect of Thomas Ted Gullatt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jap Gullatt of Simsboro. Her engagement is announced by her father, Mr. M. H. Savage of Jonesboro. The wedding will be solemnized August 16.

You seed and weed and mulch and hoe;

You clean and paint the kitchen; There's grass to cut and hay to mow—

You're always in there pitching. You picnic or you cook outdoors:

No cinch, preparing food; And if you stray to ocean shores

You, too, are barbecued. Well, Bess, if you're my woman now,

No harm, I guess, in axin'; Ain't wintertime about a thousand times the more relaxin'?

Miss Ware And A. O. Doughty, Jr. Pledge Troth

Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Doughty, Jr., are pictured following their marriage, solemnized at the Cedar Baptist Church in Archibald. The bride is the former Miss Virginia Pearl Ware, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ford Ware of Rayville. Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Doughty, of Rayville, are parents of the groom.

The Rev. W. R. Snider spoke the words of the double ring ceremony, with the young couple exchanging their vows before a background of palmetto and magnolia leaves, under a bridal arch, entwined with southern smilax and gladioli blossoms. The chancel rail was also twined with smilax, and basket standards of white gladioli and greenery flanked the nuptial scene. Floor candelabra held white cathedral tapers, which gave soft illumination for the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was radiant in a gown of lace and tulle, accenting her petite, brunette loveliness. The lace bodice was cut with simple straight neckline and long sleeves, pointed over the hands. Petal points of the lace overlaid the bouffant tulle skirt, fashioned at waltz length. Her veil of illusion cascaded to shoulder length from a Juliet cap of lace, and white satin slippers completed the ensemble. Her bouquet was fashioned of a specimen white orchid with feathered carnations and stephanotis, and satin ribbon streamers tied in love knots.

Miss Sue Francis, the maid of honor, wore a frock of pink organza, cut on princess lines with v-neckline and full skirt. Her colonial nosegay was of carnations in a deeper shade of pink, matching the flowers worn in a coronet on her hair.

The bridesmaids, Miss Judy Green and Miss Wanda Stegenson, wore frocks of blue organza, cut on lines identical to that of the maid of honor. Each carried a nosegay of blue feathered carnations, and wore matching floral coronets.

Ernest Greer, Jr., served as best man, and Buddy Ware and Archie Neal Brown, Jr., were the groomsmen.

Grandparents of the young couple present for the nuptial ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. D. Bruce maternal grandparents of the bride, and Mrs. R. M. Doughty, of Tullis, grandmother of the groom.

Guests were invited to a bridal reception held in the church parlors immediately following the ceremony. Dominating the beautifully appointed reception table was the four-tiered wedding confection, garlanded at the base by a rope of fern and pink radiance roses, arranged in heart shape. The roses and greenery were also banked at base of the two double crystal candelabra, where gleaming tapers cast soft light on silver coffee service at one end, and crystal punch bowl at the other. The table was overlaid with white damask.

Mrs. Floyd Bruce Boughton officiated at serving of the cake, with Mrs. Alfred Boughton at the coffee service, and Mrs. A. N. Brown, Sr., serving punch.

Miss Patricia Chapman was in charge of the guest register. Assisting as tea girls were Miss

MRS. BOYD FARREL KEAHEY

Miss Peggy Reid Becomes Bride In Chapel Rites

The chapel of the Church of Christ at Abilene Christian College, Abilene, Texas, was the scene of a lovely wedding when Miss Peggy Jancan Reid became the bride of Boyd Farrel Keahey.

Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Reid of Tulsa, Texas, are parents of the bride. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Keahey Sr. of St. Joseph.

Thomas J. Ruble, minister of the Church of Christ, Temple, Texas, read the double ring ceremony.

Nuptial music was provided by an Acapella Chorus from the college.

Vows were exchanged before a background of four white columns banked with jade and soft flowing greenery. Tall baskets of white gladioli graced either side.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a waltz length gown of diamond white silk mist taffeta and Chantilly lace. The molded bodice of taffeta had a deep yoke of lace which formed a scalloped neckline and cap sleeves. The bouffant skirt was accented with wide inserts of lace. A heart shaped tiara of pearls held her fingertip veil of illusion. She carried a cascade arrangement of gardenia atop a white Bible. As a gift from the groom she wore a single strand of baby pearls.

Mrs. Deryl Love, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. The groom's brother, Jack Keahey, Jr. was best man. Ushers were Gerald Sandusky of Bronte, Texas and Byron Bradfule of Beeville, Texas.

Mrs. Love wore a pink princess style dress with matching headpiece. Her bouquet was pink chifon daisies entwined with ivy leaves.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Reid wore a pastel blue summer cotton embroidered in white. Her accessories were white and her corsage was sweetheart roses.

The groom's mother chose a beige lace sheath, over apricot taffeta, with matching accessories. Her corsage was pink sweetheart roses.

Immediately following the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Reid entertained at a reception in the parlor of Nelson Hall.

The bride's table was covered with linen overlaid with tulle which continued in tiers to the floor. Pink ribbons were tied at vantage points around the table. In the center pink chifon daisies covered the base of branching silver candelabra holding white tapers. From one end Miss Nancy Flowers served a lovely tiered wedding cake decorated with spun sugar roses and the traditional bride and groom. Punch was served from a crystal service by Miss Jeanette Lucas. Guests were

Baptist Church Is Scene Of July Wedding

The marriage of Miss Joyce Newcomb and James Gilmore was solemnized at 6:30 o'clock in the evening in the Salem Baptist Church of Farmerville. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Floyd Newcomb and the late Mr. Newcomb and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Gilmore of Marion.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Reverend Troy Lee Chapman before an altar decorated with floor baskets of white gladioli and low arrange-

Given in marriage by her brother, Floyd Newcomb Jr., the bride wore a sheath gown of white lace made with lace jacket with tight elbow length sleeves. The jacket had high tiny pointed collars and was fastened down the front with covered buttons. Her colonial hat was white and she carried a white Bible covered with a spray bouquet of white carnations.

Miss Gloria Dawn Kennedy, aunt of the bride, was her only attendant. Her dress was fashioned of white net trimmed in taffeta. Blue satin was used in the trim of the dress and she wore a corsage of white carnations with touches of blue nylon tulle.

William Baker, of Marion, served as best man to the bridegroom and the ushers were George Allen Taylor and Gully Taylor.

Mrs. Newcomb chose a powder blue shantung dress embroidered in white for her daughter's wedding and Mrs. Gilmore was wearing a gray and white printed shantung with matching accessories. They wore corsages of white carnations.

MR. AND MRS. BILLY F. KAY

DEAR ABBY

Girl Sang 'Sweet Sue' And Lost Boyfriend

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am very much in love with a fellow who said he loved me too. I have a very jealous nature and I know that he was once in love with a girl and they went together almost two years. He would never let me hum, or whistle, or sing "SWEET SUE" because that was her name and it was "their song." I got mad at him one night and I started to sing "Sweet Sue." He lost his temper and knocked the filling out of my tooth. He left me (we were in a tavern) and I had to hook a ride home. I called him the next day and he said he didn't ever want to see me again. How can I get him back?

DEAR BLUE: If you intend to "get him back" you should take out BLUE CROSS. You asked for it when you sang "Sweet Sue" but a man who would knock the filling out of a lady's tooth needs to be "filled in" on how a gentleman behaves. Lose this brute.

DEAR ABBY: I see something every day (Monday through Friday) from my kitchen window that puzzles me. Between 4:00 p.m. and 4:05 p.m. a nice looking woman drives up in a station wagon and waits for a man who meets her in a Chevy coupe. She gets out of her car and gets into his and they drive away. At exactly 5:45 they both come back. They start kissing goodbye like they are never going to see each other again, then they get into their own cars and drive off. This has been going on since Spring. I have both their license numbers and if you think this would be called "disturbing the peace" or "disorderly conduct" I will report it to the police. I think they are breaking some laws.

WITHIN THE LAW
DEAR WITHIN: The "laws" that this couple are breaking are not visible from your kitchen window. As I see it, you've nothing to report.

DEAR ABBY: I am 18 years old and have been married and divorced and have a little girl a year old. I'm in love with a man who is 29 and would make a wonderful father but he has five kids by another man's wife. She has her divorce but won't marry him. He's waited three years for her to change her mind and marry him. We love each other, but he thinks he should be married to the mother of his kids. I would wait for him forever but I have my own child to consider. I've made a big mess of my life and need some advice. Don't tell me to give him up. I need him.

MESSUP LIFE
DEAR MESSUP: You need this man like Custer needed another Indian. Get out of his life and find yourself a decent man who respects the laws of marriage.

DEAR ABBY: Every time I buy my wife a present she makes me tell her how much I paid for it. When I do she blows her top an dsays I got robbed. What do you do with a dame like that?

ROBBED
DEAR ROBBED: Obviously your wife is more practical than sentimental. Give her money instead.

DEAR ABBY: We live on a farm, but I was brought up in the city. My husband still believes in lots of things that can't possibly have any truth to them, such as if a pregnant woman watches any butchering done it will mark the child. He said his aunt was frightened by a bat before her child was born and the baby had a bat's form on his back as a result. Am I mistaken or can there be any truth to these stories?

EXPECTING AND NERVOUS
DEAR EXPECTING: You need not be nervous. Your husband has swallowed some fishwives' tales hook, line and sinker. Don't let him feed you the same.

WISHING-WELL—What more attractive idea for a party for the very young set than a wishing-well table. The "old oaken bucket" is used as a cooler for the canned carbonated beverages which the youngsters will enjoy with a feeling of being quite grown-up. The beverages come in a variety of flavors such as orange, cola, ginger ale, root beer and others. Crepe paper is used for the well and the bucket is covered with an adhesive paper simulating wood, available in most dime stores.

Try A Wishing-Well Fete For Small Fry

There probably isn't a youngster under the shining sun who doesn't respond to the imaginative approach... a good thought to remember when you are planning a party.

Even the simplest games and decorations will spark enthusiastic response from young guests if their imagination is utilized, and many times a little imagination will save Mom a lot of work both in decorations and entertainment.

"Wishing" is one of a small fry's major activities, so why not a "Wishing - Well Party" for your next festivity for the very young set? Make the table setting a wishing well, which can be easily and inexpensively done with crepe paper and an ordinary bucket. Get paper that simulates a brick or stone wall and drape it around the table. Use a tan table cloth to suggest a wooden top for the well and for the centerpiece cover a bucket with a paper that simulates wood.

The bucket centerpiece can be filled with an important part of the refreshments — canned carbonated beverages which the youngsters will love, especially if they are permitted to drink from the cans in the grown-up fashion. The canned beverages come in flavors to appeal to juvenile as well as older palates — orange, ginger ale, cola, lemon-lime, root beer, grape and sarsaparilla.

Serve simple but nourishing sandwiches, hamburgers or hot dogs with the beverages and cake and ice cream for dessert and your menu will be a success with the young guests.

By all means have at least one and perhaps more "wishing" games. Award prizes for the most unusual wish.

YOUR PROBLEMS

23-Year Old Courtship Ends In Tragedy

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: I went with a wonderful man for 23 years. Our relationship was beautiful and mutually rewarding. We had love, understanding and deep respect for each other.

We never married, for reasons of our own. We felt this was strictly our own business and we made no explanations or apologies to anyone. We were completely faithful to one another—which is more than can be said for most of our married friends.

My darling passed away suddenly, five weeks ago. His affairs were in perfect order. His will which had been drawn up in January, 1956 was clear-cut. He left everything to me.

Two weeks ago his mother (who never once invited me to her home) came to mine. She expressed the view that as a matter of principle she was entitled to "something." His brother called on me a few days later to say he'd like the automobile "for sentimental reasons" (a '58 Lincoln). His sister, who always referred to me as "that woman", asked for his collection of rare books for her sons.

All the years I went with this man I hungered for a kind word from his family, but it never came. Now they're hovering around like locusts. I want to do the right thing. Please help me.

—Alone.

Tell the locusts—I mean the relatives, that you had no voice in the division of the estate. Explain that all the decisions were made by the man who owned the property and his attorneys are mere-

Phillips-Rister Rites Pledged

A home wedding of sweet simplicity was that of Miss Joyce Lamoine Rister, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald V. Dunlap of Orlando, Florida, to Dr. Donald C. Phillips, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Phillips of Baton Rouge. The ceremony was held at 1 p. m. on July 21 at the home of the groom's brother.

The Rev. H. L. Sampson performed the double ring ceremony. White gladioli and stock were used in several arrangements.

Mrs. C. L. Dillingham rendered the nuptial music and during the ceremony she played Liebestraum and Traumeri. Max Dillingham, the soloist, sang "Because."

The bride given in marriage by her father looked radiant in a white cotton satin chemise ensemble with stand - away collar and a small white hat with shoulder length veil and white accessories. Her corsage was of white orchids. Miss Nancy Rister, sister of the bride, wore a street length dress of rose lace over taffeta with matching shoes, white gloves and hat. Her corsage was of white carnations centered with a rose.

The bride attended the Orange Memorial Hospital School of Nursing and she received her B. S. degree in nursing education from Florida State University. Dr. Phillips attended Louisiana State University School of Medicine with M. D. degree. He is a member of Phi Beta Pi Medical and Social fraternity.

on the kitchen linoleum and the bouncing ball drives us crazy.

I've spoken to the landlady and her daughter. They say the children are "healthy normal boys" and can't be kept in cages. They expressed deep regret that we are being "inconvenienced". My husband and I are nervous wrecks. We love this neighborhood, and moving costs money. Please give us some advice.—VeeEll

Even if you have a 99-year lease written in blood, the conditions today are not what they were when you signed the agreement. If a landlady doesn't believe this can be factor, a lawyer can persuade her.

Under the circumstances you should move. Your real problem is where to go from there. Look in the classified section of this paper under RENTALS. Of course it cost money to move, but a nervous breakdown would be far more expensive.

Does almost everyone have a good time but you? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' new booklet, "How To Be Well-Liked," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper and enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope.

New Silhouette Is Named The 'Tender Trap'

By DOROTHY ROE

NEW YORK — The "tender trap" is Harry Frechtel's name for his newest suit silhouette, which features a brief, rounded jacket gently cupping the bustline and worn with a slender, high-waisted skirt and overblouse.

This usually conservative designer goes all-out this fall in a riot of color and a medley of textured fabrics such as looped mohair, boucle and brushed wools that have a bulky look but are light as thistledown to the touch.

Suits and coats often feature fur collars of fluffy, long-haired fox, this season's favorite. Coats are largely cut on flaring trapezoid lines, with portrait collars sometimes tied with fur loops.

Typical of the colors in the coat group is a loose coat of fluffy looped mohair in pale pink and green muted plaid.

Edward Abbott concentrates on glamor after dark in his new collection of cocktail, dinner and dance dresses, concentrating interest at the hemline, to dramatize the newly important leg exposure.

Moving, fluttering hemlines are achieved by ruffles, ostrich, flounces and even a fringe border of milk tails.

Colors are strictly dazzling, including such vivid shades as ultraviolet, bright orange, potent pink and neon blue.

Abbott rings many variations on the high-waisted empire line, achieving softness and movement through floating fabrics such as chiffon and lace.

MISS BARBARA KATHRYN NEAL, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Neal of Ferriday is engaged to Reverend Jerry M. Green, of Columbia. He is the son of Mrs. Earl M. Green and the late Mr. Green, of Shreveport. Their vows will be said at 8 p.m. in the Ferriday Baptist Church on Friday, September 12.

George-Parker Vows Exchanged By Candlelight

In a lovely setting of candlelight, Miss Frances Parker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Parker, of Southdome, became the bride of Loyd George, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. George, of Lake Providence.

The impressive double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. D. E. Mitchell at the Church of Christ July 11, at 7:00 in the presence of close friends and relatives of the two families.

A diagonal arrangement of magnolia leaves covered the church rostrum. The baptistry was covered in white and trellised in ivy. Wrought iron standards held tall white tapers and were interspersed with floor vases of white gladioli and mums, based in fern and huckleberry. Shasta daisies, white crepe myrtle and zinnias decorated the windows.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was gowned in white chantilly lace. The bodice featured a high rounded neckline and long sleeves. The full, waist length skirt flared into deep ruffling of pleated nylon net. Her short veil of illusion fell from a satin cap. Her bouquet was of orchids and stephanotis.

Miss Alice Hammack, cousin of the bride, served as her only attendant. She wore a waist length gown of canary organdy with square neckline and brief sleeves. White dot tatted edged the waist and ended in a prim bow at the back, with narrow streamers falling to the hemline of the skirt. Her wide brimmed crownless hat was of dress matching shade. She carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations.

G. A. George served his son as best man. Candlelighters were Walter and Gary Parker, brothers of the bride. Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

New Catholic Church Holds Group Meeting

An enthusiastic meeting of the Jesus of Good Shepherd Sanctuary Society met in the home of Mrs. W. J. Riley, Sr., with Mrs. Paul Goldman, president, presiding. Rev. Father Dabria honored this group with his presence, settling many questions on the why's and wherefores of the organization.

Officers present were Mrs. E. Dalton, vice-president; Mrs. Albert Theriot, secretary; and Mrs. John Kosevich, treasurer.

The president announced four circles that are in the process of forming, neighborhood groups. These groups will be headed by Mrs. E. Lohan, Mrs. A. D. Gallagher, Mrs. Charles Ammons, and Mrs. A. V. Breard.

Others appointed to aid in the work of this newly formed organization are the permanent secretaries, Mrs. O. M. White, Jr., assisted by Mrs. John Bellan, Mrs. Louise Lasuzza, Mrs. J. W. Webster, Mrs. Donn Marsala, and Mrs. Sara Ellen Bartolf and Mrs. W. A. Kier will be in charge of the Guardian Angel Sunday school.

This meeting was composed of women who seemed most anxious to co-operate and volunteer for much of the work required. Such co-operation and the vast number attending the eight and ten o'clock masses last Sunday indicates the need for the newly erected Catholic Church, Jesus, The Good Shepherd.

The work of the four circle groups will encourage membership and should be the means of getting the church on the way to a well-rounded program.

The meeting was closed with a prayer by Father Dabria.

Trenton Baptists Hold Encampment

Over 300 are expected to attend the five-day camp in Camp Kibler, West Monroe sponsored by the Trenton Baptist Association, August 11-15. This will be the third year of operation for this type camp.

A main feature this year will be the presence of Rev. John Kondoh, a native Japanese student, and his family. Rev. Kondoh is a graduate of Tokyo University and is now a student at New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary. He speaks excellent English and has done extensive youth work in Japan. Mrs. Kondoh does not speak English well enough to engage in public speaking, but is said to be a beautiful personality who will help with small groups in the camp. They have a daughter who will sing each day in the camp.

Rev. John C. Smith is camp director and announced that due to the fact that the churches were bearing most of the expense of the camp, those who register will be charged a total of only $2.00 which will include all meals, lodging and insurance for the five-day camp.

The camp will be for ages nine and up. Those who wish to attend were urged to secure registration blanks from their churches and get them in as soon as possible. Rev. O. P. Bazer is associate director in charge of registration. Rev. A. T. Mitchell will be camp pastor; Rev. E. E. Taylor, camp preacher and Rev. Hoyt Greer, spiritual leader. Many others will also help in the camp.

The general public is invited to attend any of the day or night services, although there may not be lodging at the camp.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

3 New Garden Judges Named

By MARY M. JARDINE

We wish to welcome the following new accredited judges: Mrs. Paul Bourg, Dodge, Mrs. P. C. Lindsey, Arcadia and Dr. Katherine Foster, Monroe.

There are many new and wonderful publications on garden subjects. It is difficult to find time to read them all. First to come to my attention and of great interest is the new Handbook on Herbs from the Brooklyn Botanic Garden. This contains an illustrated dictionary of herbs, with a full description of each plant, its use, horticulture use, culture and harvesting. There are chapters on Unusual Herbs of Ornamental value, those for shaded gardens. Also chapters on mints, scented geraniums and thymes. The modern interest in herbs in this country — at least among the garden club members — seems to center in culinary use, in cosmetics, perfumes and potpourri. It is much more satisfactory to leave the administering of medicine to well-trained physicians.

The herb garden has become a center of interest, discussion and enjoyment to many, not only because these historic plants reach into the earliest culture of man, but because they are effective as garden plants. Many are fragrant. Many add exciting flavors to the most commonplace dishes. A surprise was to discover that Artemisia absinthium (wormwood) which grows so profusely here and provides that strong, gray accent in our garden backgrounds is famous as an ingredient of the liqueur absinthe and has a limited use in medicine. Monarda or bee balm (bergamot) which grows along our roadsides makes an aromatic tea. This is a handbook you all will want to read.

Neutral Colors

Neutral colors and simple forms are the most useful. These set off flowers without attracting too much attention to themselves and can be used over and over. In planning your container collection be sure to include a low one for use on your dining table or sideboard and a tall one for narrow spaces. There is a wide range of modern decorative objects which are utilized as flower containers in our homes of today. Suggested reading for container selections: Outlines of Period Flower Arrangement by Frances J. Hannay, A History of Flower Arrangement by Julia S. Rerrall. Flowers and Plants for Interior Decoration by Esther Wheeler and Annabel Lasker, Gregory Conway's Encyclopedia of Flower Arrangement.

THE SOUTHERN GARDENER

Watch Summer Flower Shrubs

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Bird-of-Paradise Bush

Southern gardens could do with more summer-flowering shrubs. One of these that we do not pay very much attention to is the bird-of-paradise bush. If you happen to be riding along and suddenly spot it in some one's yard, it will surely catch your eye. It may be compelling enough to make you turn around and go back for the feathery foliage and the airy yellow and red flowers will make you think you are seeing a beautiful dwarf mimosa tree of some kind.

The distinctly yellow and red flowers of bird-of-paradise bush are born in heads at the ends of the shoots. They are a little more solid looking than mimosa blossoms because they have yellow petals, while mimosa has no petals.

Common Names

Common names are often very confusing, because people will name a plant for some object which it seems to resemble. On time again.

DO-IT-YOURSELF PATIO—Shown above is the patio of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Genung, 609 Downey Lane, which was built in a relatively short time. The Genungs designed and constructed their patio entirely by themselves.

THE HOME SHIFT

Patios Remain Very Popular

By MILDRED SWIFT

If the Bird of Paradise (Strelitzia) is one of your favorite flowers, drop by Mrs. P. A. Colvin's, 102 Country Club Drive. She has a beautiful specimen in bloom. This is not the yard plant by that name, but the pot plant you buy at the florists. Talk to Mrs. Colvin about her treatment of the plant, since she has been so successful.

Patios

Some say the patio is on its way out since air conditioning has become so popular. Maybe for summer months, but there are beautiful days in the spring, fall and even winter when the family can enjoy the outdoor living room. Without an outdoor audience, how can Pop barbecue? And — who in Louisiana could live without that delicious food?

Location

Landscape architects say plan the patio when the house is planned, which of course is the ideal way. Then one can place so as to take advantage of prevailing breezes. But many homes are built years before the patio bug bites Dad. Also, some owners want to build by the bayou, or under a certain tree.

I guess Mom really decides the location though. She knows who will take all those steps to get provisions on the patio. So — she says, "Build as close to the kitchen as possible." That's just where the Harry Genungs built their patio, just off the family room that joins the kitchen. They live at 609 Downey Lane in the gray house with the espaliered pyracantha on the front.

Construction

The material used for their hard surfacing is cull stone, which comes in colors of gray, green, or pink. The color here is pink. The stones are sold locally. Sizes are 8 x 16 inches and 2 1/2 inches thick. However, Harry used the broken pieces which run much cheaper. He had a concrete slab poured for his foundation, but a number of people have used this stone with a sand base which cuts the cost considerably.

Harry says he worked with a level so as to get a pitch for drainage. The broken stones were placed in position, 1/2 inch apart. A dry mixture of three parts sand to one part cement was swept in these cracks. Then a light spray from the hose was used to wet this down. That last process was repeated so as to fill the cracks.

If you're interested, I'm sure Harry and Bertha will be glad to show you their patio. They're wonderful hosts. They can fill in all the details.

Cleaning Brick

Muratic acid is excellent for cleaning a brick patio or walk. Often the brick gets slippery and unsightly, especially if there are trees around. Mix the acid — five parts to one part of water. Dip the broom in the mixture and scrub.

Then rinse with the hose. Be careful! The acid will burn if it comes in contact with the skin. It's best to work in front of you and not step in the acid at all.

Garden Jobs

It's time to cut the tops off your violet plants and fertilize them with cotton seed meal or well-decomposed barnyard fertilizer. By cutting the tops now, you'll have long stem blooms next December. Also, this cutting helps get rid of red spider.

For red spider spray with Malathion or dust with sulphur when the foliage is dry. Remember violets like lots of moisture.

Red spider is also an enemy of summer phlox, as is mildew. If you have some of these plants in your garden, don't spare the sulphur. These phlox also require plenty of water.

Our natural humidity is high in North Louisiana, but when the weather is hot and dry, "mist" your camellias late in the afternoon. The foliage needs a certain amount of moisture.

The grass clippings are heavy this year due to the rains that make the grass grow. Leave these rakings on the lawn. In this hot sun, they're gone in a day or two. Then they decay and add richness in the form of organic matter. If you rake these clippings you are depleting the soil of some of its best qualities.

Many of the spring flowers have finished blooming. You can clean up those beds, re-make and plant for fall bloom.

Watch for plant lice on chrysanthemums. Spray every ten days with nicotine sulphate.

Keep old blooms cut from crepe myrtles to get longer period of bloom. These can be stripped or cut.

Some seed to plant this month are: Cosmos, sweet alyssum, four o'clock, marigold, zinnia, balsam, blue bonnet, cockscomb, periwinkle, portulaca.

If winds have torn any limbs from your trees, prune these back so the wound will be smooth. Cover the cut with tree seal that can be purchased in small amount at your feed and seed stores.

Around The House

Knitted fabrics in all their glamorous colors and prints are clothes news for winter. The handling and sewing of knitted fabrics is simple. First locate and mark with basting or chalk, a continuous lengthwise rib on the right side of the fabric. Lay fabric smoothly and easily on flat surface and place grain line marking of pattern pieces straight with rib of plastic. This will assure cutting on the grain of the fabric, which is so necessary for the right drape and hang of the garment.

A new fabric for slip covers, draperies and upholstery is a high count, mercerized cotton fabric, finished with a silicone coating. It has elegant locked in lustre usually found only in more expensive fabrics. It is this coating which gives the fabric its guaranteed freedom from non-oily stains caused by such common agents as grape juice, jelly, ink, water, soft drinks, coffee, tea and others. Such stains are removed by simply wiping with a damp cloth.

The material will come in 70 different prints, 22 solids, 30 embroidered and 22 quilted patterns. Should be on the market soon.

Have you seen the new carpet, bag prints for dresses and blouses? Simply magnificent.

Farm, Home Week Slated

By AUDREY DAWSON

Home Furnishings

If you are planning a new floor for your home, be sure to attend Farm and Home Week, August 11-14 on LSU campus and get all the facts about floors, asphalt vinyl, asbestos, cork, special linoleum and others, their possibilities and limitations and their decorative uses as well. Information will, also, be given on special backing materials, underlayments, adhesives and color combinations.

The clothing program has been designed just for you. The session on how to fit a pattern will add to your skill as a seamstress and bring you tips on materials, style and fit.

Something New

Fabric softeners are the latest new laundering products which will help you solve some of your problems. Fabric softeners are lubricating agents which give fabrics a soft appearance. They minimize wrinkles and helps eliminate deep creases which make ironing more difficult. They also have an anti-static effect on those fabrics which tend to "ride up" and "cling." The softeners are added in the final rinse and amount to use is determined by the pounds of clothes and not the number of gallons of water. Fabric softeners should never be added to the wash water because they are not compatible with detergents.

Care of Linens

Here are some tips to help save on the wear and tear of your bed linens. Prevent tears by loosening sheets on all four sides before removing them from the bed. Protect sheets from exposed springs. Use sun bleaching instead of strong bleaching solutions — although, sun bleaching is not recommended for nylon sheets. Remove cosmetic stains and hair oil. These are difficult to remove from sheets and pillow cases. Rinse thoroughly and do not press fold into the linens before storing.

Control of Roaches

Success in getting rid of cockroaches depends on which insecticide spray or dust is used, and where and how it is used. Research has shown that chlordane, two per cent oil solution or water emulsion or five per cent dust is effective against all roaches except those that have developed resistance. If chlordane has been used for a number of years in the house and roaches are still present, it pays to try another insecticide such as malathion. You do not need a pressurized job that fogs and drenches a room. This is hazardous and wasteful. Instead, concentrate on places where roaches run or hide. These places can be located by watching where the insects go when light is first turned on in a room at night.

Use a paint brush to apply spray in cracks, along baseboards, undersides of cabinets or kitchen drawers, or around pipes. Use a hand duster to force insecticide dust into hiding places difficult to reach with spray.

New Camellia

Vulcan and Linda Margaret are two new camellia varieties developed at the experiment station at Hammond. Both of these are being released to nurseries in southeast Louisiana for propagation and will be available to growers this coming season.

The color of Vulcan flowers range from a glowing red to a very dark red, with occasional petaloids showing light streaks. The plant is vigorous with a strong sturdy growth rather than a rapid, leggy spreading habit.

The flowers of Vulcan vary to a large degree in color and formation with the location, seasonal conditions and period of blooming.

Linda Margaret is a seedling of unknown parentage. The pink formal double flowers are three to four inches in diameter and one and one-half to two inches deep and have eighty or more petals. Linda Margaret produces blooms during month of October which constitutes its greatest contribution as a new variety. The color of the flower varies rather widely in shades of pink.

A Thought

Do you think you're unlucky? Don't you believe it for a minute and above all don't worry about it.

Garden Chores

Give Desired Shade Of Tan

CHAPPAQUA, N. Y. — Midsummer in the garden is for sitting and enjoying the outdoors — the flowers, the birds, the play of light and shadow. It is also a time to ration oneself carefully on the garden work — for chores, alas, know no season.

No one can make another gardener's schedule. One of the most handsomely unburned women of my acquaintance has achieved this desired shade of tan by organizing her garden work deliberately. Most of us, however, are perforce week-end gardeners and must do our garden work in a small amount of time.

In the hottest months the best time for physical work is in the early morning. This is a good time too, for necessary spraying and dusting. The morning sun dries off the water in the spray giving the chemicals an opportunity to go about their lethal work when fresh. And, if you are dusting, the morning dew helps the dust adhere to the leaves and stems.

All the lawn advice at this time of the year includes caution to set the mower blades high so that the longer blades of grass provide shade against the hot sun.

Common Names

Common names are often very confusing, because people will name a plant for some object which it seems to resemble. On time again.

the other side of the world, or even in the next town, other people will name an entirely different plant for the same object. That is where the confusion begins. No two plants have the same Latin name, however, and we can soon straighten out the difficulty. The greenhouse plant called bird-of-paradise flower is not a bush and has the Latin name, Strelitzia. Our bush, however, is a Caesalpinia, sometimes found under Poinciana gills.

This delightful summer flowering shrub is not too hardy to the cold weather. Plant it on the south side of some wall or fence or on the south side of the house to protect it from the worst winter winds. It may get killed back, from time to time, but it recovers quickly from the roots and makes a three to eight-foot shrub in no time again.

Girl Scout News

By the time our readers see this, the second session of day camping at Pine Wood will have come to an end, as all good things must. One hundred Scouts, as well as staff and program aides, say that each day gets better and better, which, of course, makes everything perfect. The two sessions were made necessary not only by increased interest in day camping, but by a need to protect and preserve the beauty of the camp. Too many feet wear too many paths, the covering of pine needles is worn away, trees find it harder to exist. With the emphasis of both camps on the outdoor good turns, each unit has tried to do something to improve camp. They have resisted the desire to mark out paths and to rake the pine needles away, except for the six-foot circle they must clear around any fire.

Home of the Brownies and Home in the Woods, two Brownie units, have worked on an erosion control project, placing dead limbs, bricks and rocks on a slope to prevent washing. Pine Grove, also a Brownie unit, cut down four dead pine trees in their unit. Every unit has spent some time with Mr. Thompson, of the forestry department, who has been at camp three days, working with the girls. On Tuesday he accompanied Happy Pines Unit on an all-day trip to Linville fire tower. This group of younger intermediates is using the Tree Badge as the basis of much of their program. Mr. Thompson was able to help them with many of the activities included in the badge requirements. One of the most interesting requirements, the girls think, is the making of prints of leaves of the fifteen trees they learn to recognize. Each girl has a booklet of the spatter and blue prints to keep as a reminder of the camp.

Still in line with the outdoor good turn and the conservation theme, each bus group has visited the Wildlife and Fisheries headquarters on Black Bayou.

On rainy days and hot afternoons the girls have seen excellent films on wildlife, trees, reptiles and Smokey, the Bear.

Speaking of heat, and most everybody does, it's not nearly as hot at camp as it is in town. Just ask campers and staff. Good camp program has a balance of activities, quiet and lively, so no one gets too hot or tired. The lemme stick game has been popular with this group, too, as well as the shoe game, the elephant game and the Texas Schottische.

The Intermediate unit that calls itself TPK, we haven't guessed what it means yet, has based its program on the Campercraft and Rambler badges. Monday night they spent at camp, carrying out plans they had made in the unit. Leader Ethel Easterling said it was one of the most successful overnights she had ever been a part of. The fire burned, the food was cooked to a turn, everybody had fun at campfire, with lively games in the hall later. Then showers and bed and by 10:00 o'clock all was quiet except for the night noises that make sleeping out so peaceful.

Spending the night were Kaki Stone, Marilyn Denoux, Mary Beth Roberts, Elizabeth Phillips, Susie Wright, Gayle Popwell, Julia Housemaker, Bonnie Baldo, Sharon Brantley, Mary Reynolds, Marsha Albritton and Marilyn Post.

The girls found the overnight a good time to learn to clean, fill, and light a kerosene lamp and a lantern, important skills for campers.

Century Oak Unit is using Insect and Reptile badges as program and stay so busy in their part of camp, and over the fence, using the stile they lashed, that the rest of the camp seldom sees them until campfire time. They invited the entire camp to campfire in the unit Thursday, displaying the work they had done.

Serving as staff for this session have been Mrs. J. M. Edwards, a no trump game.

Mrs. G. R. Miller, Mrs. J. L. Davidson, and Mrs. C. M. Kelley, of Farmerville; Mrs. A. B. Gregory, Mrs. D. T. DeMasterson, Mrs. Lester High, Mrs. Ed Kimbrough, Mrs. Thomas Zeagler, Mrs. L. L. Nash, Mrs. Robert Easterling, Mrs. N. L. Huckabee and Mrs. Leon Noland, Jr. Miss Annis Klie is camp director.

Program aides are Linda Bird, Ronnie Hervey, Nancy Clare Noland, Julia Faye Anthony, Louise Lester, Mitzi Baughman, Becky Scott, Jamie Spencer, Frances Reed, Donna Sue Green, Sue Gregory, Bernadine Semmes, Diana Jordan, Jean Slaughter, Gwen Reynolds. Recognize names in both groups who served during the first session? There's something about Girl Scout camping that brings them back. We're grateful for without these volunteers there would be no camps at Pine Wood.

The bidding: East, 1 diamond; South, Double West, pass; North, 1 heart.

East, double; North, pass.

West, pass; South, pass.

Opening lead: Spade jack.

That it is not necessary to bid every time a good hand is held is an idea that is difficult to sell to the average player. When the bidding is opened by an adversary, a cool business head is required to determine whether or not to enter the auction.

With hands of great playing strength you have aspirations of showing a profit by buying the contract for your side. With hands of great defensive value your best chance to get on the right side of the ledger is to let the opponents bid themselves into trouble.

In today's hand South incurred a loss by failing to use this line of reasoning. East opened with one diamond and South, holding 16 points, felt he was under compulsion to double. West used fine judgment in passing.

Many players in this position become panicky and inject a bid of one spade for fear the diamond double will be left in. West reasoned that his best chance to show a profit would be to permit the enemy to bid.

North was in that unenviable position in which we all sometimes find ourselves. He tried to get out of the mess in the cheapest possible manner by bidding one heart. South now tried one no trump and West doubled. There was no place to run and the hand was played there.

The jack of spades was led and East unblocked with the queen. Declarer won and led the king of diamonds. East took the trick and continued the spade. Declarer ducked but the suit was continued, an established. South found himself unable to do any more than cash his four high card tricks and settled for an 800 point loss.

On the surface it would appear that the loss amounted to only 200 points because the opposition could have made a game at no the rest of the camp seldom sees them until campfire time. They invited the entire camp to campfire in the unit Thursday, displaying the work they had done.

Serving as staff for this session have been Mrs. J. M. Edwards, a no trump game.

BUZ SAWYER

Featuring His Pal Rosco Sweeney by Roy Crane

SCRAM! BUT HOW, FRIENDS? CAR'S BROKE DOWN, TIRES ARE FLAT---

THEN WALK! YOU'VE EATEN OFF ME FOR THE LAST TIME!

LAZY, TRIFLING DEAD BEATS! GIVE THOSE SQUATLEYS A CRUMB AND THEY'LL TAKE THE WHOLE CAKE! THE ONLY WAY TO GET RID OF THEM IS TO STARVE THEM OUT!

YES, BROTHER.

PLUMB GRIEVES ME... SNIFF!... NO JOB, NO MONEY, NO FRIENDS. AH GUESS WE'LL JUST STARVE TO DEATH.

YOO-HOO, ANGEL! SUPPER'S READY.

I SAID EAT YOUR SUPPER, ANGEL!

I... I'M NOT HUNGRY.

LOOK! ROAST BEEF!

YUM-YUM!

STOP LOOKING AT THE WINDOW AND EAT, ANGEL.

BLACK-EYED PEAS!

HOT BISCUITS!

GRAVY!

PLEASE, UNCLE ROSCO! CAN'T I GIVE MY SUPPER TO THE SQUATLEYS?

NO, CONFOUND IT! EAT, I TELL YOU!

BUT I'M NOT HUNGRY! BOO-HOO-HOO!

I'M NOT EITHER, BROTHER. PLEASE, JUST THIS ONCE, CAN'T WE...

OKAY! GIVE 'EM MY SUPPER, TOO! CALL THE LOCUSTS IN! GIVE THEM EVERYTHING!
